Village 'hostile' in Viator case

by BILL HILL

Arlington Heights officials are accused of racial hostility and insensitivity to low-income housing in a legal brief filed by the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. with the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The statement is made in answer to Arlington Heights' request for a new hearing on the village's 1971 refusal to rezone 15 acres near St. Viator High School for the low-income Lincoln Green housing project proposed by MHDC.

"The implication of statements in the petition (filed by the village) are more distressing for they show the continuing irresponsible attitude of white village officials with respect to the segregated housing crisis in the Chicago metropolitan area," F. Willis Caruso, MHDC attorney, states in the brief filed Monday.

THE VILLAGE'S "assertion that the opinion will require two zoning ordinances -- one for the poor and the black, and another for the rest of the community — mirrors racial animus and provides insight into the white suburban syndrome that continues to separate black and poor from the rest of the community," he says.

Caruso urges the federal appeals court to uphold its opinion that the village must find a suitable alternative to the Viator site or be found in violation of federal fair housing laws.

A ruling on the village's request that the court's full, eight-judge panel reconsider the ruling made by a three-judge panel July 7 is expected within two or three weeks.

Village officials already have said they will ask the U.S. Supreme Court to hear the case again if the court of appeals ruling is not reversed.

THE HIGH COURT ruled in January that the village's refusal to rezone the site for the 190 townhouses was not unconstitutional but ordered the lower court to decide whether the village had violated the Fair Housing Act of 1968.

Caruso also insists that the village's request for a new hearing should be denied because the court of appeals has given Arlington Heights a second chance to decide where Lincoln Green can be built.

The village insists the case should not be decided on the basis of racial discrimination but only as a "garden-variety" zoning case. No multiple-family development, whether it is for low-income families or not, should be allowed at the Viator site because of the surrounding residential neighborhoods, village officials say.

Ease penalty on marijuana asks Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter asked Congress Tuesday to decriminalize the possession of small amounts of marijuana so that an offense committed by an estimated 45 million Americans no longer would be punishable by a federal prison term.

"This decriminalization is not legalization," Carter said. "It means only that the federal penalty for possession would be reduced and a person would receive a fine rather than a criminal penalty."

The government's campaign against drug traffickers, however, would be stepped up under the President's plan.

He asked Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell to intensify investigations of the link between organized crime and drug traffic, and the Justice, State and Treasury departments to study arrangements with other countries for revoking passports of traffickers and freezing their assets.

IN A SEVEN-PAGE message to Congress announced in a personal visit to the White House press room, Carter also reported that he has ordered a study to determine how barbituates and other sedatives can be most safely used.

"My goals are to discourage all drug abuse in America — and also discourage the excessive use of alcohol and tobacco," Carter said. He did not elaborate on discouraging use of alcohol and tobacco.

Carter said more than 45 million Americans have tried marijuana and an estimated 11 million are regular users.

"We can, and should, continue to discourage the use of marijuana, but this can be done without defining the smoker as a criminal," Carter said.

THE CURRENT federal penalty for possession of small amounts of marijuana, for a first offender, is up to one year in prison and up to a $5,000 fine. Repeat offenders can get up to two years in prison and up to $10,000 in fines.

Carter stresed that federal penalties for marijuana trafficking would remain in force and the states would remain free to adopt whatever laws they wish about the marijuana smoker.

Carter said he was recommending "a conscious and deliberate increase in attention," throughout the federal government on problems relating to abuse of drugs that come originally from legitimate medical sources.

"Of particular concern are barbi-

90-ton trash haul nets $2,900 bill

by BILL HILL

A bill totaling $2,900 has been sent to the owner of an Arlington Heights house where garbagemen Monday hauled away about 90 tons of trash.

The bill from the Laseke Disposal Co. to Aurelia Rau, 502 No. Arlington Heights Rd., includes charges of $1,366 for labor and $1,533 to dump the garbage.

The garbage was discovered Saturday when Cook County authorities evicted Shirley Bright, about 50, and her mother, Phoebe Mollenkamp, about 75, for not allowing Miss Rau in to fix a broken water pipe.

The whereabouts of the two women who lived in the rear of Miss Rau's two-story house were unknown Tuesday.

Related story on Page 8

THE ITEMIZED bill mailed Tuesday by Laseke charges for 136 man hours of labor and the dumping of two trash and 295 cubic yards of comtrasy and 295 cubic yards of compocted refuse.

This is equal to 12,200 of the standard 30-gallon garbage cans full of trash or two cans a week for 117 years, according to figures of Henry Laseke, president of Laseke Disposal Co., Arlington Heights.

Another rough estimate used by Laseke is that one gallon of garbage usually equals about one pound. Using that equation, the garbage hauled away Monday equaled 183,000 pounds, or 91.5 tons.

Although the bill for hauling the trash was sent to Miss Rau, the village may end up having to pay the charge and then put a lien on Miss Rau's property, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said Tuesday.

THE LIEN WOULD mean that a subsequent purchaser of the property would have to repay the village.

"The village is involved whether we like it or not. There was a health problem so we authorized Laseke to haul the garbage away," Hanson said.

The lien could also involve the payment of water bills, Hanson said, if Miss Rau is unable to pay the charges totaling nearly $1,000 because of the water pipe broken since January.

Miss Rau was unavailable for comment Tuesday, but her attorney, Stephen Jurco, said he does expect her to file a suit for damages.

"A suit would have to be based on the possibility of recovery, and the likelihood of the tenants having any funds is very slim," Jurco said.

THE EVICTION proceedings, which were begun in January, were not culminated until this week because authorities were unable to serve the court order on Mrs. Bright and her mother in previous attempts.

"They knew that eviction attempts were being made so they wouldn't answer the door and they concealed themselves," Jurco said.

Working group on Mideast peace to meet

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (UPI)—Faced by disagreement over crusial issues, Sec. of State Cyrus Vance and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Tuesday a working group of Israeli and Arab foreign ministers will meet in the United States next month to pave the way for a full-scale Geneva conference.

Sadat said in a nationally televised news conference after his second meeting with Vance that the group would deal with matters of substance as well as procedure.

The working group would be the first negotiating session between the Arabs and Israelis and would thus represent a preliminary to the Geneva conference and a substitute for the early stages of such a conference.

ARAB AND Israeli foreign ministers met briefly in Geneva in December 1973, but there was no negotiating at that session.

Vance said the working group "will meet as long as it is useful."

He said the ministers would meet in the United States in mid-September, most likely in New York, but possibly in Washington as well.

The announcement of the working group followed reports from Egyptian sources that Sadat rejected an American compromise plan for a five-year phased withdrawal of Israeli forces from occupied territories in exchange for a similarly timed transition to "full peace" between Israel and the Arab states.

"We may be differing (with the Americans) on certain issues," Sadat said, "but the fact remains that we are both seeking peace built on justice."

Neither Sadat nor Vance defined those differences but the Egyptian president showed a flash of momentary anger when he discussed the possibility of a five-year delay in the withdrawal of Israeli forces.

"We are ready to achieve peace," he said. "I am ready to sign a peace agreement tomorrow . . . Israel should do the same and withdraw from all occupied lands . . ."

Neighbors want to forget family slaying

by NANCY SERRITELLA

It's still a little bit frightening to think about what happened in that Barrington Hills house five years ago.

It remains a tragic memory, an unexplained and senseless killing, that today is lodged in the sensibilities of residents of the exclusive suburb. It is a memory they do not enjoy recalling, for it was about this time in 1972 that the story broke. They haven't forgotten.

Retired insurance executive Paul Corbett and his family were the targets of a racially motivated execution murder by a black gang.

FOUR PERSONS were killed. The family's tiny dog went first, then a daughter, Barbara Boand and Mrs. Corbett's sister, Dorothy Derry, who were visiting. Paul Corbett and his wife, Marion, were then killed.

They were 10 feet from a burglar alarm.

As one Barrington Hills policeman said, "The murder put Barrington Hills on the map."

Although Bateman Circle where the killings took place is as quiet today as the day of the murder, discussion of the incident with neighbors, police and local officials touches a sensitive nerve.

A MAJOR impact of the Corbett murders has been the change in the police department and a new awareness that crime can happen anywhere. In this affluent suburb of rolling hills and secluded home sites, there is a need for security.

"People suddenly realized they needed us more. We were no longer a sleepy little operation. People were suddenly more aware of the location and the kind of people who live here," Barrington Hills Sgt. Robert Swenson said.

Barrington Hills attracted attention across the country. Numerous letters and phone calls from psychics, seers and persons with possible tips or leads were directed to the previously quiet police department.

There were letters from persons throughout the Midwest reporting their mysterious or possibly evil neighbors. There was a letter from a grocery store owner in a town several miles away reporting that two "hipturates, which despite their recognized medical use, are responsible for many deaths and are frequently used in suicide attempts."

Carter ordered the secretary of health, education and welfare to study barbiturates and sedatives to determine conditions under which they can be most safely used. He asked the Pentagon, the Veterans Administration and HEW to review the prescription practices of doctors under their jurisdiction.

"Among young American men aged 18 to 24, drugs are the fourth most common cause of death," Carter said. "The estimated cost of drug abuse in America exceeds $15 billion each year."

Fires scorch across California, Alaska

by United Press International

A fire raced across a popular mountain park near San Francisco Tuesday, forcing evacuation of 50 families and threatening three small developments of homes worth up to $100,000. Alaska, too, was being tortured by flames.

The 3,000-acre fire on Mt. Diablo, visible from 30 miles away, was the biggest of dozens started by an unusual lightning storm Monday night that burned through brush and timber along California's North Coast, tinder dry from the state's long drought.

The California Division of Forestry reported 121 fires in the state, including 66 in the north coast area. Thirteen more were inland in Northern California, 3 in the Fresno area, 18, including the Mt. Diablo blaze, in the San Francisco Bay Area, and 16 in Southern California.

ANOTHER BIG blaze burned 1,500 acres in the Los Padres National Forest, about 20 miles from the site of the disastrous Santa Barbara fire that destroyed 234 homes last week.

In Alaska, 55 fires, mostly sparked by electrical storms, burned over more than a million acres of tundra and timber, posing a threat to nearly a dozen Eskimo villages with about 800 people. One fire burned within five miles of the Alaska oil pipeline.

Alaskan firefighters were hampered by dense smoke from the fires that dwarfed California's, but which were burning in mostly remote areas. Planes were unable to take off because of poor visibility.

"We are taking precautions around the village of Shungnak," said Bill Moody, of the Bureau of Land Management. "If the fire gets much closer, we will be trying to get some of the older people out who may have respiratory problems."

OTHER SMALL California fires burned in rough terrain among the famed redwood trees north of San Francisco and in the Big Sur country to the south.

The fire on Mt. Diablo, parts of which are a state park, began about 6 p.m. Monday when a lightning storm passed over the area. During the warm night, unruly crowds gathered in the nearby town of Clayton to watch it climb the mountain.

"They went crazy, driving across lawns, acting like a bunch of pigs," said Claude Herron, manager of a market.

"People had a bad time all night. People were trying to get in and buy more beer after closing and threatening everybody. We finally had to call the cops to come and close down the place."

THE MT. DIABLO fire was made more dangerous by shifting winds.

"It was small at first here, but then it busted out on us all at once with the winds," said firefighter Mark Powell, 20. "Pine cones were falling off trees and rolling downhill and chased us away."

Some of the evacuees took time to move livestock out of danger before they left. Others watered down their homes with hoses.

Brother Billy tops Jimmy's earnings

• Billy Carter's public appearances and endorsements will earn him a cool half million dollars this year — more than twice his big brother's salary as President. Money Magazine, in its August issue, said Carter's estimated $500,000 income will be earned by charging $5,000 per public appearance, certified check in advance. In contrast, President Carter earns $200,000 in the White House plus an expense allowance of up to $150,000.

• Actor Alfred Lunt, who with his wife Lynn Fontanne became known as the first family of the American stage, remained critically ill Tuesday at Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago. Lunt, 84, was admitted to the hospital July 20 and underwent bladder surgery the next day. Hospital spokesmen have declined to disclose the specific nature of his ailment. "He is semiconscious and resting comfortably," a hospital spokesman said. Lunt and his wife live near Genesee Depot, Wis. The couple made theatrical history from the 1920s to the 1950s. New York's Globe Theatre was renamed the Lunt-Fontanne in 1958 to honor the famous team.

• Mira Bergen had a good time in New York City and even allowed Michael Block to kiss her good night. But there won't be any marriage. "He just wasn't my type. A bit too hyper for me, and I think he may be caught up a little bit with the publicity he's getting," she said. Block recently put his picture on eight New York billboards, advertising for a wife. He's received more than 2,000 responses including one from Miss Bergen.

Penthouse sweet

by NANCY GOTLER

Jim and Wendy Mydlach's marriage may have its ups and downs, but Tuesday night it started at the top — the 13th floor penthouse of the Arlington Park Hilton where they were married.

"I don't like anything ordinary, anything just like everyone else," the new Mrs. Mydlach, 28, of Des Plaines said after the 7 p.m. ceremony in the same elevator where she met her husband last October.

"We know it's unusual, but we're both sentimental," she said. "I guess that's really why we decided to do it."

DURING THE 15-minute ceremony, the Mydlacks, their best man and matron of honor stood inside the 10-foot wide elevator with 50 guests lining the corridor straining to get a glimpse of them.

The Rev. Robert Jones of the Temple of Learning Church in Evanston performed the ceremony — the first marriage in his three-year ministry — and read a passage from Kahlil Gibran's "The Prophet."

"I'm a personal friend of Jim's and when he asked me to marry him in an elevator it was kind of unexpected," Jones said. "But I don't feel it's offensive at all. I think an elevator makes a nice chapel."

A white runner lined the corridor and elevator floor, and bouquets of pink and white daisies and baby's breath were placed atop columns outside the open elevator doors.

DURING THE RECEPTION at the Hilton, Mydlach, 27, of Santa Monica, Calif., said, "All I know is I have the greatest little girl in the world and I'm going to spoil her rotten."

The Mydlachs plan to live in Des Plaines with Wendy's mother, Frances Siegrist, until September, when they will honeymoon in Hawaii and move to Santa Monica, where Mydlach is a salesman for a novelty company.

The bride and groom's parents said they were "shocked but pleased" when they heard of the wedding plans last month.

"It came as quite a shock, but as long as they're both happy it was all right with us," Lorene Mydlach of Morton Grove, Jim's mother, said.

HER HUSBAND, Stan, agreed.

"It's fantastic. I was surprised when they first told us about it because it's different. But we didn't try to talk them out of it. They're both sentimental and we went along with whatever would make them happy."

The bride wore a long, white organdy dress with a matching hat and the groom wore white slacks, a coral et and pink shirt.

Their matching wedding bands formed an arrow of diamonds.

"Jim and I met on the way down the elevator after a party in the hotel," Mrs. Mydlach said before the prime rib and wedding cake dinner.

"But now," she said, gazing up affectionately at her husband, "we're both on the way up — together."

pies" had been in the store sometime that day. There was a letter from a doctor from another state who wrote of an incident similar to the Corbetts', in which his family was robbed at gunpoint but not murdered.

"I FEEL ALL these people were legitimately trying to help us," Swenson said.

But the police sergeant added that none of the tips led to the eventual arrest of the killers, members of a black gang called the De Mau Maus.

"We were really grateful for the help of the Cook County Sheriff's Dept. We could never have solved it if we had to do it alone," Swenson said. "I think everyone is confident that the murders have been solved and that the proper people were convicted of the crime."

The four victims had been found dead or dying in the pantry of the home, all having been shot at close range with a .30 caliber carbine and a .25 caliber pistol. Although some household items and about $100 in cash were taken, valuable paintings and jewelry were left. Police said there were no signs of forced entry to the home.

More than a year later, in mid-October of 1973, eight members of the De Mau Mau gang were arrested in Chicago and charged in nine murders, including the four in Barrington Hills.

THE DE MAU MAUS, four of whom were convicted for the Corbett murders, were a gang of dishonorably discharged Vietnam War veterans who had met while attending Malcom X College on Chicago's West Side. The nine murders were found to be racially motivated.

"People were uptight for a while after it happened. Of course everyone was scared. But not anymore. Those who were arrested for the murders weren't looking for anyone in particular," Swenson said.

The Corbett home now is owned by Tony Accardo, Jr., son of the Chicago mobster. They were not available for comment.

One neighbor said the Accardos would not discuss the murders even if they were home.

"They knew the history of the house when they bought it," she says. "But they would not appreciate questions about it. They have small children and they don't care for their children to be reminded of it. I don't think they want their children to know."

OTHERS WANT so vehemently to forget that they attempt to suppress discussion or media coverage of the murders. Some Bateman Circle residents even asked the village president to intercede for them — to keep the media from printing reminiscences of that Aug. 5 evening.

While some react violently to the topic, saying no good can come from recalling the murders, others say it could have happened anywhere. The police discuss it as a matter of record.

"People were pretty touchy for about the first year," Swenson said. "But everything's gone back to its normal state. After the first year all the excitement died down. It's amazing how people can block unpleasant things from their minds."

SWENSON, WHO discusses the case easily now, said he had nightmares the first week after the murders. Swenson was the first police officer to respond to the scene of the multiple murders.

"We were shorthanded that night. I think I was the only one on duty," Swenson recalls. "I got a call to respond to the home, but I was under the impression it was a suicide. Until I got there I didn't really know what it was.

"When you think about it, I've seen a lot worse. Any traffic fatality is usually more gruesome than that. There wasn't really all that much blood," Swenson said. "But it was the fact that one person had done this to one other person. That really got to me."

One Bateman Circle resident, who asked not to be named, said "Some people were frightened. They were afraid it would be like the Tate murders — if they did it once they'll do it again.

"People who didn't live here couldn't understand why we stayed. But I guess I'm a fatalist. I feel it could have happened in any neighborhood."

Makarios dead at 63

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Archbishop Makarios, president of the troubled island of Cyprus since it gained independence from Britain in 1960, died early Wednesday following his second heart attack in fourth months. He was 63.

A government spokesman said Makarios, who was to be 64 Aug. 13, died at 5:15 a.m. (10:15 p.m. CDT).

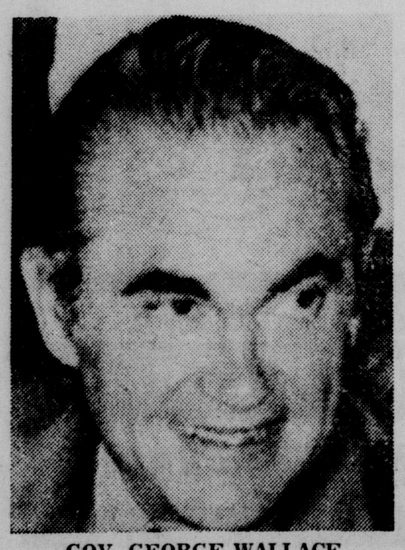
Makarios, who has been president of Cyprus since its independence in August 1960, was taken seriously ill late Tuesday. Officials said he suffered a miocardial infarction, or obstruction of blood flow to the heart, similar to his first heart attack April 3.

All cabinet ministers were called to the archbishop's palace within the walled city of Cyprus.

With the independence of Cyprus on Aug. 16, 1960, Makarios became president and with no opposition, he was declared re-elected to a five-year term in February 1973.

Archbishop Makarios

Makarios has been the major political figure on the island with a population of about 700,000, whose political evolution has been shaped by conflicts between its Greek ethnic majority and Turkish minority. Greek Cypriots have long advocated "enosis," or union with Greece, while Turkish Cypriots have favored partition of the island into Greek and Turkish enclaves.



GOV. GEORGE WALLACE

Wallace seeking divorce: officials

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — George C. Wallace, apparently upset by the travels of his young wife, has decided to seek a divorce after more than six years of marriage, sources close to the crippled governor said.

The sources said Wallace, who had talked privately of the possibility of divorce for more than a year, told his lawyer, Maury D. Smith, to prepare the court papers last month.

The divorce petition, leaked to several news agencies, claims there has been "an irretrievable breakdown of the marriage" between Wallace, 57, and his 38-year-old wife, Cornelia, who was once a professional water skier and who last year admitted tapping her husband's telephone.

IT WAS NOT CLEAR when the divorce papers will be filed, and some friends of the governor speculated he might change his mind, as he reportedly has done several times in the past.

Wallace refused to talk to reporters Tuesday, and his press aide, Elvin Stanton, said he could not comment on the reports. Mrs. Wallace, who was at the Governor's mansion, did not return telephone calls. Smith refused to say whether he had prepared the divorce papers.

Friends of the governor said he increasingly had bten angered by his wife's travels, but had hesitated to seek a divorce both for family and political reasons. Wallace plans to run for the U.S. Senate next year.

MRS. WALLACE has spent less than half her time at the mansion in recent months, friends said, while making trips to Florida, New Orleans and other places. She was photographed water skiing at Cyrpus Gardens, where she once worked.

"She liked to be with younger people," said a friend of Wallace. "The joy of being Alabama's first lady has paled for her."

Wallace has been confined to a wheelchair since he was crippled in an assassination attempt in 1972, less than 17 months after he and Cornelia Wallace were married.

The tapping of Wallace's bedroom telephone was later explained by Mrs. Wallace as an attempt to learn who was spreading "destructive rumors" about her. She said Gerald Wallace, the governor's brother, "spread rumors that I have slept with every state trooper around." Gerald Wallace denied the allegation.

Mob task force formed by county

A task force has been formed to investigate a wave of mob-style executions in the Chicago area during the last two years, Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey said Tuesday. "We anticipate that as we accumulate evidence, we will make use of the grand jury," Carey said. Mob experts have estimated there have been nearly 40 gangland slayings in the area during the past 3½ years. Six murders in the past 10 months have been linked to a mob war for control of the lucrative stolen auto racket. Carey said the investigation, to be headed by Thomas M. Burnham of Carey's office, will also look into the slaying of mob kingpin Sam Giancana, shot to death in his home slightly more than two years ago. The most recent crime syndicate figure to be killed was Sam Annerino, 34, gunned down last week outside a suburban Oak Lawn furniture store. Authorities speculated Annerino succeeded south suburban junk dealer Richard Ferraro, 36, as the mob's director of the stolen car racket. Ferraro dropped out of sight June 13.

A Cook County criminal court judge Tuesday continued to Aug. 23 court action against Leonard Valente, the reputed crime syndicate figure accused of the 1976 bombings of the Arlington Park Theater and LeGourmet restaurant. Valente, 42, appeared Tuesday before Judge William Cousins Jr. along with four other persons accused of running a burglary ring in the West and Northwest suburbs. The five were indicted June 13 by a Cook County grand jury after a lengthy investigation which led authorities to a trail of stolen goods found in Valente's electronic parts supply store in Dolton.

Authorities also found a cache of dynamite and plastic explosives hidden in Valente's store after Valente was implicated in the bombings by informant Louis Almeida, the man who testified against crime syndicate figure Harry Aleman in the trial in which Aleman was acquitted of murdering a Teamsters Union official. The bombings occurred March 9, 1976 at the restaurant, 500 N. Rand Rd., and April 8, 1976 at the theater. No one was injured in either incident but total damage was estimated at $100,000.

NU med students file lawsuit

More than 260 Northwestern University Medical School students filed suit Tuesday charging a recent tuition increase violates previous contractural agreements between the school and the students. The increase, announced in March, raises medical school tuition from $4,350 to $6,855 starting this fall. The lawsuit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, names Northwestern University President Robert Strotz and the board of trustees as defendants. Students contend the increase was unreasonably and unexpectedly imposed. They said other medical schools in Illinois are far less costly.

Maywood cops reach accord

A contract settlement between the village of Maywood and members of the Combined Counties Police Assn. was announced Tuesday, ending a dispute that led to a four-day epidemic of "blue flu" by 38 police officers. The across-the-board pay increase of $1,150 a year and the shortening of the number of years of experience needed to reach top pay will force Chicago's western suburb to increase property or business taxes, Maywood Trustee Harold Jackson said. Jackson said the raises are retroctive to May 1 and that the village board is expected to approve the agreement at a meeting in the next few days.

Man killed in motorcycle crash

A West Chicago man died late Monday from injuries he sustained when he apparently lost control of his motorcycle and struck a median strip on Golf Road in Des Plaines. Norman Noffsinger, 27, of 804 Church Rd., died from head injuries. He hit the median strip after turning west from Wolf Road onto Golf Road.

Big bucks boosted Bilandic bid

Mayor Michael A. Bilandic spent more than $600,000 in the elections for mayor this year, outspending his rivals by nearly 3 to 1, records filed Tuesday with the Cook County clerk's office show. Bilandic spent $629,560 and had a surplus of $194,231, the records show. Bilandic's main opponent in the April 19 Democratic primary, Alderman Roman Pucinski, spent $168,001 and still owed $21,116 as of June 30.

Alderman Dennis Block, the unsuccessful Republidan candidate in the June 7 election, spent $87,384 and reported a surplus of $3,572. A list of contributors to the Michael A. Bilandic for Mayor Committee included many union groups, contractors and prominent lawyers. The largest contribution — $20,000 — came from the Teamsters Volunteers in Politics.

150 treasurers miss filing date

More than 150 state campaign committee treasurers, including those for 15 Illinois House members, failed to meet the latest filing deadline, a State Board of Elections spokesman said Tuesday. Dick Andersen, chief of the board's public disclosure divison, said the numbeer is nearly half again last year's delinquency rate and he blames the increase on a widespead belief the board is out of business. The Illinois Supreme Court has ruled the way the original four-member State Board of Elections was picked is invalid and the legislature has been unable to come up with a new method. It tackles the problem again this fall. Andersen said 156 campaign committee treasurers failed to file annual reports by Monday, as required by law. The reports cover campaign getting and spending between July 1, 1976 and June 30, 1977. That period covers the general election last year. "I'm going to send certified letters immediately telling these treasurers to get their reports in," Andersen said. "Some probably were delayed in the mail. But those that are tardy will have to get them in by Aug. 15 when the board next meets or they will be named publicly."

Thompson certifies insanity law

Gov. James R. Thompsn Tuesday certified into law a bill (S1143) to keep under close scrutiny persons acquitted of crime by reason of insanity. Thompson, in June, told the legislature he would make S1143 law if it went along with his suggesttd changes. The General Assembly did and Thompson, unde a 1970 state constitutional clause, certified the action meets his approval. To protect the rights of defendants, Thompson said, pre-release exams should not be conducted by Department of Mental Health psychiatrists. The governor also said any change in court orders affecting mentally disturbed defendants must follow a hearing. S1143 originally did not contain these provisions. "This measure," Thompson said, "will provide a judicial check against the risk that an unstable person, inclined to commit crimes, will be released from mental treatment facilities."

CANCER DETECTION
HEART ATTACK PREVENTION

A resting electrocardiogram is taken at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. to detect any heart abnormalities.

Of every six people who get cancer today, two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die, one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. (According to American Cancer Society publication '76 Cancer Facts and Figures.)

The health examination services available at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection include all cancer detection procedures recommended by the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division.

Heart Disease accounts for nearly half of all deaths each year. Unlike most Cancer, Heart Attack can be postponed through reducing one's risk factors such as diet, exercise, blood pressure, smoking, etc. Dr. Morris Collen, a well-known specialist in preventive medicine, was quoted in the January, 1977 Issue of FORTUNE "if one has a checkup every year or two at age thirty-five and thereafter, directed at postponable diseases, the mortality rate from those diseases after seven years is approximately 50 percent of what it would have been without exams."

The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a preventive health screening examination designed for three purposes:

1. To establish a health profile for each individual to be used as a baseline for future care.
2. To analyze an individual's risk factors for heart disease and cancer and statistically forecast probable life expectancy and suggest ways it might actually be increased by reducing the risk factors found.
3. Screen for treatable disease. Early detection and prompt treatment increase the probability of a favorable outcome.

This meticulous 3 hour, low cost examination includes a computerized medical history, health risk analysis, physical examination, proctosigmoidoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, over 30 chemical determinations on blood and urine, vision, audiometry, spirometry, glaucoma test, body measurements. Women also receive a pap smear and instruction in breast self-examination. Exercise stress test, 24 hour holter monitor, and echocardiography are available as options.

Give yourself the best protection available today against cancer and heart disease by calling your physician or the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. located at 1000 Grand Canyon Parkway, Hoffman Estates, Illinois (Near Woodfield Mall.) Dist. 59 board wrapup

Special education staff to be hired

Additional special education personnel will be hired by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to reduce the wait for students needing special services.

A full-time speech clinician and nurse as well as a part-time social worker and psychologist will be hired at a cost to the district of between $19,000 and $22,500. The decision was made Monday by the Dist. 59 Board of Education.

The district's special education advisory council, which recommended the increased staffing, told the board that two junior high schools now receive little or no psychological service and one junior high and five elementary schools receive inadequate or no social work services.

Other council recommendations approved by the board include continuing the council for another year with a budget of $3,000; allocating special education personnel, time and money on the basis of need rather than number of students in a school; and having the district's special education director work to improve communication and progress evaluation for parents of children placed in schools outside Dist. 59.

After-school care to continue

After-school child-care programs at Clearmont School in Elk Grove Village and Jay School in Mount Prospect will be continued for the 1977-78 school year.

The Dist. 59 board approved the programs' continuation provided they be totally supported by parent contributions.

Fifty-one children last spring participated in the programs from 3:30 to 6 p.m. weekdays and offered remedial lessons, study groups, quiet game activities, arts and crafts projects, recreational activities and refreshments.

Supt. Roger Bardwell said the program meets the needs of families where both parents work outside the home and children have little supervision between the end of the school day and the dinner hour.

NSSEO budget voted down

The Dist. 59 board voted not to approve the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization's $4.3 million budget for the 1977-78 school year.

Board members and administrators objected to what they see as their exclusion from the budget development process and NSSEO's failure to look critically at the budget and economize where possible.

Expenditures by the special education cooperative, supported by 10 local school districts, will rise 32 per cent in 1977-78. The increase comes mainly from the addition to NSSEO's program of diagnostic services for children with unusual handicaps, the management of Nipper School in Des Plaines and the planned installation of air conditioning at Kirk Center for the handicapped in Palatine.

With five member districts already voting to approve NSSEO's budget and only one more yes vote needed for final passage, cooperative officials are confident the budget will be adopted next month despite Dist. 59's protest.

"The key in what we're doing is to motivate NSSEO to take a look at its own budget and find where some savings can be achieved," Merlyn Swanson, Dist. 59 administrator for educational services, said. "We don't want them to trim programs, but they should demonstrate some kind of economy."

Dist. 59 contributes $250,000 to NSSEO and has 100 students enrolled in the cooperative's programs, he said. The state reimburses the district for half its costs.

Hearings planned on household limit

Arlington Heights plan commissioners will hold hearings on whether to change zoning laws to prohibit more than two unrelated persons from living together.

The village's current ordinance allowing as many as three unrelated persons to live together has come under fire from the Virginia Terrace Homeowners Assn., which recently was formed because of disturbances in the vicinity of 1330 N. Chicago Ave. where three 19-year-old youths reportedly rent a house.

"We don't have anything personal against these boys but it is a clash of lifestyles in the heart of a single-family neighborhood," David Baxter, of 1326 N. Chicago Ave., said.

Baxter told the Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night that loud parties and music at the house often keep neighbors awake. "It's not just on weekends," he said.

Baxter called the current ordinance outdated and unresponsive to the needs of the area. A petition with the signatures of 53 residents who favor changing the ordinance was presented to village officials.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said that rulings in recent years by the U.S. and Illinois supreme courts indicate a law prohibiting more than two unrelated persons from living together is constitutional.

The board sent the matter to the plan commission for public hearings.

Taxi fare review postponed

The village board has postponed until Aug. 15 its consideration of a request for a 15 per cent increase in taxi fares.

The fare increase requested by Robert Birks, owner of the Arlington City Cab Co., asks permission to charge $1.50 for the first mile of a ride, 80 cents for each additional mile and $8 per hour for waiting time.

The board delayed making a decision because Trustee Alfred J. Barboro said the public health and safety committee is considering changing the village ordinances to allow unlimited competition among taxicab companies and deregulation of taxicab rates.

Birks and Chuck Kolls, owner of Arlington Best Cab Co., have opposed those proposals.

Pal-Grove denied expansion

Pal-Grove Shopping Center, Palatine Road and Windsor Drive in Arlington Heights, will not be allowed to expand because of continuing problems with debris and health code violations.

The village board Monday voted 5 to 3 to deny a request from the owners of the shopping center to construct an additional building at the center.

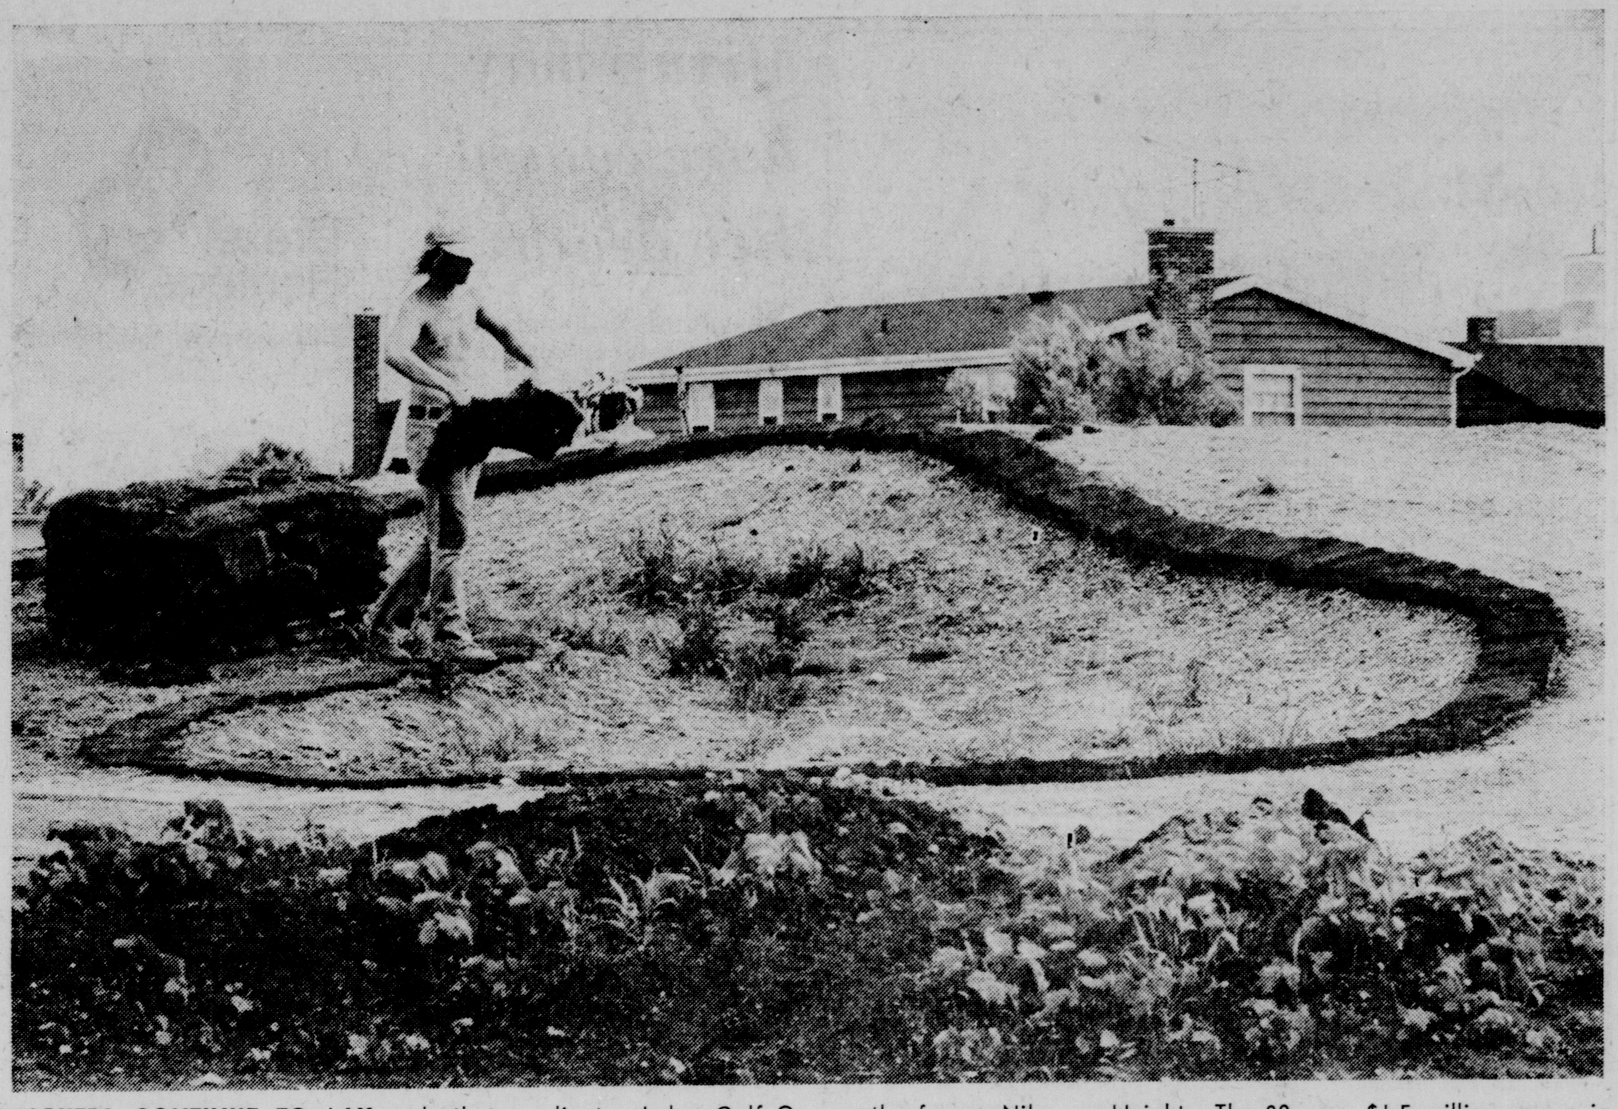
The owners said they have improved debris problems in the past two months but several trustees disagreed.

"It shows damn poor management," Trustee O.V. Anderson said.

"These are the same problems they had in 1971 when the public health and safety committee I was on was looking into the situation," Trustee Ralph Clarbour said.

Village Pres. Jamts T. Ryan argued in favor of the request.

"I think this is hitting someone over the head far harder than you have to," he said.



WORKERS CONTINUE TO LAY sod that next summer will be playable greens at Arlington Lakes Golf Course, the former Nike base at Wilke and Central roads, Arlington Heights. The 80-acre, $1.5 million course is expected to open next Juy.

Cummins must resign Dist. 59 job

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

Leah Cummins has been given until Nov. 1 to resign her position as coordinator of community relations for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 or be fired, board of education member Judith Zanca said Tuesday.

The decision was made late Monday during an hour-long closed session of the Dist. 59 Board. No public action was taken on the question because Dist. 59 attorney Frank Hines advised the board it would be easier for Mrs. Cummins to find another job if she were still employed.

Unsatisfactory job performance and the fact her job is no longer needed were the reasons one board member cited for giving Mrs. Cummins notice.

DIST. 59 IS THE only Northwest suburban elementary school district that has a full-time public relations director. Employed by the district since 1967, Mrs. Cummins publishes district newsletters, surveys residents on various issues and works with school district committees. Her salary is $17,525.

Mrs. Zanca Tuesday called Mrs. Cummins' dismissal "illogical" and "vindictive" and charged that the board was punishing her for the role she played in supporting the formation of an Elk Grove Township unit school district.

Mrs. Cummins was not available for comment Tuesday.

A member of the Committee of 10 Dist. 59 residents who filed a petition seeking formation of the unit district, Mrs. Cummins publicly debated and circulated written information in favor of the school reorganization move.

DEFEATED BY better than a 2-to-1 margin in a referendum last April, the unit district would have combined 21 Dist. 59 elementary and junior high schools with High School Dist. 214's Elk Grove High school in Elk Grove Village and Forest View High School in Arlintgon Heights. Mrs. Cummins formerly was a member of the Dist. 214 Board of Education, serving six years.

"Leah was doing her job by promoting the unit district and now they (the four unit district opponents elected to the board in April) are punishing her for it," Mrs. Zanca said. "I can't prove it, but I'm sure getting Leah out was one of their campaign promises."

She said Mrs. Cummins had a "very good track record" with the district and that especially now her community relations expertise is needed by Dist. 59.

Board Pres. Harold Harvey declined to comment on Mrs. Zanca's charges.

two women Saturday was Mike Raimondi, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center located in North School immediately south of Miss Rau's house.

"At first they were reluctant to talk to me. They felt their eviction was unjust," Raimondi said.

"THEY TOLD ME that they had legal counsel but no housing, so I went and called a social worker. When I went back they said they thought they had a place to go for the weekend," Raimondi said.

He has not heard from them since.

The two women took only two shopping bags filled mostly with clothes, Raimondi said.

Woman injured in auto collision

An Arlington Heights woman was hurt Tuesday night when the car in which she was riding collided with another auto at Rand Road and Kennicott Avenue.

Susan M. Fischer, 19, of 902 Alleghany Dr., Arlington Heights, was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, with cuts on her back, police said. A hospital spokesman late Tuesday said Mrs. Fischer was in fair condition.

The Fischer car was traveling north on Rand Road with her husband Edward when he attempted to turn left at Kennicott Avenue and was struck by a south bound auto driven by Carol S. Doland, of Long Grove, who escaped injury.

Edward Fischer, who also escaped injury, was ticketed for failing to yield right of way while making a turn.

Marriott kidnap plot foiled; nab 2

The FBI Tuesday arrested a U.S. park policeman who was "tired of being a poor cop," and his brother, on charges they planned to kidnap motel tycoon J. Willard Marriott or Marriott's wife for $500,000 ransom. The FBI accused Paul D. Shepherd, described as a "personable" Park police private of 14 years' service, and his brother, Bill Shepherd, of unwittingly conspiring with an undercover FBI agent to kidnap Marriott or his wife from their Washington home Tuesday morning. Marriott is board chairman of the Marriott Corp., which operates a nationwide chain of motels and restaurants. Paul Shepherd was arrested in Superior Court in Washington when he reported for duty as a court guard. Bill Shepherd was arrested in the rural Maryland country where he works as a school maintenance man. They were charged with violating federal kidnaping statutes which carry maximum penalties of life in prison.

'Sam' has next move: N.Y. cops

With 300 officers working full-time on the hunt for the night stalking killer known as "Son of Sam," police conceded Tuesday the next move was up to the gunman who has already slain six persons and wounded seven others. "The ball is in his court," said Frank McLoughlin, deputy police commissioner for public information. "He decides what to do." McLoughlin said police had "nothing fresh" in their search for the gunman whose most recent attack Sunday left 20-year-old Stacy Moskowitz fatally wounded and her date, Robert Violante, nearly blind. At a news conference at Kings County Hospital, Violante's father, Pasquale, urged the killer to give himself up and rejected the notion of vigilante reprisals. "I wasn't brought up that way," he said.

House OKs abortion money ban

The House voted Tuesday night to continue for another year a ban on the use of federal money to perform abortions for women n welfare except to save the life of the mother. By a vote of 238 to 182 it offered that position to the Senate as a compromise, in an effort to break a stalemate between the House and Senate on the abortion issue. It is now up to the Senate whether or not to accept it. The Senate has already once rejected the same formula 33-65.

LBJ's personal papers to be probed

Lyndon B. Johnson's personal papers concerning his 1948 election to the U.S. Senate will be opened for public inspection for the first time Wednesday, the director of the LBJ Library said Tuesday. A South Texas election official has contended in a series of recent interviews that Johnson stole the 1948 Democratic nomination from former Gov. Coke Stevenson. Luis Salas of Jim Wells County said he certified 202 fictitious votes for Johnson at the instruction of George B. Parr. Johnson eventually won the race by 87 votes, and the race became a significant milestone in his rise to the presidency. Harry Middleton, director of the LBJ Library, said the news media will be permitted to inspect approximately 5,000 pages of Johnson's personal papers beginning at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Escape to Berlin fails—2 men killed

Two men trying to escape to West Germany in a truck died in a hail of Communist gunfire and six others failed in a daring attempt to leap from a train and scale a fence to freedom in West Berlin, officials said Tuesday. The Bavarian Ministry of Interior said Western observers at the Rudolphstein border crossing saw two men in a truck race past the East German police checkpoint Monday night and try to crash through the remaining barriers to West Germany. Communist soldiers raked the vehicle with submachine fire, officials said. The truck crashed into a concrete barrier with such force the cab sheared off and the motor burst from the chassis. Bavarian officials said both men apparently died in the crash. In Berlin, six men tried to escape from a train by pulling the emergency brake cord on the Schwerin-East Berlin express at a point where it parrellels a wire fence separating Communist territory from West Berlin. The train stopped, but other passengers pulled them back into the train.

S. Africa cops to match violence

South Africa's top police officials, warning they had run out of patience with black demonstrators, said Tuesday violence would be met with violence and mass arrests. Riot police carrying shotguns, automatic weapons and batons patrolled the tense township of Soweto, where three blacks have been shot to death since Friday. They used dogs and a round of birdshot Tuesday to break up stone-throwing crowds near the suburb of Dube. Maj. Gen. Dawid Kriel, who controls police antiriot operations nationwide, said police had issued repeated warnings to the population of Soweto and if calm did not return, his men would start making "mass arrests."

Mixup may have caused five deaths

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — The top official of the Suburban General Hospital said Tuesday five deaths could have been caused by a mixup of lines carrying oxygen and nitrous oxide into a new emergency room.

It was disclosed Monday that emergency room patients at the hospital in nearby Norriton Township accidentally received the nitrous oxide, commonly known as "laughing gas," instead of oxygen during a seven-month period from the time the new emergency room opened last December until the mixup in lines was discovered July 6.

Hospital officials said that 300 of the 9,000 persons brought into the new emergency room since it opened last Dec. 15 had been scheduled to receive oxygen during that period.

THERE WERE 35 emergency room deaths during that seven month span.

William Walkup, president of the board of directors of the hospital, said that no more than five persons could have died from the mixup, which he blamed on a construction error.

"I don't imagine the figure going any higher than five," Walkup said. "I'm not expecting any surprises."

The mixup was discovered by Dr. Leonard Becker, chief anesthesiologist, when he noticed a patient who was supposed to be receiving oxygen, turning blue. Becker put the mask to his face and discovered the gas was nitrous oxide.

THE HOSPITAL immediately shut off the gases coming from pipes and tubes extending from two tanks outside the building and switched to portable units.

The mixup was disclosed by an official of the state's Catastrophic Loss Fund, an insurance pool that covers medical facilities.

A team of state Health Department officials immediately began an investigation.

Asked about the delay in making the discovery public, Nathan Wolf, a vice president of the board, said, "We were trying to get all the available information and notify the families. Don't forget, we had 9,000 names to go through."

DR. GEORGE WOLF, another anesthesiologist at the hospital who was asked why it took seven months to discover the error, said, "The majority brought into the emergency room don't require a high concentration of nitrous oxide or oxygen.

"If a patient is administered nitrous oxide when he needs oxygen, it will have no effect other than the fact he won't be getting any more oxygen."

Walkup said the new hospital wing that included the emergency room was buit under the general contractorship of Nason and Cullen Inc. of nearby Rosemont, Pa., a firm he described as "very, very reliable."

"We're not trying to point the finger at anybody nor is anyone trying to point the finger at us," he said.

'Garbage pile a symptom of illness'

An organic brain dysfunction, or maybe severe schizophrenia?

There is no simple clinical explanation for the kind of behavior that would let 16 years of garbage pile up inside a house, Dr. Truman Esau, medical director of Old Orchard Psychiatric Hospital, Skokie, said Tuesday.

"Several things could come into play," Dr. Esau said when asked for a possible explanation of what might have caused Shirley Bright, 50, and her mother, Phoebe Mollenkamp, 75, to let the garbage stack up three feet inside their rented house at 502 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. "There might be a severe brain problem that would prevent normal functions. It is also possible that in a case of chronic, severe schizophrenia an individual would be so preoccupied as to not be aware of the problem," he said.

There are cases of people who have a "collection fettish" and who cannot bring themselves to throw anything away, said Dr. Esau.

Psychiatric files also contain cases of persons who will collect lint, or pieces of thread in a room.

But such behavior most often tends to be a symptom of mental illness rather than the disorder itself, Dr. Esau said.

"You may see this kind of symptom but it doesn't always end up in this kind of extreme example," he said.

Dr. Esau was unable to discern any connection between the garbage pile discovered in Arlington Heights' Monday and a similar mess uncovered at a Des Plaines apartment in 1974.

CIA admits to sex control tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA Tuesday released top secret documents showing its mind and behavior control experiments included attempts at "alteration of sex patterns" and drug tests on college students.

Responding to Freedom of Information Act requests, the agency made available 415 heavily censored pages from a pile of documents on the experiments it conducted on willing and unwitting Americans in the 1950s and '60s.

CIA Director Stansfield Turner said the documents on the controversial projects, already investigated by Senate committees on the basis of partial evidence, were discovered recently in "retired archives filed under financial accounts."

TURNER AND a panel of former CIA experts in the behavior projects were to testify today at Senate hearings on the subject.

General outlines of the discontinued mind and behavior control projects — run under the codenames MKULTRA, MKDELTA, Artichoke and Bluebird — came to light in earlier investigations.

But the material released Tuesday gave the first indication of the scope and cost of the operation. It showed costs might have run into the tens of millions of dollars, with sums of up to $100,000 paid to subcontracting institutions, hospitals, doctors, psychiatrists, hypnotists and other experts assigned to carry out the mind bending experiments.

The program, begun in the early Cold War years as an effort to counteract alleged Soviet and Chinese brainwashing techniques, tapered off through the 1960s and was terminated in 1973.

NAMES OF THE institutions and individuals were blacked out in copies supplied to reporters. They were reported to include some prominent experts and prestigious hospitals, some of them perhaps unaware they were working in projects funded by CIA-controlled "front" organizations.

One uncensored name, however, was that of Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, former chief of the agency's chemical and scientific division, who ran MKULTRA and similar projects for many years. He was last reported in retirement abroad.

One "Memorandum for the Record," written by Gottlieb and dated June 9, 1953, said "Dr. (censored) at his two facilities" was working on LSD "and related materials."

It said emphasis would be placed on translating basic data "into operationally pertinent material" covering such areas as "alteration of sex patterns," "disturbance of memory" and "discrediting by aberrant behavior."

GOTTLIEB SAID the cost of the project "will not exceed $86,853 for the period from July 5, 1953, to July 4, 1954."

The documents did not say what came of these experiments or what was meant by "alteration of sex patterns," but Gottlieb did say results would be put into "an operational field manual."

The earlier congressional investigations showed that drug and mind control experiments were carried out both on volunteers and on unwitting subjects, including servicemen, prisoners, drug addicts.

Powers crashed helicopter to avoid killing boys: cops

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Francis Gary Powers may have deliberately nosed his floundering helicopter into a dive to avoid swooping into a baseball diamond where a dozen boys were playing, a police report disclosed Tuesday.

The former U2 spy plane pilot and television cameraman George Spears, a former WGN employe in Chicago, were killed Monday when the Bell Ranger "telecopter" smashed into an empty field 50 yards short of the playground.

Police Sgt. Dennis Ruegsegger said the boys told investigators the craft was coming in toward Van Nuys airport on a line leading directly at the baseball diamond when it suddenly nosed down and plunged into the ground.

National Safety Transportation Board experts removed the pieces of wreckage to a hangar at Van Nuys airport in an attempt to discover the original mechanical trouble which, according to some witnesses, shook the $500,000 craft so violently the tail rotor fell off.

Powers, who would have been 43 this month, and Spears, 43, were returning from covering the latest brush fire in the Santa Barbara area. Powers flew the craft as a traffic reporter for TV station KNBC and also flew aerial pictorial assignments.

BURIAL VAULT workers returned to their jobs Tuesday at American Wilbert Vault Corp. in Des Plaines, after ending a 7½-week strike. Two workers load completed vaults onto delivery trucks which then set out to ease the backlog of burials which occurred during the strike.

'Vault workers' strike hard on all'

by DIANE GRANAT

"To me this is just a job. I don't think about death."

That was how Frank Fritch viewed his return to work Tuesday at the American Wilbert Vault Co. in Des Plaines after a 7½-week burial vault workers strike ended the night before.

For Fritch, the grief of many families whose relatives were not buried because of the vault shortage did not seem much worse than the hardship his own family endured while he was on strike.

"I KNOW IT'S hard on some people, especially when it's their kin," said Fritch, who operates a cement truck at the vault works. "But this is my bread and butter, this job here."

A co-worker, Bill Mertz, agreed he felt bad about the delay of nearly 2,000 burials in the Chicago area. "But I can't help that, because I had to fight for what I needed," Mertz said.

About 120 workers in Teamsters Local 786 resumed their jobs Tuesday at four area firms after ratifying a new contract Monday that gives them a 7 per cent raise from the old hourly wages of $7.66 for vault workers and $7.76 for truck drivers.

At American Wilbert, truck drivers immediately began delivering the vaults sitting in storage during the strike. The company had a stock of about 375 vaults, sealed boxes which enclose caskets, waiting to be distributed, said Robert Pelinski, plant manager.

WHILE FUNERAL home and cemetery officials said they expect to finish burying all the stored bodies within two weeks, Pelinski estimated it might take closer to three weeks to relieve the backlog.

"We can't just go and dump a whole load (of vaults) and say, 'Here they are,'" Pelinski said. "The funeral directors would be scratching their heads and the cemetery directors would be tearing their hair out."

Pelinski said the vault deliveries must be coordinated with the schedules of the cemeteries and funeral homes, as well as the plans of families expecting to hold graveside services.

At some cemeteries, such as Randhill in Palatine, employes said there is not a huge rush to complete the postponed burials.

Herschel Auerbach, executive vice president of Randhill, said about 95 per cent of the families using the cemetery during the vault shortage chose to use cement grave liners, which are less resistent to decomposition than the sealed vaults.

The delayed burials will be scheduled according to the order in which the deaths occurred, cemetery officials said.

An improvement in school buses

School bus accidents are dangerous, traumatic events for children, police, parents and school bus companies.

With an eye toward cutting down on the most common types of injuries which result from such accidents — the banged up noses and teeth caused when children hit the metal backs of the seat in front of them — the Illinois legislature several years ago passed a law requiring padding on seats on new school buses.

The law affected all buses built after 1974. Many school children are riding in pre-1974 buses with unprotected seat backs.

Ritzenthaler Bus Lines has taken an important step toward increasing safety in the vehicles it uses in Lake County. The company and the school districts it serves in the Cook County portion of the Northwest suburbs should copy the Lake County example.

In addition, other area bus companies and the school districts which run their own buses who have not upgraded older buses ought to consider copying Ritzenthaler's action.

Of the 70 buses Ritzenthaler uses to serve 12 Lake County School districts, including Buffalo Grove-Long Grove Dist. 96 and High School Dist. 125, one-third are pre-1974. All 23 such buses will have padding installed on their seatbacks this fall, with school districts sharing the cost of materials and Ritzenthaler paying for the installation.

The decision to upgrade the older buses came after 32 children from a Libertyville school returning from a field trip were injured in a bus-car accident. Most of the injuries to the children were the result of their being flung forward onto the hard seat-backs.

Ritzenthaler officials have said they will wait until local schools express an interest before undertaking a similar project in the buses that serve Cook County.

Local school officials should heed that statement and work with their bus companies to provide maximum safety for the children who ride school buses.

Losing a status symbol

Those Rolling Meadows garbage trucks have been a symbol through the years.

They were the best, or at least many considered them the best. They were made by Mercedes Benz, and everybody knows that if you own a Mercedes you've got to be doing all right.

And in fact Rolling Meadows was doing just fine. The city was in the enviable financial position of being able to pay cash for many of its purchases. Sales tax revenue from new businesses, the Western Electric headquarters and other office complexes sent revenues flowing into city hall. For almost five years, revenues exceeded expectations and the surplus grew.

City officials bought a new city hall, offered garbage service free of charge, abated one tax after another. The residents of Rolling Meadows were on easy street for awhile.

But the situation changed. The cost of running government began to climb and the revenues didn't keep up.

At the same time, the trucks began to wear out. Last week, city officials admitted it — the trucks will have to go and with them possibly the free garbage service.

Time finally caught up with Rolling Meadows. It always does sooner or later.

Ooohhh . . .Ahhh . . . Ughhh . . .Ooohhh . . .

Jim Bishop

Big kids like big toys. Frankie Yale (nee Francisco Uale) wanted an armored car. He owned a nice place — Brooklyn. His boys were all over the borough, like cockroaches. Money came in on waves, like Coney Island.

I don't know where Frankie had his car built. Nick Glad used to make them in the Bronx. When the fenders, sides and top had been steel plated, Nick used to hit it with bursts from a machine gun to locate leaks.

Yale knew that people were trying to kill him. It kept him close to his big white brick house. The car, though — that made a difference. It freed Mr. Yale so that he could move among the peasants who had made him rich.

THE HEAP WEIGHED five tons and got two miles to the gallon. It had no air conditioning. He rolled the window down. The bullets whistled in so fast they slammed Frankie across the front seat.

His mob gave him the greatest funeral ever. Mr. Yale, fat and puffy, was inside a solid silver casket. In one hand was a gold rosary with which to con the keepers at the pearly gates. The other clasped gray suede gloves. It was July, but Frankie thought gloves were sporty.

He had two widows in the funeral parlor. They sobbed and glared at each other. Maria was the mother of his two daughters. Luceida was 25 years younger. Pure dynamite. She also cried louder.

The casket cost $15,000. Flowers came to $37,000. Little Augie Pisano, a business associate, said it was bigger than Lincoln's funeral. All the boys wore dinner jackets and black ties. Ten of them carried the casket to the hearse and four sustained hernias.

THE CORTEGE RAMBLED through the Brooklyn streets five miles long. The first 25 cars were filled with flowers. One piece was smaller than a bungalow and showed a clock with the hands set in violets at 4:10. That was the exact moment Mr. Yale decided he needed a little air, not a little aerating.

A 10-foot floral fishing pole had a loose ribbon. It said: "We'll see Them, Kid." A 20-foot cross of lilies was too big and stood in the sun on the roof of the funeral parlor. All of which were signs of affection sent by saloon keepers after solicitation by Frankie's mob.

A lieutenant told the funeral director that he would not be allowed to hide a solid silver casket inside a hearse. He called the carpenters union on the back of a convertible. Maria and the little ones rode in the first car. "On account of respect," one mug told the press.

Luceida rode two cars back. Little Augie, who counted himself as Frankie's heir, rode with her. The others rode according to rank. It was a hot day, but nobody rolled a window down.

THE MASS WAS at St. Rosalia's. Some of the boys five miles back were in new patent leather shoes and had to take cabs to get to the front of the line. Frankie's soul was handed over to God, where, presumably, he could enumerate all the noble things he had done.

Slowly, the cortege moved three miles to Holy Cross. The boys blocked the gates, and allowed exactly 112 persons inside. These were permitted to call themselves mourners. Some wept bitterly as that solid silver coffin was consigned to a damp hole.

"Charity." That's what the funeral director told everybody Frankie Yale had. It's a good word. He never ordered anybody killed unless he disagreed with Frankie. Or crossed him. Or became ambitious. Or tried to hold out a little. Or forgot to laugh at Frankie's jokes.

He even sent one of his best kids, Alphonse Capone, to Chicago to irritate Johnny Torrio. On another occasion he sent a ton of coal and a Christmas basket to the widow of one of his hit men who got hit. "Charity." Yale took it from everybody.

THERE WAS A time of silence in the streets of Brooklyn after Frankie started the big sleep. Then Maria asked for an accounting of her husband's estate. Everybody knew that Mr. Yale didn't believe in banks any more than he believed in closed windows.

There were millions of dollars — but where? The loyal ones almost tore the brick house down looking for the money. It was not found. Frankie left a $3,000 diamond ring, a diamond belt buckle worth $2,500 and $2,000 in cash found in the glove compartment of the car.

Maria got it. Luceida got lotsa luck. Maria found a job in a clothing factory to support the girls. One of the reporters wrote that the funeral reeked of good taste.

OSHA reform cuts good and bad

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

In Washington

Any time the so-called efficiency experts are turned loose, in government or in private industry, there is a risk they will cut into vital organs as well as bureaucratic fat.

The dangers of over-enthusiasm are vividly illustrated by proposals of several top White House officials for "reforming" the troubled Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

OSHA, a part of the Labor Department, is a sitting duck for the boys with the long knives. Since its creation in 1970, it has become the most hated agency in the federal government, a horrible case study in superfluous paperwork, nit-picking regulations and mindless harassment of the private business community.

CREATED BY Congress to insure a safe and healthful work place for America's employes, OSHA became the scourge of small businessmen. All but ignoring major environmental health problems, the agency focused its energies on drafting and enforcing an enormous array of detailed, picayune safety regulations that drove businessmen to distraction.

President Carter correctly decided, shortly after his inauguration, that OSHA was a prime target for regulatory reform. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and the new agency director, Dr. Eula Bingham, wholeheartedly agreed and set out to clear away the red tape.

But as Marshall and Bingham started shifting OSHA's focus away from petty safety standards and towards major hazards, some of Carter's efficiency experts decided to go farther.

In a May 27 memo to the president, Budget Director Bert Lance, chief economics adviser Charles Schultze and domestic affairs adviser Stuart Eizenstat urged Carter to consider "totally eliminating most safety regulations."

INSTEAD OF attempting to define what constitutes a safe working environment, these officials said, OSHA and the rest of the government should make it more costly for business to operate unsafely — 'for example, an improved worker's compensation program or economic penalties tied to the injury rate."

The Lance-Schultze-Eizenstat memo took Marshall and Bingham completely by surprise. Labor Department officials say that both the secretary and the OSHA director vehemently disagree with the suggestion that all work safety regulations be abandoned.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the Senate Human Resources Committee and principal author of the original OSHA legislation, has fired off a blistering letter to Carter protesting the thrust of the "reform" proposal.

"I am outraged," he said, "at the suggestion that we let the compensation of injured workers be the only means of encouraging workplace safety. The suggestion that we do nothing to protect workers, and only compensate them and their families after they have been killed or maimtd in our factories and shops, is a totally unacceptable policy for a nation which prides itself on its commitment to human rights."

WILLIAMS SAID he is all in favor of increasing worker's compensation benefits and adopting other economic incentives to encourage safer working conditions. Both he and Marshall vow to resist any move to eliminate preventive safety regulations.

They may have a tough fight on their hands. Although an aide to Marshall expressed confidence that Carter will side with his Labor Secretary, the president — in his Yazoo City, Miss. town meeting — appeared to adopt the opposite view.

Since an inter-agency task force will not complete its review of OSHA until March 1978, the argument is unlikely to be settled anytime soon. But it will be a revealing test of the administration's approach to regulatory reform.

Many issues with Cuba

We have recently read of the Midwest businessmen and their wives who were wined and dined by the Castro Regime. As a result of their visit, we hear many rumors about lifting of the trade embargo against Cuba. It appears as though government officials have sanctioned the dissemination of this rumor to the press as well as officialdom in Washington. Several members of the State Department indicate that the embargo can be lifted by the President without the consent of Congress.

There were no far-reaching preconditions for normalizing U.S.-Cuba relations other than reuniting divided Cuban-American families who want to visit relatives, and progress to resolve U.S. property claims. I would hope that our government would include far-reaching preconditions such as the demand that Castro end the repression of human rights. It is estimated that he has incarcerated thousands of political prisoners. Another demand should be the end to the export of revolution in the Western Hemisphere and Africa.

Cuba has in excess of 30,000 troops in Africa. This is extremely costly to a regime that caused its country to become bankrupt. The money used to support troops in foreign lands could be used to provide food and medicine to the Cuban people. They are deprived of the basic necessities of life in order to support the revolutionary aims of Castro.

I'm convinced the Soviets and Castro would like to see the embargo lifted and massive dollar credits from the U.S. and the World Bank provided Cuba. It takes the financial pressure off the Soviet Union and the Soviet bloc nations. Does this mean tax dollars to subsidize Castro's regime.?

In the months ahead, it will be interesting to observe the direction and attitude of our government toward Cuba. Our government's attitude will be greatly influenced by those companies sending representatives to Cuba since they will put pressure on Congress and the media to encourage lifting the embargo. Let's hope that the profit motive isn't placed before the principles of human rights. In the eyes of many who are denied basic human freedoms, we remain the beacon of liberty and hope.

Express your opinion to your representative and to the president concerning this topic. There are many economic, political and ethical issues involved in our relationship to Castro's bankrupt, oppressive regime.

He hits abortion

Some thoughts for those of you who consider abortion as strictly one sided — namely the woman's right and not the rights of the unborn child:

On March 2, 1977 at 10:15 p.m. in Westminster Community Hospital in Orange City, California, a 2½ pound baby girl just over 15" in height and at an age between 7 and 8 months was aborted through a salt saline abortion by a "Doctor Waddill" Herr Doctor Waddill when informed that the planned for dead fetus had survived his efforts and been born alive made great speed to the "hospital" and proceeded to leave nothing further to chance. He ordered all personnel to leave the nursery and then was observed by a staff pediatrician choking the baby who died, as Doctor Waddill and the potential "mother" had prior decreed, at 11:15 p.m.

Dr. Waddill had so beautifully "upheld" his proftssion's motto to protect and uphold life twice — first through the act of ending an unborn life in abortion and then through the use of infanticide. Don't complain about quality of life when we allow an abortion mentality like this to flourish around us. We must speak out — this type of atrocity is getting closer and closer to home for all of us. In Nazi Germany nobody spoke loud and clear enough and we all know the horrible results that a lack of respect for life had in that country. You can't have your cake and eat it too. You either believe in and support the sanctity and worth of every human life whether it is 7 months within the mother or 95 years after birth; whether it is convenient or inconvenient; a welfare child or the child of a well to do family; or you don't. If you don't, then expect the consequences to touch you also as it already is in a society showing a growing disregard for all human rights, because of the growing lack of respect of the most vital of all human rights — life.

Bone-picking Thompson closet skeletons

Steve Brown

From our Springfield bureau

One of Gov. James R. Thompson's young aides was leaning against the fowl exhibit fence at a county fair the other night when a passer-by walked up and said, "ducks."

The normally unflappable aide dropped to the ground, nervously hugging Mother Earth like a new found security blanket.

"I didn't say 'duck,' I said 'ducks.' There behind you, the duck pen," the passer-by said, slightly embarrassed by the commotion.

"SO MUCH HAS BEEN happening lately. I do that automatically now. We are thinking of replacing the cardinal with this creature and making it the official state bird," the somewhat chagrined aide said, picking the sawdust from his ears and knocking the hay off his britches.

Indeed, the last few weeks have been a little rocky for Thompson and his merry band. Skeletons have been hopping out of the closets of new appointees before their names dry on the payroll ledger.

The mood is understandable but not forgiveable. There have been hints of improper campaign contributions, patronage workers put in jobs where they clearly did not belong and other appointees with mistakes in their background. All of the developments have not impressed Thompson or his deputies.

"There have been problems with the "system." one aide said. He didn't mean the "system" that runs the government, that has been humming along at its bureaucratic best. The "system" in this case is that process whereby skeletons and other miscellaneous faux pax are eliminated before doing damage, a 20th century "get the dirt out from under the carpet before the cleaning lady makes the round" technique.

THE AIDE WITH the eloquent gift for understatement was right on the mark. But the problem, which usually bothers all administration, has less place in a Thompson operation.

The reason seems simple, but maybe the governor and his top aides need a reminder. Thompson and his chief aides need only to remember from whence they came and they should be able to solve most of the current dilemmas.

Thompson already has sprinkled his administration with a liberal dose of his competent cronies from the corruption-fighting U.S. attorney's office in Chicago.

BACK THEN THEY were used to investigating the bejesus out of everyone at the bat of an eye. Seldom did a witness or suspect get through the mill without Big Jim knowing all. Legend and the conviction rate bears testimony to that.

Maybe the "heady power" of state government and the glittering bright lights of this capital city have made them forget this trait.

There are fresh signs that they have gotten the stars out of their eyes and shaken off the stage fright. Thompson, still reeling from the first major round of negative reviews, has ordered his old comrade Tyrone Fahner over from the Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement to begin making background checks on everyone who steps through the door looking to put a hand in the administration's pocket.

FAHNER'S INVESTIGATORS, some plucked from various federal crime fighting agencies in the north, will be expected to scour public and private records so even the hint of a black mark on an appointee's record will be known.

The governor has labeled the situation a "sad state of affairs," but government at the state level is no sadder than government at the federal level. Thompson has no excuse for not knowing this.

The new background checks should help eliminate the string of embarrassments. More important, it should represent another step toward bringing better people into state government.

The governor is right when he says he cannot know all of the 60,000 persons under his command, but a little peeking into the closets should help him know a lot more than he does now.

Teng's return to power to ease Carter-China role

by JOSEPH C. HARSCH

The return of Teng Hsiao-ping to high place in the councils of government in Peking should ease at least one of President Jimmy Carter's foreign policy problems in Washington.

Carter has been under pressure to break diplomatic relations with the refugee Chinese government on Taiwan in order to open diplomatic relations with the mainland Chinese government in Peking.

But to take this step would cost Carter political capital at home.

TAIWAN HAS BECOME a prosperous and integral member of the Western economic community. Taiwan has been loyal to the American attachment. It would be ungracious, ungrateful, and in many American eyes downright indecent for the United States to cut Taiwan adrift at this stage in history.

Besides, Carter has in hand other foreign policy projects with high political price tags on them. He wants a new Panama Canal treaty. This will be unpopular in the Southwest. He is moving toward normalization of relations with Cuba. This offends the Cuban exiles in Florida. And, above all, he wants a Middle East settlement that can only be had by such pressure on Israel as will bring distress and resentment in the American Jewish community.

Carter is ahead of the game in political credit right now but he cannot afford to offend the conservatives of the Southwest, the Cubans in Florida, the friends of Taiwan and a majority of the Jewish community — all at the same time. No prudent politician would take on that much disapproval at once. So what can most easily wait for a while?

A MAJOR ARGUMENT by those favoring full diplomatic relations with Peking is that in the absence of such action China might grow impatient with Washington and renew friendly relations with Moscow.

Well, is this a really serious possibility? I think not. The conflicts of national interests between Moscow and and Peking are enormous. China claims large stretches of land now occupied by the Soviet Union. And the Soviet Union is pursuing a policy of power encirclement of China. It is even more unlikely with the consolidation of the "antiradical" faction in Peking.

The return of Teng to high place has to mean the final success of the "antiradical" faction in the post-Mao struggle over the succession. The radicals have disappeared. Teng was the protege of Chou En-lai, the great pragmatist in Chinese affairs. Teng was famous during his earlier period in power for his interest in the efficient development of Chinese industry.

There was another important difference of opinion between Teng and the radicals. He wanted to modernize the Chinese Army. They wanted emphasis on its ideological purity. Teng was the one who said he didn't care what color the cat so long as it caught mice.

SO THE RETURN of Teng must mean that the struggle over the succession has been settled in favor of the practical men, rather than in favor of the ideologues. It presumably means the introduction of incentives to the Chinese economic system, which in turn probably will mean the resumption of economic growth. It means a policy of reequipping the Chinese Army with modern weapons. And for industrial growth and modern weapons China will need outside help of the kind best found in Japan, the United States and Western Europe.

Carter can help the Chinese substantially in the ways most important to Teng without spending a penny of American money, or offending the friends of Taiwan. All he really has to do is stand aside and enter no objections when the Chinese go to Japan for modern industrial techniques and to the British, French, and Germans for modern weapons.

The precedent for this was set last December when Gerald Ford was still President of the United States. Washington entered no objection when the Chinese signed a contract with British Rolls-Royce for the purchase of Spey engines, the type used in British Phantom fighters. Earlier the Chinese had ordered helicopters from West Germany and computers from Japan and the United States.

There is no need for haste about closer or more formal relations between Washington and Peking. The present formula gives China what the new leadership cares about most — access to Western technology and modern weapons.

Taxis not buses seen as public transit in suburbs

Northwest suburban residents may be riding taxicabs instead of buses when public transportation is expanded in the suburbs.

D. Daniel Baldino, Regional Transportation Authority board member, said Tuesday a subsidy from the RTA to local cab companies would result in lower fares for suburban riders.

But the cost of a cab ride and the amount of subsidy are under study by the RTA staff, he said.

Daniel Baldino

SUBSIDIZED TAXI service is being planned in north suburban Vernon Hills. Arlington Heights now runs subsidized taxi programs for senior citizens in which the village pays $1 and the rider pays 50 cents per ride, Baldino said.

Speaking at an RTA "listening post" at the Elk Grove Township Hall, Baldino said the taxi service might be better suited to the suburbs, which don't have established high-demand traffic patterns.

The taxi concept was one of several ideas outlined by Baldino in the two-hour session, designed to improve the RTA's image in the suburbs and encourage better communication.

Most of the 30 residents who turned out for the meeting were senior citizens who wanted transportation to and from Chicago as well as a way to get around town. The majority were from Elk Grove Village, which currently has no RTA bus lines.

BALDINO SAID residents can expect a dramatic increase in suburban transit service in the next two years as a result of this year's budget.

For example, he said two bus lines are scheduled to start in Elk Grove Village in the next two months. A bus service from southeast Elk Grove to the Milwaukee Road's train station in Bensenville is scheduled to start Aug. 15. A bus route between Jefferson Park in Chicago and the Elk Grove industrial area is slated to start in September.

Both those routes are designed to bring people to work in Elk Grove, but Baldino said the Jefferson Park route might be extended along Biesterfield Road to Arlington Heights Road, providing needed service for senior citizens and others.

Baldino said he will push for the establishment of local service routes in the suburbs before trying to begin routes that tie the various suburbs together.

"THE MAJOR routes are fine, but if you don't have a way to get to them, they won't do you any good," Baldino said.

Several people, including state Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, took Baldino to task for voting in favor of the controversial 5 per cent RTA gas tax. She said that although there is a need for transit services in the suburbs, the RTA is not giving the suburbs enough for their money.

"I applaud you for the services you have initiated, but I assure you they will not be enough in the very near future," she said.

Baldino said he plans to visit each of the 30 townships in suburban Cook County to talk with people about their transportation problems. He said their suggestions will be included in his proposal for expanding suburban service.

Ultimate Electronic Game

by Ed Landwehr

I guess everyone has seen the various games played through the TV tube — tennis, hockey, ping-pong, etc. Now comes probably the greatest. That is, if you're a chess player, and you better be a good one!

This new electronic computer chess game has moves computed into its memory system so that it really plays aggressively, controlling the center of the board. It will go for stalemate, too, if it gets into trouble. It accepts and performs castling and automatically turns pawns to queens when they reach the last rank. Tests have shown that average players win only 25% of the time.

We have serviced some of the simpler TV games at Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. But with this new one, we're wondering about it. I think we just will stick to servicing TV sets and other simpler electronics. Phone 255-0700 and try us.

"THE REDCOATS ARE COMING!"

Forest City's "Fellow in Yellow" has checked out!

A part of the scene for almost 20 years, Forest City's helpful "fellow-in-yellow" says goodbye today and we introduce you to our new red-clad...just as helpful...sales persons.

Why?

It's more than just a new look! We want you to be able to spot our sales people more easily and quickly and the yellow was blending into the background— red won't!

Just Look for the Red Shirts in any Forest City Store.

They'll be easier to spot— THE RED COATS ARE COMING— and if you want the manager, he'll be sporting a brand new red blazer instead of a business suit, so you'll be able to find him more easily too!

Watch For Red Aisle Specials

You know our regular low price policy? And our advertised specials? Now— if you check our main aisles (the red ones, naturally) you'll find unadvertised specials— even lower prices than you're accustomed to at Forest City.

And the Red Carpet Treatment!

You always get that at Forest City anyway, but we thought we'd put it in this ad to remind you.

3 Things Haven't Changed!

Service, Selection, and Value!

Even though we've garbed everything and everybody in an aura of red, we haven't tampered with the foundation of the business. The best, most knowledgeable sales persons. The widest selection of quality products for the do-it-yourselfer. And true, unquestionable value on every item you buy.

Keep on Truckin'

There's more too. Our lovely, fashionable purple trucks are being replaced by magnificent, exciting "fire engine red" vehicles. We're told they'll be safer on the road, easier to keep clean and more noticeable. Unfortunately, we're not allowed to equip them with red lights and siren.

Yesterday's radicals: years dim their hopes

WHILE THE 1960s were years of protest, life has calmed down in the 1970s. Some activists have embraced new causes; others, who have grown tired of protesting, lead quiet lives.

by VALERIE BERG

It was hot back in August 1968, and the thousands of persons milling in Grant Park weren't making the night any cooler. The heat, the tension, the resistance to the war had been building a long time. And while the Democrats were choosing a presidential nominee a few miles away, the tension snapped.

Nine years later, 28-year-old George Seyk speaks calmly about that night. His apartment in a Schaumburg singles' complex is far removed from the violent scene, but the memory is clear.

"Going to the convention, I'll never forget it. Here you are, U.S. citizens going to protest the war and here are other U.S.citizens armed."

HE CONTINUED in an even voice. "It was like you almost knew something was going to happen before it happened. The issue that kicked it off was that some jerk climbed a flagpole and started to pull down the American flag. As the police moved in, they beat the hell out of him and all hell broke loose."

For George, who often used to march for peace, life has calmed down. He sells industrial electrical components for a living and spends much of his spare time on the complex tennis courts.

Life has calmed down for many other former activists, too. Rennie Davis, one of the Chicago Seven defendants, is training to sell insurance. Protest singer Joan Baez admits to shopping at Saks Fifth Avenue. National Moratorium Movement leader Sam Brown, now director of the federal volunteer service agency ACTION, often can be found inside the White House rather than in the streets outside.

WHERE — TO PARAPHRASE the protest song — have all the radicals gone? Some turn to other causes. Some join the very "establishment" they once tried to change. Some have turned bitter about their experiences.

George Seyk doesn't consider himself a radical, but as an undergraduate psychology major at DePaul University, he was moved by his humanistic outlook plus the threat of induction to march for peace. And though the war is over, the same outlook remains.

"It all relates to how you do your job and how you look at things," he explained. "No matter what you do, it all carries off into your life.

"The rules you set for yourself and the ways you do your business depend on your own ethics," he continued. "I try to do my job in as ethical a way as possible.

LOOKING BACK on the heyday of activism, George has mixed feelings about the results.

"The war itself brought on more communication between groups and a lot of issues mixed. In some cases it was good and in some cases bad," he said. "It was a failure in the sense that it didn't accomplish things as fast as it could have."

But for better or for worse, some of his activist spirit remains. "I don't believe in war, I don't believe in killing," he said. "If there was another war like Vietnam and they were going out protesting, I sure as hell would."

Protesting was never Barry Warren's favorite activity. As a physics student at DePaul, he preferred to devote his time to draft counseling, lobbying and working for student rights on campus.

BUT BARRY, NOW 30, became more radicalized in his thinking after attending a 1967 peace demonstration as a photographer. He still shudders as he speaks of demonstrators being clubbed by Chicago police and run over by their motorcycles.

Today he lives in the city and works as a planner in the Mayor's Office of Manpower — an ironic circumstance, he admits. But he believes that the agency is oriented toward human service.

"Your job options are few," he explained. "What I've tried to do is to remember all I've seen and what was wrong, and to be a spokesman for those issues."

Even though he belongs to the bureaucracy, he remains one of its critics. "Unfortunately, with the end of the war, the pressure was off and so a lot of things weren't completed. I feel the government still hasn't learned to be fair to its people.

"THERE'S BEEN a serious erosion of freedom — bureaucrats aren't elected officials and yet they run the country from adminstration to administration."

These days Barry's cause is the Incol Foundation, a corporation involved in promoting science for the public interest. The foundation, which grew out of a campus group, hopes to sponsor research in new areas of scientific research, including parapsychology.

But aside from Incol, Barry's view of the future is uncertain. "I'm afraid we're headed for serious trouble down the road. I'd like to see it (the United States) survive with a Constitution, a Bill of Rights and a Declaration of Independence intact.

"I tend to be a little less hopeful about change, but I haven't given up yet," he declared.

TWENTY-EIGHT-YEAR-OLD Debi Beckley, a Schaumburg resident, is even less hopeful about change. In the late '60s she was a black militant at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, where she demonstrated for a black studies center and marched for open housing in the city.

Today, as an employment and housing counselor at the Minority Information Referral Center in Des Plaines, Debi still is disturbed by many things. Racial trouble in the city. Nazis attempting to march in the suburbs. But she doesn't protest any more.

"I'm no longer idealistic. I'm very practical and even pessimistic. I'm seeing what I think is a lot of backlash," she said.

"I don't argue with people any more. I either say yes, I agree, or no, I don't agree. It's futile — you get an ulcer that way."

"I GUESS YOU can't say it (the civil rights movement) failed, it added a lot to make people aware of the plight of black people, but I think 'Roots' did more of that in eight days," she continued. "I think what it did for me was I realized that people weren't going to change. It has to be an educational process from day one when you're a child."

Glen Ellyn resident Jim Shimer, 29, also is disappointed about the state of civil rights today. Although his interest has always been civil rights, he also was active in the peace and student power movements at Ohio Wesleyan University.

His disappointment is that "after the draft ended, most of the people in the peace movement dropped out. Students more or less came to the realization that they have no influence." But, he added, "if you're really committed to creating social change, you'll find a way to do it."

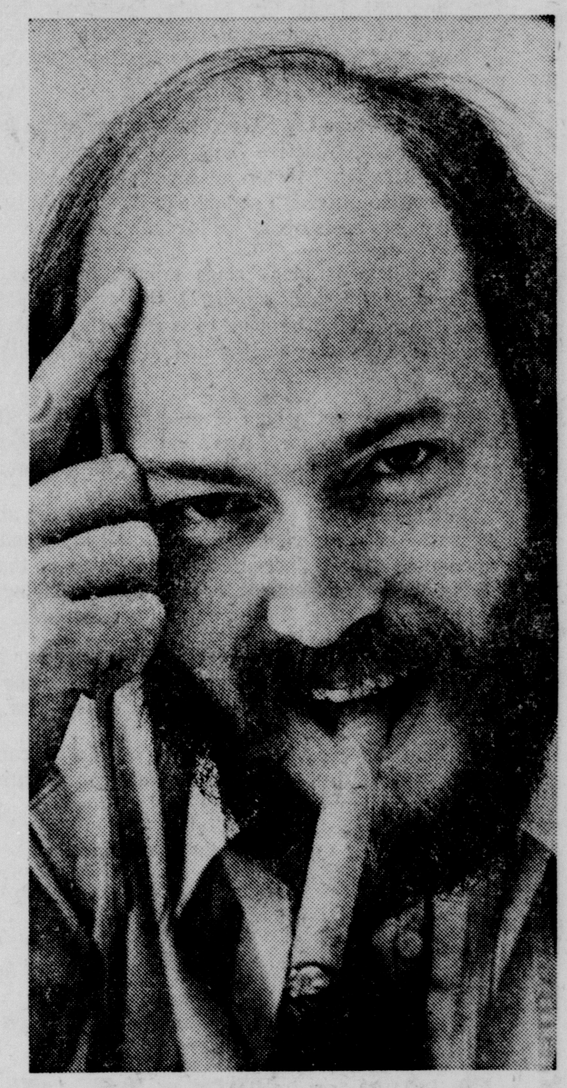
FOR JIM, CREATING social change means working as an administrative assistant to the director of the Minority Information Referral Center and helping with the center's special projects. He also is working to make changes in the Chicago office of Housing and Urban Development.

"One of the things I'm still very uncomfortable about is the representation of minority people in key places in government," he explained. "If you had people in positions who really wanted to make programs work, they wouldn't keep throwing up roadblocks."

And although the civil rights movement won some gains, he cites the incidence of counter-discrimination suits, poor administration of social service programs and the unwillingness of the public to fund those programs as proof that the gains are being lost.

"WHAT CONCERNS ME is there're so few people who might be motivated beyond their own self-interest, from my perspective," he said.

And even though the '70s are calm in comparison with the '60s, the times may be a'changing. "It's going to be necessary for more confrontation in society," Jim predicted. "I think you're going to see more of it. Expectations are starting to rise again."



JIM SHIMER, son of an activist minister and a conscientious objector to the Vietnam war, is bothered by apathy and by the lack of minorities in decision-making government positions.

GEORGE SEYK believes awareness can be taken from the streets into the conference room. The social change of the 1960s, he says, has caused changes in the business world, too.

Working wife doesn't need another 'baby'

Julie Martoccio

Women and children first

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

We've been married nine years. I've worked nine years and have no children, as yet. My husband keeps telling me he isn't ready to have a family while I can't wait much longer. (He's 34, I'm 30.)

My gynecologist and neurologist both advise me to have a baby now, before I get too much older, risking giving birth to a mongoloid child, etc.

Last summer when I had a car accident, I began to see how unconcerned he was about my health when he fussed about helping me with household chores while I was recuperating.

My husband does not want to get involved with either side of our families. (We eloped, so there would not be a fuss!)

MY DOCTORS SAID I could either tell my husband I will no longer take the pill nor allow any other type of birth control, or file for a legal separation. Unfortunately, I can do neither. I would go to a marriage counselor or lawyer, but I don't think I would get anywhere alone. My husband refuses to go to either as he also will not go to church and does not allow me to go either.

What can I do to make my life happier, with a child and the happiness of being able to stay at home and just be a good wife and mother? — No Names Please.

Dear No Names Please,

With all the hue and cry about how "free" women are these days, I'm surprised — no, shocked — by the number of letters I receive complaining about how much "control" a husband has over his wife! Especially a working one like you.

YOUR DOCTORS are right, of course. But your answer is, you cannot do as they advise. Remember, a person can do anything she wants providing she is willing to face the consequences. Either you love your husband too much to risk losing him, or you are afraid to go it alone.

Frankly, I can't understand why you would want a baby while you already have one at home unless your husband grows up or you stiffen your spine and "unspoil" him. I can suggest only one other possible solution.

You are in a bind, but awakening, so I suggest you take the first step to break it either by attending a self-assertiveness class or reading some books on the subject that will explain a sensible step-by-step technique for getting what you want while respecting the rights of others.

The doctor says

Reducing first step to cut cholesterol

I have high cholesterol, 336, and was given no medication. I have since heard that lecithin is sometimes prescribed for this condition. Is this a harmless medication? Would you recommend it for this condition?

It is both harmless and useless. Your digestive system will digest the lecithin before it ever gets through the intestinal wall into your blood stream.

If you were choline deficient, the resulting choline could be used by your liver to manufacture the lecithin that is in your blood stream. The chances are that if you are eating anything like a normal diet, you will already be getting plenty of choline.

If your cholesterol is persistently that high, you do need to make some changes. Your doctor may not have wanted to do anything about it because you are a woman and women are less prone to heart attacks and fatty-cholesterol deposits than men — until a few years after the menopause. But I think it would be a good idea not to let you run that risk.

Your first step would be to reduce, if you have any tendency to be overweight, and go on a low-fat low-cholesterol diet. I am sending you two issues of The Health Letter that can help you, number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis, and number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Others who want either can send 50 cents for each plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. If these measures are not successful, then your doctor may want to consider medicine, but it is proper to try to adjust your living habits first.

You should also try to increase your physical activity if you are not already fairly active. That will also help you with your weight control diet. While I am in favor of the low-fat low-cholesterol diets for this purpose, I should add that no diet is successful in this regard unless excess body fat is eliminated.

My problem is black rings around my eyes. Could it be indicative of something wrong? I always thought it made me look bad. Can anything be done to remove these black rings? I am 30 years old, otherwise healthy and with good eyesight. I was born in India.

No they are not a sign of poor health. One often sees them in people who are thinner. Why? Because the person who is thin may not have a normal thickness of the natural fat pad around the eye.

The veins around the eye can be seen in the absence of fat and increase the appearance of dark circles around the eyes. Also, some people have increased pigmentation in that area and it is just a natural characteristic, the same as having black, blonde or red hair.

You don't need to concern yourself about your health because of these. If you were a woman and didn't like the appearance, you could use eye makeup to cover most of the area.

(Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.)

Noodle pudding will please pasta lovers

A favorite dish in this household is noodle pudding, made with cheese and sour cream. Another good one is made with chicken fat, but I don't have the recipe and I'll try to get it. Henrietta Weiss makes one well worth passing along. She boils an eight-ounce package of wide noodles to the al dente state, then mixes it with one-quarter pound of fat (part butter and part margarine) and puts it to one side. Then she blends one-quarter pound of cream cheese with one-half pint of sour cream, and this mixture is then folded into the noodles. Then she beats three egg yolks with one-quarter cup of sugar and folds that into the noodles. Next come the beaten whites. The mixture is put into an eight-inch-square casserole (two and one-half inches high) and set in the refrigerator overnight. Next day this is covered with crushed cornflakes and baked for 45 minutes at 350 degrees. It ought to serve six and should go big with all pasta lovers.

Dear Roberta: Reading about how many readers are disturbed by a cloudy film on their crystal, I'd like to recommend my method. I sprinkle a generous amount of baking soda inside the glass container, then rub vigorously with a damp, soapy cloth. This is especially effective on that nasty ring left by water that has been standing in a vase — and on coffee or tea stains. —Carol Karr

Dear Roberta: Some decals were left on the glass doors of an enclosed hutch in my kitchen. How can I get them off? —Mrs. J. M.

As a rule, the only way to get decals off is to get the decal remover in a shop that sells decals. However, with glass you might be able to soak them off with what people use to get off adhesive-backed posters: salad oil, paint remover (use caution) or a nonflammable cleaning solvent.

Interviewing for the job

by LUCIA MOUAT
(Third in a series)

"Have you come for a job? What do you do?"

"I don't do anything now," replies the tanned blond in her forties, "and I'm weak on office skills."

"Well, can you write?"

"I guess I don't write badly."

A ripple of laughter spreads through the group of women job hunters at this Wider Opportunities for Women (WOW) workshop as leader Phoebe Taylor, simulating an employer during an interview, protests: "Don't tell me the bad news so soon."

Everyone present knows she might have answered the same way, and all have been told that such modesty is unbecoming for a job hunter. Instead, it is time for accenting one's strengths.

YET, EMPLOYMENT experts agree, the most common problem plaguing women who want to reenter the job market is lack of confidence that they have any experience to offer which counts in the world of salaries. Indeed, according to this circle of women, it takes courage to make even the smallest move, such as phoning for an interview!

Practice interviews are a device strongly recommended by employment counselors both as a confidence-builder and a data-gatherer. Instead of zeroing in on a job opening, you go to talk with an executive in a firm to find out more about what the company does and what other opportunities there are in that field. In addition to fresh information, you gain experience and new contacts without pressure.

Whom to see? Often reading the business section of the local newspaper can keep you in touch with changes in top management and who may be moving to town — all potential interview sources. Counselors stress that the better prepared you are in advance (you may want to send for an annual report), the more you will be told.

"If you're really job-ready at that point, then you should leave your resume at the informational interview or send it later as a follow-up," says Roberta Kaplan, director of WOW's work center.

• Tell everybody you know and everybody you meet of your interest in finding a job.

• "Talk to anyone who's willing to talk to you — you can't afford to overlook any source," says Mrs. Anita Lands of Catalyst, a New York based organization aimed at helping women choose, launch, and advance their careers.

• A recent survey by the National Center for Job Market Studies of jobs filled in one year found 85 per cent were filled through informal contacts. Some 6 per cent were filled through school placement services, 5 per cent through want ads, and only 4 per cent through employment agencies.

Indeed, Mary Janney, co-director of WOW, which is an employment advisory and advocacy center, suggests steering as clear as possible of employment agencies: "They're no friends of women . . . they often discount or undervalue the average homemaker's experience and they have a tendency to slow women in dead-end, low-paying jobs."

• Prepare well for the job interview. Learn as much as you can in advance about the position and the company.

• Decide your criteria (hours you want to work, salary, etc.) and think through which criteria you can be flexible on.

• Rehearse with a friend. Often she can offer helpful advice on strengthening your interview techniques.

• Review past accomplishments, abilities, interests. Some counselors suggest jotting down key selling points on a card and referring to it during the interview if necessary.

• Be prepared to fill in an application on arrival. It's fairly standard practice and you can always place your resume on top.

• Keep the interview focused on how your experience relates to the employer's needs.

• Ask questions.

• Listen carefully to the job description and how you will be evaluated.

• Think about whether or not you will be comfortable in that work environment. (One reentry says this was valuable advice; it kept her from being preoccupied with what the prospective employer might be thinking of her.)

• Discuss pay. One woman made a point of finding out the top salary the employer would pay for the job in question and told him that, given her skills and the responsibilities, she could accept no less. She got the job.

• Be enthusiastic. Employers often report that applicants appeared uninterested and thus weren't offered the job.

You may want to talk with the employer about job variations:

1. Some women, for instance, have started in jobs as unpaid volunteers, setting a time limit by which they must be paid or will leave. Although employment counselors stress it takes a certain "finesse" to broach the idea, many employers find it hard to refuse, and it has worked successfully for many women returning to work. Says one: "It's amazing how you can make yourself indispensable within a month or two."

2. Job-pairing or job-sharing is another alternative. If a full-time job is more than you want to take on, you might propose sharing a job with another person — or even with your husband, if that is also his field. Though many employers have yet to be persuaded of the advantages, it has been tried successfully in teaching, social work, secretarial, and research jobs. Job-sharing case workers in a Massachusetts Department of Public Welfare project for Catalyst were found to use their time more efficiently and experienced less turnover than their full-time counterparts.

"WHAT SEEMS TO work best," says Catalyst's Anita Lands, "is if two women work it all out between themselves first and approach the company as a team to offer their services . . . You've got to show an employer that it's worth it to him. But you'll probably have to go to a lot of companies before you really sell the idea."

One tip if you do succeed: Counselors suggest that splitting the week rather than each day works better in terms of commuting time and balancing home duties.

If you're told you're not the one for the job, don't take it personally.

"Not letting it get to you is important," says Catalyst's Anita Lands. "Remember that it doesn't matter how many rejections you get if you wind up with what you really want to do."

Don't automatically rule out a low-paying job. With the right firm, it can serve as a foot in the door, but be sure to check out the prospects for upward mobility.

A SURPRISINGLY high number of reentry women have moved from volunteer into paying jobs with the same organization. Peggy Fleming, for instance, who followed up her strong interest in plants and gardening by taking U.S. Department of Agriculture courses in wildlife management and botany, went to work as a volunteer for the National Park Service in Rock Creek Park, in Washington. Her ideas — to let certain sections of the park grow wild and record bird and wildlife counts — have since evolved into a project for which she is getting paid as a park technician.

Whatever the job offer, it is worth careful thought — if only for the fact that you leave a record, good or bad, wherever you choose to work.

Certainly going back to work is not for everyone. Most women do it for economic reasons. A recent AFL-CIO study says that 84 per cent of all women in the labor force last year supported themselves or were married to men whose incomes were below $15,000.

"It would take extreme necessity or a super offer to jog me back into the employed world," says Mrs. Olga Buenz of Chicago, who taught school when her two youngsters were small and has looked long and hard at this issue of returning to work. "Other women don't seem to get the kick I do out of sewing, cooking, and the luxury of reading whenever . . . I find I need to have close touch with home and family. I missed that when I was teaching. 'Liberated' to me means the freedom to make choices."

Next: Balancing home and job.

Dear Tina,

No one gets trading stamps before buying and supermarkets would soon be out of business if they gave away valuable merchandise as samples. Suggest a counteroffer. Hard to find good summer TV fare

The networks obviously believe there's nothing like first-run, one-shot junk to brighten up a traditionally dull summer television schedule.

So, the viewer has been treated to a stream of trial run comedies for the past three months, most of which are worthless take-offs of what already exists in prime time.

After watching a few dozen pilots, I am convinced most people would rather watch good, solid reruns instead.

TRIAL RUN programs, reruns, some specials and showcases for new talent in limited series have been filling up the summer television schedule and offering a smorgasbord that is new to the business.

No matter what the method, the goal, as far as the networks are concerned, is the same: get through the summer months, fill up air time and make some money while regenerating for the fall.

Whereas diversity in summer programming may be welcome, it is unfortunate that much of what the networks have provided viewers the past three months has been much less than respectable.

Most of the offerings have been pilots for series that were rejected.

IF YOU WERE curious as to what garbage collecting in outer space would be like in the year 2222 A.D., "Quark," NBC's science fiction comedy flop

gave you an idea.

NBC, in an obvious attempt to copy ABC's successful "Happy Days" and "Welcome Back, Kotter" formula aired several different pilots including "Hollywood High" and "Off the Wall."

The brilliant writing team of Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses, creators of "The Tony Randall Show" and "The Bob Newhart Show" was at an all-time low in the "The Chopped Liver Brothers," a pilot about two former white-collar workers trying to make it as a comedy team.

Blue-collar was in with one CBS pilot, "Eddie and Herbert," detailing the friendship of two factory workers and their wives.

Couples also were a hot number in summer pilots. NBC's "Natural Look" showed the trials and tribulations of a "today" marriage where the wife is a headstrong executive with a cosmetic firm and the husband is a pediatrician.

A CONTRASTING view of marriage was offered in "Husbands and Wives," a disgusting portrayal of suburban life written by comedienne Joan Rivers.

Other variations on an old theme were a musical hodge-podge in pilots like ABC's "Constantinople" and NBC's "Bay City Amusement Company," and derelict looks at the life of a reporter in CBS's "Stop the Presses" and NBC's "Susan and Sam" (part of which you may have missed because it aired the night of the recent New York blackout).

A comedy pilot that offered decent acting, a unique approach to an old story line and maybe even some food for thought has been rare the past few months.

Some that rated well in my book included ABC's "The Four of Us," about the struggles of a widow and her three children, and "Daughters," the NBC pilot about a widower and his three daughters. Maybe it has just been a good season for single parents.

WHAT HAS saved viewers from total entertainment disaster this summer has been the specials, mostly presented by NBC, and limited series that showcase new talent.

One of the best limited series was "Shields and Yarnell," the husband-wife pantomime team which CBS will undoubtedly rely on as mid-season replacements in the winter.

"Marilyn McCoo and Billy Davis" were also a musical breath of fresh air.

CBS begins another knee-slapping series Friday, the long awaited Norman Lear series, "A Year At the Top" (which will be reviewed in Friday's "Today on TV)" that will be followed by "The Keane Brothers," a multi-talented duo who appear to be graduates of the Donny and Marie school.

CBS has aired the greatest number of pilots this summer and even has resurrected old series like "The Family Holvak" and "The Jack Benny Show" to supplement its schedule.

ABC, ON THE other hand, has relied mostly on the reruns of its very successful regular season comedies and news specials, including several of Barbara Walter' interviews.

But NBC deserves a pat on the back for providing a steady stream of first-run specials that have made summer television worthwhile.

"Highlights from the Russian Dance Festival" and "'Tut: The Boy King," both narrated by Orson Wells, as well as a remake of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" were a few of the specials the network has aired this summer.

But today, even NBC begins a limited series, "The Kallikaks," about a poor family bent on getting rich quick. The show was originally scheduled as part of the network's fall lineup, but, unsure of the show's ability to pull ratings, its getting a trial run this month.

The new show looks to be of little improvement over "Suzyszynk," a CBS limited series begun earlier in the week that also dealt with the school of hard-knocks.

When a show is as bad as "Szyszynk," it can't afford to have a title you can't pronounce.

Although it is wishful thinking, let's hope the networks have learned a lesson from this summer's exercise in programming techniques.

It would be nice next summer to see the same program diversity with a greater accent on quality.

TV NOTE:

David L. Nelson has been appointed by the CBS network to work as vice president and station manager of WBBM-TV under Neil Derrough, the station's general manager. Nelson, who begins work Monday, will work as a manager in training in all areas other than news and programming. He most recently served as vice president of division services for CBS' five owned and operated television stations. Derrough said Tuesday the appointment does not necessarily mean he will be leaving the Chicago station in the future.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- Richard Harris stars in "The Deadly Trackers" at 8 p.m. on Channel 2, about a sheriff seeking vengeance on two outlaws who killed his family.
- NBC premieres its ridiculous comedy "The Kallikaks" at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 5 about a poor family looking for better things.

BIG BUSINESS

"If you're going to suffer from migraine headaches, make sure you do on your own time."

High interest rate fears drop Dow to 18-month low

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average dropped to an 18-month low Tuesday as stocks fell along a broad front in reaction to fears of higher interest rates. Trading was the slowest in a month.

The Dow average, which squeezed out a 1.74-point advance Monday, lost 4.42 points to 887.39, the lowest level since it closed at 877.83 on Jan. 5, 1976. The Dow has lost 36.03 points since July 22.

General Motors, a Dow average component, lost 7/8 to 68½ on the New York Stock Exchange after tht ation's No. 1 auto maker disappointed investors by not raising its dividend from 85 cents a share. On a composite basis, the stock fell 1¼ to 68 and was the second most active issue.

A 0.6 per cent drop in June's government economic indicators, indicating an economic slowdown, has triggered selling that produced the market's worst loss in 19 months last week.

The Federal Reserve Board has sparked further selling this week by tightening credit the past two days following a $5 billion surge in the nation's money supply. Short-term interest rates have risen as a result of Fed action.

INVESTORS FAILED to respond to a government report that factory orders rose 0.4 per cent in June. A strong 1.7 per cent rise in nondurable good orders more than offset a 0.7 per enct decline in orders for durables.

Many Wall Streeters retreated to the sidelines as Congress began deliberations on President Carter's energy program. The House passed a bill to combine most energy functions under one new department.

Amid the uncertainty, the New York Stock Exchange common stock index skidded 0.34 to 53.93 and the average price of a share dipped 20 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, shed 0.62 to 98.50.

Declines routed advances, 1,000 to 461, among the 1,890 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big Board volume totaled 17,910,000 shares, down from the 17,970,000 traded Monday and the slowest turnover since 16,854,040 changed hands July 5.

Composite volume of NYSE issues traded on all U.S. exchanges and over-the-counter totaled 21,075,460 shares, compared with 20,484,680 Monday.

Buyers will bubble over Yule gifts

LEA TONKIN

Buyers stumped with a lack of ideas for holiday gift-giving might consider 'Body Paint for Lovers,' or washable fabric flowers, two of the newest items likely to appear this winter on gift and department store shelves.

Store buyers this week are crowding the Chicago Gift Show search for the new gift that will match the phenomenal success of pet rocks and scented candles. The buyers are swarming throughout the Show's two locations, McCormick Place and the Expocenter located near the Loop.

Although the gift show, which closes Friday, is open only to trade representatives, nearly all Americans will be either the receivers or senders of one of the new gifts on display.

EVERYTHING from fabric wall hangings to koala bear hand puppets and Scandinavian jewelry is featured . As buyers make their rounds from one booth to the next, enthusiastic manufacturers' representatives launch into their spiels about sure-fire holiday season sales.

"I'd just like one of these little yellow canaries," a gift shop owner told an importers salesman as he trailed along with an order pad. The shop owner moved quickly from one display to the next, ordering a dozen candy dishes, then several figurines.

"Body Paint for Lovers" is among the lineup of new products shown by the Village Bath Products, Inc., of Minnetonka, Minn. It's a great gift for your lover or a good friend, sales representative Fran Weir said.

Three colors can be mixed in several shades, and then the fun begins, Ms. Weir said. The paints wash off, and they turn into bubble bath. "Lather up, rinse off, towel dry together. Know love," reads the enclosed brochure with the kit, which will retail for $6.75.

"The hottest thing for consumers is going to be washable fabric artificial flowers," said Marty O'Malley, a Barrington sales representative for Deldan and A Christmas Place lines, Division of Sigma Marketing Systems, Inc. Showing off his wares— artificial lilies, tulips, irises and other floral arrangements in rainbow colors — O'Malley said consumers are ready to trade in their plastic flowers for the more appealing fabric varieties called "Wonderfleur."

Desk accessories, Christmas tree ornaments, Peruvian baskets and earthenware pots competed for attention at the gift show. Then there were the traditional rings, bangles and baubles, watches and china. Wind chimes and wicker furniture, pressed wildflower momentos, toys and stationery lined the display shelves.

"Possum Trot is owlish on America," one exhibitor said. The McKee, Ky. firm makes owl hand puppets and bean bag toys.

For the gift-giver with a sense of humor, there's "Legal Pot" for sale at the gift show. The two-ounce, stainless steel pot, made by Pot Luck Promotions, Inc., New York, will sell at retail for $4. And there's underwear made by British Bulldog, featuring slogans such as "Superman" and "Home of the Whopper."

Personal records far from secret

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — Have you ever stopped to think how easy it would be for someone else to get information about your personal finances — information that he or she might be able to use against you?

Look in the Yellow Pages of the phone book under "Investigators, Private," and see how many services are advertised. The big business is matrimonials, but detectives will undertake practically any kind of investigative job. Often, they involve spying on another person's money — how much he makes, what he owns, what he owes.

"The sources of information are absolutely enormous," says Irwin Blye, a New York State licensed private investigator. "You have no idea how much information is in the public domain. The only trick is knowing where to look." Investigators in every state can reel off a long list of documents, relating to you, that your state will allow others to inspect.

JUST BY sending in request forms to various bureaus of public information, and chatting with people on the telephone, Blye can learn such things as what loans you have outstanding and which institution you borrowed from; the condition of your bank account; what assets you're likely to have and their approximate value; business information; whether you've ever been paroled; and basic medical information. A trip to the courthouse will tell him if you've ever been involved in a lawsuit.

To show how simple this process can be, consider basic medical information: A person who lives in New York State has to answer medical questions on his application for a driver's license. Anyone can get a copy of that application, just by sending $3.50 to the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Many financial transactions with your town or county may be public documents, from your water bill right up to whether you pay taxes on time. Blye sometimes finds leads to hidden assets in town documents.

A lot of facts are improperly leaked by the various institutions with which you do business. In theory, a bank employe should probably request a letter from anyone asking questions about an account, and clear the answers with the account holder. In practice, many of these people readily answer questions over the phone.

It's not as expensive to get personal information as you might think. Blye's prices are $175, $350 and $750, depending on the thoroughness of the report.

What's so striking about this is that no one has to loot your safe deposit box in the dead of night to fathom your financial standing. The information is usually there for the taking, in public documents that you probably filled out without turning a hair.

Business briefs

Chicago-LA fare $99 on United?

United Airlines, Elk Grove Township, Tuesday asked government approval of a $99 one-way fare between Chicago and Los Angeles, with a further $10 discount for passengers who eat no in-flight meal. United said the service, if the Civil Aeronautics Board approves, would begin Sept. 8 and cover two round trips daily. No advance booking or minimum stay would be required. The $99 fare would be applicable to coach seats only on DC10s and 747s, with first class fare remaining the same. Unitel said it will ask the CAB this week to approve a "super economy" meal-less fare for the same flights.

Steelworkers see long strike

Many of the 19,000 steelworkers striking in seven states over "local issues" were in a holiday mood Tuesday, but some predicted a long strike that might run through the fall or beyond. Most strikers are employed by 12 companies operating mines and plants in Minnesota and Upper Michigan. Linus Wampler, District 33 director of the United Steelworkers, estimated 14,500 workers were on strike in Minnesota, 4,500 in Upper Michigan. Smaller numbers were out in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Ohio, New York and Massachusetts.

New product orders up .4%

New orders for manufacturer products, a sign of future business demand, rose .4 per cent in June for the strongest gain since March, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday. The department also said shipments increased 1.4 per cent during June after two months of declines and the June inventory buildup slowed to less than half the rate of increase in May. Commerce economists had predicted last month that a potential sales "explosion" could be in the making because of sharp buildups in inventories and orders combined with declines in shipments. The latest figures released Tuesday showed that new orders rose $400 million to $112.1 billion on a seasonablly adjusted basis. New orders had increased .1 per cent in May and declined 0.2 per cent in April.

FTC seeks cigaret data

The Federal Trade Commission Tuesday asked a federal court to force six major cigaret makers, two trade associations and 20 advertising agencies to surrender information needed by the agency for its investigation into alleged deception in tobacco advertising. The FTC subpoenaed the parties more than one year ago but they refused to surrender the data. The cigarette companies are American Brands Inc., Brown and Williamson Tobacco Corp., Liggett Group Inc., Lorillard, a division of Lowe's Theaters Inc., Phillip Morris Inc., and R. J. Reynolds Industries Inc. The trade associations are the Tobacco Institute Inc., and the Council for Tobacco Research — USA, Inc.

Real estate network formed

Gallery of Homes, Inc., an international franchising organization, has announced a new subsidiary to make mortgage money available through a network of 600 independent brokers. President Henry F. Carter said the new company's purpose is not so much to cut the cost of mortgages as to make them available to home buyers through real estate brokers on a "one stop" packaging basis. "For example," he said, "Home buyers will be able to sell a home in one area, buy a house and get a mortgage in a new community, all through one of our 1,100 offices." The firm has Northwest suburban outlets.

Injunction against Falstaff

A federal judge Tuesday issued a preliminary injunction against the Falstaff Brewing Corp., the nation's 11th largest beer producer, for allegedly violating federal securities laws, including the issuance of "false and misleading" proxy statements. Falstaff, now headquartered in San Francisco, is being investigated by the Securities and Exchange Commission for violating anti-fraud, disclosure and proxy sections of U.S. securities laws between 1974 and the present. The SEC contends that former Falstaff officials withheld from stockholders full details of the sale of the former St. Louis company in 1975 to Paul Kalmanovitz, the present board chairman of Falstaff.

Defective smoke detectors sought

The Consumer Product Safety Commission still is seeking up to 90,000 smoke detectors which might catch fire. The commission and the detectors' manufacturer, BRK Electronics Inc. of Aurora, issued an unusual second recall notice this week, warning the public of the danger and asking consumers to check the units to see if they have the ones involved. The company voluntarily began the recall after it found resistors in some units could fail, making them inoperable and under certain circumstances causing a fire inside the devices. The detectors were marketed by BRK, American Machine and Foundry, I-T-E Imperial Corp., and Sears. The Sears units may be taken to the nearest Sears store for inspection and replacement. In the case of other units, consumers should contact BRK by calling collect at 312-898-9040, department 749, or by writing to BRK at 780 McClure Ave., Aurora, Ill. 60507.

ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW PROCEDURES FOR THE COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT PROGRAM OF THE VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, ILLINOIS (1977-1978): NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT

1. The Village of Arlington Heights, hereinafter referred to as the "Applicant," proposes to use its second year Community Development funds for the following purposes:
   a. Relocation of sewer in Central Business District $140,000
   b. Sidewalk construction $62,000
   c. Acquisition of Historical Property $80,000
   d. Relocation expenses for the Acquisition of Historical Property $5,000

   The remaining $32,000.00 of the Village's entitlement will be allocated for administrative expenses and contingencies.
2. Pursuant to Title 24, Section 58.15 of the Federal Register, the Applicant has determined that the above-enumerated projects separately will have no significant effect on the environment.
3. Each of the above-mentioned projects will have no adverse impact on present air pollution levels, noise levels and water pollution levels, and is otherwise compatible with existing uses in the Village of Arlington Heights.
4. In determination of the above, the Applicant has made an Environmental Review Record respecting each of the projects enumerated in number (1) above individually, which can be reviewed by the public at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 North Dunton Avenue, and at the Municipal Building located at 33 South Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60005.
5. Since no further environmental review of the above-mentioned projects is proposed, the Applicant intends to request that HUD release funds for each of the above projects at such time as all legal obligations have been fulfilled.
6. Comments therefore may be submitted to the applicant until August 18, 1977, or not more than 15 calendar days following this publication.
7. APPLICANT: Village of Arlington Heights, 33 South Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60005

Dole to talk Sept. 4 at Friendship Day

Ethnic dancing, a gymnastic exhibition and an address by U.S. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., will highlight the annual Baltic Friendship Day celebration Sept. 4.

The observance will be at the Estonian House on Milwaukee Avenue, Prairie View. It will be a chance for Midwestern Estonians, Latvians and Lithuanians to renew friendships and "to support the demand of the people in their homelands for restoration of freedom," said Olaf Pikat, vice president of Estonian House.

Entertainment will include Latvian singers, Lithuanian folk dancers and modern rhythmic gymnastics by Estonian dancers from Toronto, Canada. After dinner on the grounds of the house, the Stelmokas Lithuanian band will play continental and contemporary dance music. Admission is $3 for adults, $1 for students and free for those under 16.

Besides the celebration, Pikat said the Friendship Day is intended to focus attention on the human rights issue in the Baltic states.

Cubs' win is a big relief

CINCINNATI — The Cubs found unexpected bullpen strength during their 5-2 come-from-behind victory over the Reds, but Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson found nothing but grief every way he turned Tuesday night.

While the Cubs increased their lead over NL East rival Philadelphia to two games, the World Champion Reds fell back to the .500 level again and Anderson had no one to blame but himself.

The Cubs, still reeling from the news that Bruce Sutter may be out of action for an indefinite period, got good sandbagging efforts from Willie Hernandez, Pete Broberg and Dave Roberts who combined with starter Bill Bonham for a five-hitter against the slugging Reds.

But Anderson, beleaguered by the umpires, the critics and by his own hometown fans, went longer with rookie righthander Mario Soto than good sense or unwritten baseball law allows.

SOTO WAS COASTING along, leading 1-0, with a six-hit shutout until two were out in the eighth when he began to tire. After the 21-year-old Soto retired Ivan DeJesus and Larry Biittner on ground balls, the roof caves in on him as Anderson sat back in the dugout apparently willing to do nothing about it.

Bill Buckner walked and Jerry Morales followed with a line single to center. Most managers would have seen enough, especially since Soto had been in several scrapes earlier in the game. But in Sparky's case, a trip to the mound seemed particularly imminent since the Reds' boss had removed his ace, Tom Seaver, in the seventh only the night before. For that action, Sparky was roundly booed.

But Anderson made no move as Soto walked Bobby Murcer to load the bases, then failed to get the ball over the plate to either Steve Ontiveros or pinch-hitter Jose Cardenal, forcing in the tying and go-ahead runs.

Only then did reliever Dale Murray enter the game, but he was greeted with an RBI single by Manny Trillo and a two-run single by George Mitterwald, neither of whom had started the contest for the Cubs.

BY THIS TIME, Cub manager Herman Franks was beginning to look around for somebody to "mop up," not necessarily an easy job against the punishing Reds' hitters. Franks had already used Hernandez, who was lifted for Cardenal and eventually received credit for the win.

Sutter is closer to the disabled list than ever with his knotted back muscle and Paul Reuschel is in the doghouse after his recent poor performance. So Franks, who was given a one-year extension on his Cub contract Tuesday, gave the call to Pete Broberg. He pitched a nervous eighth before surrendering George Foster's 35th homer to lead off the ninth.

Franks' next bold move was to bring in lefthander Roberts, who had pitched three innings Monday night in his Cub debut. Roberts, who had been 4-10 with Detroit, retired Dan Driessen, Johnny Bench and Ed Armbrister to get the save.

Bonham hurled his third straight strong effort for the Cubs, but for the second time in a row Bonham's teammates did no hitting for him. The darkhaired righthander left the game for a pinch-batter in the seventh, trailing 1-0. Bonham had pitched six innings and allowed just three hits, two of them singles by Bench and Cesar Geronimo after a walk to Foster in the second.

Soto had beaten the Cubs last Wednesday in his first big league start and he looked just as sharp Tuesday night. He gave up doubles to Ontiveros and Morales in the second and fourth but pitched out of both jams. He bailed out of major trouble in the sixth after a double by DeJesus and a single by Biittner put Cubs at first and third with no out.

With the game, like his team's pennant chances, practically out of grasp, Anderson was thrown out in the eighth after Joe Morgan was retired on a close play at first.

Sox blow lead, game to Rangers

by BOB GALLAS

White Sox President Bill Veeck looked out from his press box vantage point Tuesday night as a downpour hit Comiskey Park in the second inning, and recalled the 1959 season, when the Sox last won a pennant.

"As I recall, we didn't have one rainout at home that entire season," said Veeck, whose club had to sit out a one hour, 45-minute rain delay before play was resumed. The Sox have had only one rainout all season.

They could have used an official rainout this time. In their most agonizing loss of the season, a game that could haunt them down the stretch, the Sox blew a 7-0 lead and dropped a 9-8 decision to the surging Texas Rangers.

Texas scored six runs in the eighth and a single marker in the ninth off relief pitchers Lerrin La Grow and Bart Johnson to cut the Sox division lead to 3½ games over Minnesota.

The delay didn't hurt the Sox bats, which rapped out two runs in the second, third and fifth innings following the delay to take a 6-0 lead.

PLAY WAS halted with one strike on Richie Zisk, who was leading off the second inning against Texas starter Doyle Alexander. When play resumed, Zisk singled, Oscar Gamble doubled and Jim Spencer singled to produce the first run. A fielder's choice by Chet Lemon brought in the second run.

The Sox added more in the third when Rangers' shortstop Bert Campaneris threw an inning-ending double play ball into right field, opening the door to two more runs as Alexander was replaced by lefthander Roger Moret.

The delay didn't hurt Sox starter Ken Kravec, who was seeking to run his record to 8-2 with a win Tuesday. The 26-year-old lefthander came up with two perfect innings following the delay, giving up only two hits in the first four innings following the delay.

The Sox made it 6-0 in the bottom of the fifth when Zisk slammed a two-run homer that hit the foul pole in the left field upper deck. It was his 22nd round-tripper, a career high.

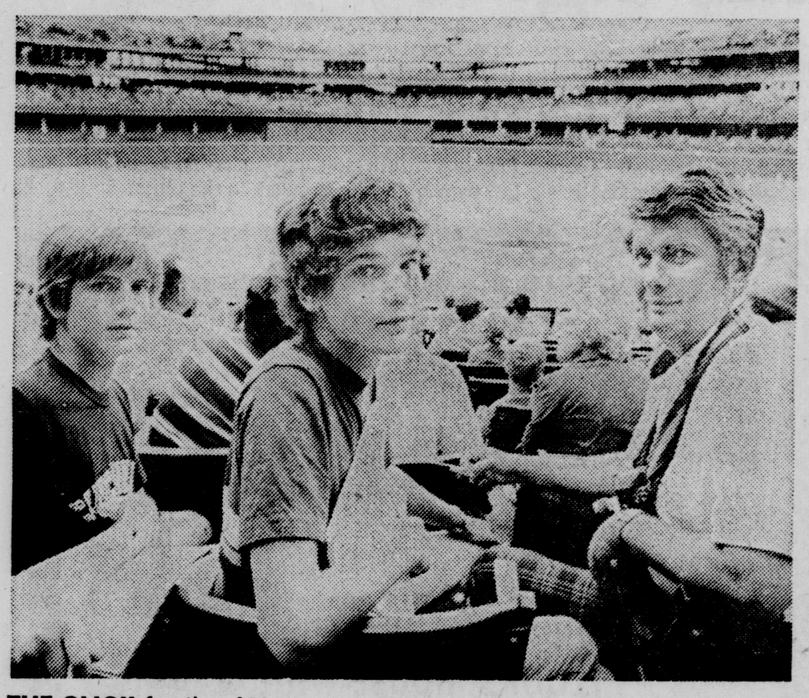
BOTH RALPH GARR and Jorge Orta continued their hot hitting and now have hit safely in 32 of their last 34 games.

Kravec worked his way out of a jam in the sixth when he gave up a leadoff double to Mike Hargrove. Kravec struck out Campaneris, got Keith Smith to fly out, then struck out Willie Horton to retire the side.

The Sox added another run in the sixth on a leadoff doubled by Chet Lemon, who went to third on an infield out and scored an Alan Bannister's single, as the Sox took a 7-0 lead.

The Rangers foiled Kravec's shutout in the seventh after Bannister's throwing error on what would have been the third out led to two unearned runs. After Bump Wills had gotten to second on Bannister's error, Jim Sundberg walked and Claudel Washington doubled in both runs.

Despite the rain, Tuesday's attendance was a respectable 19,014 paid.



THE CLICK family of Vancouver, Wash. (from left, John, Carl and Bill) await the start of the Reds-Cubs game at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium. This was the Click's seventh major league baseball park in a month-long trip to all 26 major league facilities in the United States.

Around the leagues in 31 days . . .

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A father and his two teenaged sons are making the baseball trip of a lifetime — watching games in all 26 major league parks in one month.

Bill Click, 44, a school teacher from Vancouver, Wash., and sons Carl, 17, and John, 15, figure to put more than 13,000 miles on their station wagon by the time they complete their whirlwind coast-to-coast trip at Oakland Stadium Aug. 23.

"It's been great so far," Click said Monday night at the Cincinnati Reds-Cubs game, stop No. 7 on the tour.

"We've driven nearly 5,000 miles in the past week, but we're not tired yet."

EARLY TUESDAY the ambitious trio headed to Milwaukee, stop No. 8, to take in the doubleheader between the Brewers and Indians.

Stop No. 9 comes Wednesday night at Minnesota to see the Twins battle the Tigers, stop No. 10 is Thursday night at Chicago to see the White Sox entertain the Rangers, and on and on it goes.

Every place they go they are asked the same question — Why?

"A year ago we were watching a Monday night game on TV from Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh and someone said it sure would be neat to actually be in that ballpark," said Carl. "And then one of us — we forget who — said it would be great to be in all the parks.

"SO, WE DECIDED to try it. We've been working on the trip for almost a full year — we didn't get everything lined out until just before we left for our first game (July 24, California at Seattle)."

The trip has been meticulously planned.

At Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium Monday night, the trio studied plastic-covered itinerary sheets — complete with routes marked out on a map of the United States — that they have compiled for the journey.

"We've been corresponding the past year with baseball officials all over the country," said Carl, "making sure we can get tickets and working out our travel plans. Everything is on schedule so far."

BETWEEN SEATTLE and Cincinnati in the past week, the three have seen games in San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Houston and Atlanta.

What's been the best ballpark so far?

"Dodger Stadium," offered Carl. "The natural turf there is in perfect condition and it's just a beautiful ballpark."

The best game?

"The Expos versus the Padres at San Diego last Wednesday," quickly snapped John, pulling out the big scorebook in which he keeps score of every game. The scorebook figures to be one of the most unusual ever when the trip is through.

CARL, WHO WANTS to be a journalist, is writing stories about his experiences and calling them in to his hometown newspaper.

Bill, whose wife Peggy is back home with their two daughters, is the official trip photographer.

"I've never taken so many pictures in my life," he said. "We got down on the field once before a game and I bet I took 100 pictures of my boys with the players."

Bill is sharing the driving with Carl (and John, with a learner's permit, even helps out a little). A mattress in the back of the station wagon serves as bed two nights out of three. Every third night they try to stay at a motel.

"THE TRIP IS costing us about $2,000," said Bill. "About $500 to fix up the car before the trip and we figure about $800 for gasoline.

"It's a long trip, but it's fun and I'm getting to know my boys even better than ever," added Bill.

Sting still looking for home in Chicago

Byline report

Art Mugalian

People flock to Soldier Field for the strangest reasons. They go to see Peter Frampton play the guitar or the Bears play against themselves.

What they apparently won't go to see at Soldier Field is world caliber soccer featuring the Chicago Sting of the North American Soccer League. The Sting just concluded their third home season in Chicago, averaging less than 5,500 fans per game at beautiful Soldier Field. The team's quixotic, month-long quest for a playoff berth failed to perk fan enthusiasm.

Owner Lee Stern and general manager Jim Walker have to feel that the location and present condition of the ancient lakefront stadium is the major obstacle in the path of the Sting's continued good growth and prosperity.

AFTER ALL, soccer in America has become a fabulous overnight success, a cover topic for national magazines and a sport whose time has come.

Except in Chicago, where the game of soccer takes a back seat to the Super Bowl of Rock.

"The Eastern press has finally recognized soccer growth," said Walker, who once worked for the Chicago Fire. "And it hurts that the writers throw us in with the poor franchises of the league — Rochester, Connecticut . . . and Chicago. That really hurts.

"What they don't know is that we have a strong franchise," Walker added. "We have a strong owner and a strong organization."

The Sting is a big mystery to the preponderance of Chicago sports fans, most of whom confuse a midfielder with a centerfielder and think a striker is looking for a better contract.

WALKER PUTS most of the blame squarely on Soldier Field, although he admits that a losing Sting team in 1977 hasn't helped.

"People say to us that it takes them as long to get through the Loop as it does to get to the Loop," said Walker.

"We would like to play someplace north or northwest or west," he said. "We feel that's where our playing and spectator public is.

"Around the league there are some really nice 20,000-seat stadiums like in San Jose or Toronto or Dallas," Walker said. "Boy, we look at those and we think wouldn't it be great to put that stadium in Arlington Heights or Palatine."

Walker's preliminary investigation into the possibility of playing pro soccer in a place like Palatine produced nothing but a dead-end. "We'd have to spend an awful lot of money just to raise the capacity of a high school stadium to 10,000 or 15,000," Walker pointed out.

SO IT SEEMS almost certain that the Sting will play its 1978 season games at Comiskey Park, where a couple of games were played two years ago. Stern, a part-owner of the White Sox, has vowed that his soccer team will play no more at Soldier Field.

"Nothing's really been decided yet," said Walker. "But we finally just agreed that we're a major league team and we want to play in a major league facility.

"At Comiskey Park there are so many more things you can do," Walker continued. "There's the intimacy, you're closer to the field. There's better parking, better access. You can sell beer. There's more promotional things you can do."

Theere's still an outside shot that the team can play its home games at Dyche Stadium in Evanston, provided any and all legal roadblocks are removed. "Dyche Stadium would be nice for us, though not ideal," said Walker.

WALKER POINTED to crowds in excess of 40,000 in places like Minnesota, Tampa, and Seattle — evidence, he said, of surging soccer popularity. "They had 46,000 in New York the other night against Connecticut, the worst team in the league," he said.

"Interest is growing," Walker said. "In places like New York they're starting to come out to see things other than Pele. It's encouraging for the league and it renews our confidence, but we get a little envious to see everybody else doing so well."

The 1977 Sting were coming off a playoff appearance the previous season and interest in the team seemed to be at a peak. Then they lost their first six games and interest quickly dropped off.

"Our feeling is that we salvaged about as much of our season as we could," said Walker. "That is, after the bad start and the bad middle of the season. But our goals were pretty modest, almost to the point where I was pleased with what we did.

"OUR CLUB WILL be improved next year, bigger and better," he promised.

"You know, there was a lot of yelling at our last game," said Walker, who was among 5,201 closing-night fans. "Even though we lost, they saw a good game."

Kingman blast stops Phils

From Herald Wire Services

Dave Kingman hit a two-run homer and Rollie Fingers picked up his 23rd save Tuesday night to lead the San Diego Padres to a 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

In other National League play Tuesday night, St Louis defeated Atlanta 6-4, Montreal routed San Francisco 10-2, Los Angles downed New York 7-2 and Pittsburgh topped Atlanta 6-3.

Kingman's homer, his 15th of the year, came after a Bill Almon doubled in the third inning and tagged Jim Kaat with his seventh loss in 11 decisions.

Bob Owchinko picked up his fourth win against seven losses with Fingers hurling the last two innings. The Phillies knocked out Owchinko in the eighth when Terry Harmon walked and Jerry Martin doubled.

Fingers came on to get Larry Bowa on a popup, Mike Schmidt on a sacrifice fly that scored Harmon, and struck out Greg Luzinski to end the threat.

AL baseball

PINCH-HITTER DAVE Rader's two-run single capped a three-run ninth inning that enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to defeat the Atlanta Braves, 6-4.

With the score tied 3-3, Ted Simmons walked off Phil Niekro, 10-13, and the Cardinals then got a break when shortstop Darrel Chaney dropped a throw at second base on Keith Hernandez' sacrifice bunt attempt.

After Ken Reitz sacrificed, Tony Scott was intentionally walked and Mike Tyson followed with a fly to medium right field that scored Simmons. Rader then singled to right-center, scoring Hernandez and Scott.

Andre Dawson delivered a two-run triple and Larry Parrish added a two-run homer during an eight-run seventh inning that carried the Montreal Expos to a 10-2 rout of the San Francisco Giants behind the four-hit pitching of Steve Rogers.

Ellis Valentine drove in three runs for the Expos, including two during the seventh inning uprising, as the Expos snapped a four-game losing streak and tagged rookie Bob Knepper with his sixth loss in 10 decisions.

Rogers, who leads the National League with 14 complete games, walked only one and struck out eight in gaining his 12th victory against nine losses. The only runs off him came on Randy Elliot"s pinch-hit homer in the eighth inning.

SOUTHPAW TOMMY John spaced eight hits to win his 12th game and Steve Yeager climaxed a three-run seventh inning with a bases-loaded single to key a 7-2 victory by the Los Angeles Dodgers over the New York Mets.

With the score 2-2, he Dodgers filled the bases against loser Jerry Koosman in the seventh on a single by Reggie Smith, Ron Cey's double and an intentional walk to Steve Garvey.

Koosman then walked Dusty Baker to force home the go-ahead run before Yeager followed one out later with a line two-run single which Mets' center fielder Joel Youngblood nearly snared with a diving catch attempt.

Bill Robinson stroked a three-run homer in the 10th inning to lift the Pittsburgh Pirates to a come-from-behind 6-3 triumph over the Houston Astros.

The Pirates, taking advantage of a throwing error by third baseman Enos Cabell, scored two runs in the ninth inning to tie the score at 3-3.

Twins smash Royals again, 9-4

Butch Wynegar hit a three-run homer and Dan Ford added a solo blast Tuesday night to pace the Minnesota Twins to a 9-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals and help Dave Goltz to his 13th triumph.

In other American League action Tuesday night, Cleveland crunched Milwaukee 9-2 in the first game of a doubleheader, while New York was at California and Boston was at Seattle.

WYNEGAR CRACKED his seventh homer of the year to drive in the Twins' final three runs in the fifth and Ford led off the Twins' four-run fourth inning with his 10th homer off starter and loser Andy Hassler, 6-4. Ford also singled in Minnesota's first run, driving in Rod Carew who doubled with two outs in the first.

Bob Gorinski singled in one of the Twins' four runs in the fourth and two others scored when shortstop Bob Heise mishandled a throw from second baseman Frank White on an apparent double play ball.

Al Cowens knocked in three Kansas City runs with singles in the first, third and ninth innings while White slapped a fourth inning single to score Amos Otis with the Royals' other run.

NL baseball

Goltz, recovering from the flu, struggled through 8-2/3 innings, allowing 11 hits while walking four in raising his record to 13-6.

BUDDY BELL singled four times and knocked in two runs and Dennis Eckersley pitched a seven-hitter in leading the Cleveland Indians to a 9-2 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday night in the opener of a doubleheader.

Rain halted play 51 minutes in the second inning with the Brewers leading 1-0 on a double by Steve Brye and a run-scoring single by Lenn Sakata. The Indians took a 2-1 lead in the third on a single by Bruce Bochte, a fielder's choice by Ray Fosse and three straight singles by Duane Kuiper, Bell and Rico Carty.

The Indians chased starter and loser Mike Caldwell, 2-4, in the fourth on a single by Charlie Spikes, an error by shortstop Robin Young, Bochte's sacrifice, an intentional walk to Fosse and a two-run single by Frank Duffy. Fosse then scored on Bell's single.

Andre Thornton slammed his 18th homer for the Indians leading off the fifth and Sal Bando smashed his 13th for the Brewers in the ninth.

To Market attracts eight

Three speedsters, Rueful, Glassy Dip and Bold Sunrise, assure that there will be a lively pace in today's $12,000 featured To Market Purse for four-year-olds and up at one mile over Arlington's main turf course. Eight were named to partake in what promises to be a highly competitive event.

Rueful equalled the track mark of 1:41-4 for a mile and one-sixteenth on the grass here June 24. The five-year-old's next start came in the July 16 Washington Park Handicap where his sixth-place finish indicated he was simply outclassed. He looks to be back with his own kind today and will be after his third win in six 1977 starts. When the Bobby Voelkner trainee tied the track record, he did so in front-running fashion.

Glassy Dip is strictly an early speed horse who is enjoying a good season. In 17 starts, the Diplomat Way colt has triumphed four times, placed three times and showed five times for earnings of nearly $65,000 for trainer John Meaux. Glassy Dip set a track standard for seven furlongs on the sod May 30 at Hawthorne when he rambled seven panels in 1:22-3.

Bold Sunrise has won three of seven starts this season and two of his last three, both at one mile on the grass with a little lesser than these. The four-year-old Bold Reason colt likes to stick close to or set the pace. Trainer Jere Smith has not yet named a rider.

Should the early speed falter, Landscaper, Archie Beamish, Ilefetchit and the entry of King Jerry and Enrique VIII will provide a cavalcade of stretch runners.

Landscaper banked more than $80,000 in 1976 with three victories in eleven starts. Thus far this campaign, the Frank Brothers' charge has bagged a pair of wins in eight tries, including one at Arlington Park. His last try also came in the Washington Park 'Cap where he failed to distinguish himself.

Archie Beamish was victorious July 4 by a length in a mile and one-sixteenth allowance grass test. The four-year-old son of Mr. Leader has done more than earn his keep but would need his best to report home on top in this spot. The entry, just in from California, is from the dangerous Winick barn. Ilefetchit may need this one.

River Forest tennis features top juniors

On Aug. 8-13 River Forest will once again hold its Invitational Tennis Tournament for top ranking junior players. This is the 40th year for this event, which is the only junior national tourney in the area sanctioned by the United States Tennis Association.

This year there will be players from across the country, Puerto Rico and Mexico, as well as many well-known local juniors.

Some of the nationally ranked players expected to attend are David Siegler, Donald Pompan, Andy Gordon, John Hare, Joshua Sarner, Randy Nixon and Matt Murphy.

Local players Bruce Brescia, Oak Park; Paul Wei, Arlington Heights; Eric Korita, Glenview, and Ian McLaughlan, Rock Island are also expected.

Ernie Fernandez, the top ranking 18 year-old in Puerto Rico, as well as the four other ranking Puerto Rican players will be participating. Susan Mascarin, Grosse Pt., Michigan, will be another favorite, being ranked No. 1 nationally in the 12-year-old age group.

This tournament is one of few junior tournaments played primarily on a clay-like surface. Players look forward to the opportunity to play at River Forest to gain experience playing on a clay-like surface as that surface is becoming more predominant on professional circuits.

Spectator admission to the River Forest Junior Invitational Tournament is free. Lunch may be purchased on the grounds or a person may bring his own picnic.

Finals will be played on Aug. 13, at the River Forest Club, Lathrop Ave., two blocks north of Lake Street.

Pre-time play will be held on various River Forest area courts.

Classy Carlton

Percentage man is pitching gem

Jim Murray

If you think you know baseball, what was the greatest pitching feat in the game this decade? Nolan Ryan's four no-hitters? Vida Blue's Cy Young rookie year? Mike Marshall's 106 games in 1974? Tom Seaver's heroics in New York?

No, I would have to classify Steve Carlton's winning 27 games for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1972.

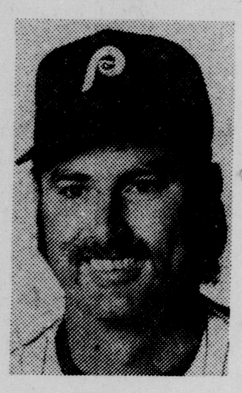
This only tied Sandy Koufax for the most games ever won in a season by a left-hander in the league, but it came to exactly 45.8 per cent of all games the Phillies won that year!

THIS HAS to be the most extraordinary feat by a pitcher ever.

To give you an idea, Cleveland won 111 games in 1954. To gain 45.8 per cent of those victories, a pitcher would have had to win 51.

The year Koufax won 27, his team won 95. Sandy's percentage of that team's success was 28.

Nobody ever carried a franchise the way Steve Carlton did that year — not



Steve Carlton

O. J. Simpson, Red Grange, Babe Ruth, Bill Russell or even Jesse Owens at the '36 Olympics.

CONSIDER THAT the rest of the staff only had 32 wins to go with Carlton's 27. Ken Reynolds won two — and lost 15. Billy Champion won four — and lost 14, 13 of them in a row. Woody Fryman was 4-10 for the Phils and went to 10-3 when traded to Detroit in midseason. Dick Selma was 2-9. It was not a team, it was a sieve. It was like parachuting into Stalingrad.

Yet, Steve Carlton won 15 games in a row for that team. He lost his bid for the 16th, 2-1. In 11 innings.

People are used to pointing to Walter Johnson as the original hard-luck pitcher, throwing out of a hole all his career with the hapless Washington Senators. But in 1912, when Walter won 32 games, Washington won 92. In 1913, when Johnson won 36, Washington won 90. In 1910, Johnson won 24 and the team only won 66, but in 1909, Washington won only 42 games — and Johnson was 13-25. It's a rule of thumb, if the team is bad it can't beat the other pitcher, but it'll find a way to beat its own.

Steve Carlton is no longer called upon to win 45.8 per cent of the Phillies' games — 35 per cent would set off dancing in the streets. He had 13 of the team's 56 wins when he took the mound against the Dodgers here.

FOR A MOMENT, it was like old times again. Steve had good stuff and was sailing along with a two-hitter, the score tied, going into the seventh when he had the kind of inning pitchers' mothers warn them about. There was a walk, a balk, a wild pitch, a passed ball, three more walks, two stolen bases in a row, a fielder's choice that should have been a double play but was no play and a fly ball that turned into a double because the outfield was drawn in to cut off a possible run.

The Dodgers had three runs on really no hits, and Carlton was on his way out of the game with a three-hitter going. He sevened-out again. A plastic chair in the runway bore the brunt of the disappointment. Viewed later, it looked as if it had been run over by a truck, or thrown out of a 10-story window. It was still ringing two innings later.

I asked Steve Carlton between games of the doubleheader if he could recall the 45.8 per cent season vividly. "Well," he said, "the slider was unbelievable, the curveball unreal and the control, ungodly. The fastball was decent. And somehow the team seemed to turn into the Ruthian Yankees when I pitched. I mean, we were a young team they were going with, but they didn't make as many mistakes behind me." Perhaps he inspired confidence? "Well, the next year I (ital) lost (unital) 20," he laughed. "But I had walking pneumnoia and I never did get my strength back."

CARLTON HAD his third 20-game season last year. The Phillies of 1972 are no longer fooled by changeups, don't play the hitters wrong, don't miss the cutoff man or get jamed by canny old-timers on 3-and-2 counts. They are now a veteran team, divisional champions, and probably only a big inning or so away from the World Series. It is a team on which not even Cy Young could win 45 per cent of its games.

"What per cent of this team's wins would you like to have this year?" I asked Carlton. He cocked an eye down the veteran dugout, full of home run hitters. "Would you believe — 20?" he asked.

Four area grid stars prep for Shrine game

NORMAL-BLOOMINGTON — The West is hoping the third time is the charm as it will be seeking its first win in three tries at the Illinois All-Star Football Game next week.

The game will be played at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 6, at Hancock Stadium on the Illinois State University campus, and is jointly sponsored by the Illinois Coaches Association and Mohammed Shrine Temple of Peoria.

Proceeds go to the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children.

Herald area players on the West team are St. Viator products Dave Nicolau and John Gillen, Ben Orcutt of Buffalo Grove and Bryan Amis of Barrington.

COMING PRIMARILY from schools that are west of the Interstate 55 corridor, the team has seven players that were in the state finals last year.

Several of the West players are known for the big play.

Walker led Hampshire to the 1A state title in 1975 and despite being hampered due to a broken collarbone this year, ran for 116 yards and a championship by scoring four touchdowns and throwing for another, including two scores which came on 78 and 79 yard punt returns.

WESSLER TOOK Triopia to the touchdown in the state finals against Hampshire.

Combining the talents of the West will be up to Coach Bob Reade who led 3A champion Geneseo to a 13-0 record including a 20-12 win over Metamora in the state finals last year which halted the Redbirds winning streak at 30.

Reade is familiar with two game breakers of his own in Strader and Brooks.

Both Strader and Brooks were the mainstays of undefeated Geneseo.

STRADER PICKED up 188 yards in 33 carries in the championship contest along with scoring three touchdowns.

Strader and Brooks also combined for 14 tackles in the 3A championship contest.

Reade feels he'll "be working with the very best people in the state and expects a wide open game due to past scores in the all-star contests." Limitations both offensive and defensively allow the games to be offensive oriented," Reade said. The East won 20-12 in 1975 and 28-18 last year.

ACCORDING TO Reade, "it's a great experience for me as a coach to be with the all-star players themselves and the other coaches."

Saints' Manning back for Bears

VERO BEACH, Fla. — Archie Manning will return to the New Orleans Saints' starting lineup for Saturday's opening preseason game against the Chicago Bears.

Coach Hank Stram named Manning the starting quarterback Tuesday. It will be Manning's first appearance on the field since the 1976 preseason when he played briefly in one game.

The former Ole Miss quarterback missed the full 1976 regular season because of shoulder surgery. However, he said he has recovered from the operation and feels no pain in his throwing arm.

Defensive tackle Derland Moore suffered a knee sprain in Tuesday morning's workout and quarterback Bobby Douglass missed the drill because of a cyst on his knee. Both will be sidelined for the Chicago game.

Moore suffered the injury during contact drills and will be out of action three to four days.

Gullett and grass were strangers

LYNN, Ky. — State police said Tuesday they have cleared New York Yankee pitcher Don Gullett of any involvement in the discovery of more than $112,000 worth of marijuana on a farm he owns in northeastern Kentucky.

State police at Ashland confirmed that about 2,800 pounds of marijuana was discovered Monday on Gullett's farm in Lynn but that neither he nor any members of his family was apparently involved in the growing of the weed.

"We are certain he has nothing to do with it," said the spokesman. "But our investigation is centering on who might have planted that large a crop there."

Police said they had several suspects in the case but had made no arrests.

NASL players vote to form union

WASHINGTON — North American Soccer League players have overwhelmingly approved the concept of setting up a players' union similar to those in other professional sports, it was revealed Tuesday.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Assn., said 265 of the NASL's 335 players have signed cards authorizing the NFLPA to act as their collective bargaining agent.

"The response was overwhelming," said Garvey from Denver, where he is attending to NFLPA business. "I thought the cards would come in slowly and there would be a lot of questions, but apparently there is a real need for the organization. "We still haven't received cards from a couple of teams, and I think eventual participation will be almost 100 per cent. I hope the end result is that management will recognize the players' association."

Buffalo Braves to name new coach

BUFFALO, N.Y. — If Buffalo Braves president Norm Sonju has his way, Lowell "Cotton" Fitzsimmons will be named the Braves' new head coach today.

"It will be over this week," Sonju said Tuesday of Fitzsimmons' appointment. "I've been shooting for Wednesday all along."

Sonju had said Fitzsimmons' attorney, Jerry Davis, had talked money and terms of a contract for the former coach of the NBA's Phoenix Suns and Atlanta Hawks.

"All numbers were agreed on," Sonju said. "We gave him (Davis) a couple of models. One is a three-year contract and the other is four-years' two-years guaranteed and two-years not guaranteed."

It appears that once a few minor details were worked out, all Fitzsimmons, 45, will have to do is sign the dotted line.

Gold medalist fighters awarded

NEW YORK — Howard Davis and Sugar Ray Leonard are young men who share a common past and a common goal. In 1976, each achieved worldwide fame by capturing Olympic gold medals in boxing, Davis at 132 pounds, Leonard at 139.

Now they have both shed their amateur status for professional careers which they hope will lead them not only to more championships but to financial security as well.

Arlington girls sweep in softball tournament

Arlington won its first game at the expense of St. Charles, 7-4, behind the five-hit pitching of Amy Rassmussen. Leading hitters in the game were Linda Stowell, Jane Vaughn and Cathy Curran.

The second tournament game proved to be the toughest for Arlington as they slipped by a fine Woodridge team 4-3. Again it was Amy Rassmussen on the mound as she gave up only six hits while striking out three.

The semi-final game saw Rasmussen lending way to Laura Carter on the mound as the Stars beat Glen Ellyn, 9-2. The bulk of Arlington's hitting came from Jane Vaughn, Nancy Erickson, Linda Stowall, Donna Campana and Sheila More.

Arlington's finest hour game during the championship game as the Stars blasted home team Downers Grove 13-0, behind the four-hit pitching of Rassmussen. Leading the way at the plate for Arlington were Paula Coleantonio, Cheryl Drews, Stacey Samples and Carol Kelly.

The Stars next travel to Round Lake for a double-elimination tournament Aug. 15-19.

Schaumburg entry shows unbeaten invite record

A team of competitive 12-year olds from the Schaumburg Athletic Assoc. marked their first appearance in tournament play in rather flashing syle, completing sweep of area teams.

Schaumburg was the only undefeated team in the double-elimination Northlake Invitational Tournament.

Pitcher Matt Callahan was the big winner for Schaumburg as the youngster hurled his Bronco team to two victories. Callahan sandwiched his two wins of the team's four game sweep against Melrose Park, 13-4, and River Forest, 13-1.

Schaumburg's other victories included a win over Northlake, 13-6, and Melrost Park, 7-6.

Schaumburg's batsmen rapped out a tournament high of 14 extra base hits. Don Mueller led the way with a home run and triple. Other home runs were hit by Tom Reader and Dan Murphy.

Reader and Mueller hurled the remaining two victories for Schaumburg during the tournament.

Ask Andy

Gopher plays role in nature's underground

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Lori Isaacson, 12, of Princeton, Ill., for her question:

DOES A GOPHER HAVE ANY VALUE?

Gopher is the common name of the pocket gopher, Geomyidae. He's a rodent and belongs to the same order of animals as the beaver, mouse and squirrel.

You'll find the gopher in all parts of North America except very far north and east. They live in the interior of British Columbia in Canada and as far south as Costa Rica. They can be found west of the Mississippi as well as in Florida, Georgia and southern Alabama.

The gopher is about 10 inches long and has a blunt head, small eyes and ears and short legs. His coat is silky soft fur and brown in color. His forefeet are armed with strong and curved claws that are used for digging. Also pressed into service when it is time to dig are long upper front teeth.

When digging, gophers move slowly through long and complex underground tunnels. They spend much time patrolling their tunnels which often extend for as long as 800 feet. Only during breeding time does a gopher let another gopher into his tunnel.

Since they spend most of their time underground, gophers have very poor eyesight. Aiding in their sense of touch, however, is a short, hairless tail that is tactile — that is, it acts as an organ of touch.

In the balance of nature, every creature has his own important place. While the gopher is a most destructive animal who eats vegetables, trees and farm crops and damages banks of canals and irrigation ditches, he also plays his own part in the scheme of nature. Some of the vegetation he eats isn't the farmer's — and thus he helps to control growing plants as nature intended. And he himself is sought after by other creatures and consumed by them as their part of the total balance of nature.

Pocket gophers have external cheek pouches or pockets. When they pick up buds, farm vegetables, roots, nuts, grasses and other food items, they place it in their cheek pouches before eventually eating it.

There's a constant war going on between the farmer and the gopher. The man of the soil usually says he sees no redeeming graces in the gopher.

WHAT IS VULCANIZED RUBBER?

Vulcanization gives strength, hardness and elasticity to rubber by treating it with heat and vulcanizing agents such as sulfur. Heat causes the sulfur to combine with the rubber and cure it. This makes the rubber stronger and more durable.

A compound containing one-third sulfur and two-thirds rubber vulcanizes to form hard rubber. Benzoyl peroxide is used instead of sulfur to vulcanize silicone rubber.

Vulcanization can take from just a few minutes to as long as several hours. Small products, such as toys, require about five minutes but larger items, such as tires, may take up to an hour. Vulcanization and shaping of molded products can be done at the same time by heating the molds under pressure.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Win at bridge

Notrump nut won't listen

One of the worst complexes a bridge player can acquire is the notrump complex. Everyone likes to play notrump, but no matter how well you play that contract you can't bring it home if you have some real weakness and the opponents are unkind enough to attack you there.

South has a book two notrump response to his partner's opening spade bid. Thirteen high-card points, a balanced hand and all suits stopped.

Many players would throw the book away and respond two diamonds rather than bid this two notrump, but we aren't going to criticize that first bid by South. It was his second bid that showed a complete lack of partnership understanding.

North had opened the bidding with one spade and rebid three spades over South's two-notrump response. This three-spade rebid should have warned South that North didn't like notrump. Hence, South should have raised to four spades instead of repeating his previous notrump call.

North might have insisted on spades, but North had bid the suit twice so North passed to three notrump. West opened a club and North was down two. Five spades would have made easily.

Village 'hostile' in Viator case

by BILL HILL

Arlington Heights officials are accused of racial hostility and insensitivity to low-income housing in a legal brief filed by the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. with the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The statement is made in answer to Arlington Heights' request for a new hearing on the village's 1971 refusal to rezone 15 acres near St. Viator High School for the low-income Lincoln Green housing project proposed by MHDC.

"The implication of statements in the petition (filed by the village) are more distressing for they show the continuing irresponsible attitude of white village officials with respect to the segregated housing crisis in the Chicago metropolitan area," F. Willis Caruso, MHDC attorney, states in the brief filed Monday.

THE VILLAGE'S "assertion that the opinion will require two zoning ordinances -- one for the poor and the black, and another for the rest of the community -- mirrors racial animus and provides insight into the white suburban syndrome that continues to separate black and poor from the rest of the community," he says.

Caruso urges the federal appeals court to uphold its opinion that the village must find a suitable alternative to the Viator site or be found in violation of federal fair housing laws.

A ruling on the village's request that the court's full, eight-judge panel reconsider the ruling made by a three-judge panel July 7 is expected within two or three weeks.

Village officials already have said they will ask the U.S. Supreme Court to hear the case again if the court of appeals ruling is not reversed.

THE HIGH COURT ruled in January that the village's refusal to rezone the site for the 190 townhouses was not unconstitutional but ordered the lower court to decide whether the village had violated the Fair Housing Act of 1968.

Caruso also insists that the village's request for a new hearing should be denied because the court of appeals has given Arlington Heights a second chance to decide where Lincoln Green can be built.

The village insists the case should not be decided on the basis of racial discrimination but only as a "garden-variety" zoning case. No multiple-family development, whether it is for low-income families or not, should be allowed at the Viator site because of the surrounding residential neighborhoods, village officials say.

Ease penalty on marijuana asks Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter asked Congress Tuesday to decriminalize the possession of small amounts of marijuana so that an offense committed by an estimated 45 million Americans no longer would be punishable by a federal prison term.

"This decriminalization is not legalization," Carter said. "It means only that the federal penalty for possession would be reduced and a person would receive a fine rather than a criminal penalty."

The government's campaign against drug traffickers, however, would be stepped up under the President's plan.

He asked Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell to intensify investigations of the link between organized crime and drug traffic, and the Justice, State and Treasury departments to study arrangements with other countries for revoking passports of traffickers and freezing their assets.

IN A SEVEN-PAGE message to Congress announced in a personal visit to the White House press room, Carter also reported that he has ordered a study to determine how barbituates and other sedatives can be most safely used.

"My goals are to discourage all drug abuse in America — and also discourage the excessive use of alcohol and tobacco," Carter said. He did not elaborate on discouraging use of alcohol and tobacco.

Carter said more than 45 million Americans have tried marijuana and an estimated 11 million are regular users.

"We can, and should, continue to discourage the use of marijuana, but this can be done without defining the smoker as a criminal," Carter said.

THE CURRENT federal penalty for possession of small amounts of marijuana, for a first offender, is up to one year in prison and up to a $5,000 fine. Repeat offenders can get up to two years in prison and up to $10,000 in fines.

Carter stresed that federal penalties for marijuana trafficking would remain in force and the states would remain free to adopt whatever laws they wish about the marijuana smoker.

Carter said he was recommending "a conscious and deliberate increase in attention," throughout the federal government on problems relating to abuse of drugs that come originally from legitimate medical sources.

by BILL HILL

A bill totaling $2,900 has been sent to the owner of an Arlington Heights house where garbagemen Monday hauled away about 90 tons of trash.

The bill from the Laseke Disposal Co. to Aurelia Rau, 502 No. Arlington Heights Rd., includes charges of $1,366 for labor and $1,533 to dump the garbage.

The garbage was discovered Saturday when Cook County authorities evicted Shirley Bright, about 50, and her mother, Phoebe Mollenkamp, about 75, for not allowing Miss Rau in to fix a broken water pipe.

The whereabouts of the two women who lived in the rear of Miss Rau's two-story house were unknown Tuesday.

Related story on Page 8

THE ITEMIZED bill mailed Tuesday by Laseke charges for 136 man hours of labor and the dumping of two trash and 295 cubic yards of comtrasy and 295 cubic yards of compocted refuse.

This is equal to 12,200 of the standard 30-gallon garbage cans full of trash or two cans a week for 117 years, according to figures of Henry Laseke, president of Laseke Disposal Co., Arlington Heights.

Another rough estimate used by Laseke is that one gallon of garbage usually equals about one pound. Using that equation, the garbage hauled away Monday equaled 183,000 pounds, or 91.5 tons.

Although the bill for hauling the trash was sent to Miss Rau, the village may end up having to pay the charge and then put a lien on Miss Rau's property, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said Tuesday.

THE LIEN WOULD mean that a subsequent purchaser of the property would have to repay the village.

"The village is involved whether we like it or not. There was a health problem so we authorized Laseke to haul the garbage away," Hanson said.

The lien could also involve the payment of water bills, Hanson said, if Miss Rau is unable to pay the charges totaling nearly $1,000 because of the water pipe broken since January.

Miss Rau was unavailable for comment Tuesday, but her attorney, Stephen Jurco, said he does expect her to file a suit for damages.

"A suit would have to be based on the possibility of recovery, and the likelihood of the tenants having any funds is very slim," Jurco said.

THE EVICTION proceedings, which were begun in January, were not culminated until this week because authorities were unable to serve the court order on Mrs. Bright and her mother in previous attempts.

"They knew that eviction attempts were being made so they wouldn't answer the door and they concealed themselves," Jurco said.

Working group on Mideast peace to meet

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (UPI)—Faced by disagreement over crusial issues, Sec. of State Cyrus Vance and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Tuesday a working group of Israeli and Arab foreign ministers will meet in the United States next month to pave the way for a full-scale Geneva conference.

Sadat said in a nationally televised news conference after his second meeting with Vance that the group would deal with matters of substance as well as procedure.

The working group would be the first negotiating session between the Arabs and Israelis and would thus represent a preliminary to the Geneva conference and a substitute for the early stages of such a conference.

ARAB AND Israeli foreign ministers met briefly in Geneva in December 1973, but there was no negotiating at that session.

Vance said the working group "will meet as long as it is useful."

He said the ministers would meet in the United States in mid-September, most likely in New York, but possibly in Washington as well.

The announcement of the working group followed reports from Egyptian sources that Sadat rejected an American compromise plan for a five-year phased withdrawal of Israeli forces from occupied territories in exchange for a similarly timed transition to "full peace" between Israel and the Arab states.

"We may be differing (with the Americans) on certain issues," Sadat said, "but the fact remains that we are both seeking peace built on justice."

Neither Sadat nor Vance defined those differences but the Egyptian president showed a flash of momentary anger when he discussed the possibility of a five-year delay in the withdrawal of Israeli forces.

"We are ready to achieve peace," he said. "I am ready to sign a peace agreement tomorrow . . . Israel should do the same and withdraw from all occupied lands . . ."

Neighbors want to forget family slaying

by NANCY SERRITELLA

It's still a little bit frightening to think about what happened in that Barrington Hills house five years ago.

It remains a tragic memory, an unexplained and senseless killing, that today is lodged in the sensibilities of residents of the exclusive suburb. It is a memory they do not enjoy recalling, for it was about this time in 1972 that the story broke. They haven't forgotten.

Retired insurance executive Paul Corbett and his family were the targets of a racially motivated execution murder by a black gang.

FOUR PERSONS were killed. The family's tiny dog went first, then a daughter, Barbara Boand and Mrs. Corbett's sister, Dorothy Derry, who were visiting. Paul Corbett and his wife, Marion, were then killed.

They were 10 feet from a burglar alarm.

As one Barrington Hills policeman said, "The murder put Barrington Hills on the map."

Although Bateman Circle where the killings took place is as quiet today as the day of the murder, discussion of the incident with neighbors, police and local officials touches a sensitive nerve.

A MAJOR impact of the Corbett murders has been the change in the police department and a new awareness that crime can happen anywhere. In this affluent suburb of rolling hills and secluded home sites, there is a need for security.

"People suddenly realized they needed us more. We were no longer a sleepy little operation. People were suddenly more aware of the location and the kind of people who live here," Barrington Hills Sgt. Robert Swenson said.

Barrington Hills attracted attention across the country. Numerous letters and phone calls from psychics, seers and persons with possible tips or leads were directed to the previously quiet police department.

There were letters from persons throughout the Midwest reporting their mysterious or possibly evil neighbors. There was a letter from a grocery store owner in a town several miles away reporting that two "hipturates, which despite their recognized medical use, are responsible for many deaths and are frequently used in suicide attempts."

Carter ordered the secretary of health, education and welfare to study barbiturates and sedatives to determine conditions under which they can be most safely used. He asked the Pentagon, the Veterans Administration and HEW to review the prescription practices of doctors under their jurisdiction.

"Among young American men aged 18 to 24, drugs are the fourth most common cause of death," Carter said. "The estimated cost of drug abuse in America exceeds $15 billion each year."

Fires scorch across California, Alaska

by United Press International

A fire raced across a popular mountain park near San Francisco Tuesday, forcing evacuation of 50 families and threatening three small developments of homes worth up to $100,000. Alaska, too, was being tortured by flames.

The 3,000-acre fire on Mt. Diablo, visible from 30 miles away, was the biggest of dozens started by an unusual lightning storm Monday night that burned through brush and timber along California's North Coast, tinder dry from the state's long drought.

The California Division of Forestry reported 121 fires in the state, including 66 in the north coast area. Thirteen more were inland in Northern California, 3 in the Fresno area, 18, including the Mt. Diablo blaze, in the San Francisco Bay Area, and 16 in Southern California.

ANOTHER BIG blaze burned 1,500 acres in the Los Padres National Forest, about 20 miles from the site of the disastrous Santa Barbara fire that destroyed 234 homes last week.

In Alaska, 55 fires, mostly sparked by electrical storms, burned over more than a million acres of tundra and timber, posing a threat to nearly a dozen Eskimo villages with about 800 people. One fire burned within five miles of the Alaska oil pipeline.

Alaskan firefighters were hampered by dense smoke from the fires that dwarfed California's, but which were burning in mostly remote areas. Planes were unable to take off because of poor visibility.

"We are taking precautions around the village of Shungnak," said Bill Moody, of the Bureau of Land Management. "If the fire gets much closer, we will be trying to get some of the older people out who may have respiratory problems."

OTHER SMALL California fires burned in rough terrain among the famed redwood trees north of San Francisco and in the Big Sur country to the south.

The fire on Mt. Diablo, parts of which are a state park, began about 6 p.m. Monday when a lightning storm passed over the area. During the warm night, unruly crowds gathered in the nearby town of Clayton to watch it climb the mountain.

"They went crazy, driving across lawns, acting like a bunch of pigs," said Claude Herron, manager of a market.

"People had a bad time all night. People were trying to get in and buy more beer after closing and threatening everybody. We finally had to call the cops to come and close down the place."

THE MT. DIABLO fire was made more dangerous by shifting winds.

"It was small at first here, but then it busted out on us all at once with the winds," said firefighter Mark Powell, 20. "Pine cones were falling off trees and rolling downhill and chased us away."

Some of the evacuees took time to move livestock out of danger before they left. Others watered down their homes with hoses.

Brother Billy tops Jimmy's earnings

• Billy Carter's public appearances and endorsements will earn him a cool half million dollars this year — more than twice his big brother's salary as President. Money Magazine, in its August issue, said Carter's estimated $500,000 income will be earned by charging $5,000 per public appearance, certified check in advance. In contrast, President Carter earns $200,000 in the White House plus an expense allowance of up to $150,000.

• Actor Alfred Lunt, who with his wife Lynn Fontanne became known as the first family of the American stage, remained critically ill Tuesday at Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago. Lunt, 84, was admitted to the hospital July 20 and underwent bladder surgery the next day. Hospital spokesmen have declined to disclose the specific nature of his ailment. "He is semiconscious and resting comfortably," a hospital spokesman said. Lunt and his wife live near Genesee Depot, Wis. The couple made theatrical history from the 1920s to the 1950s. New York's Globe Theatre was renamed the Lunt-Fontanne in 1958 to honor the famous team.

• Mira Bergen had a good time in New York City and even allowed Michael Block to kiss her good night. But there won't be any marriage. "He just wasn't my type. A bit too hyper for me, and I think he may be caught up a little bit with the publicity he's getting," she said. Block recently put his picture on eight New York billboards, advertising for a wife. He's received more than 2,000 responses including one from Miss Bergen.

by NANCY GOTLER

Jim and Wendy Mydlach's marriage may have its ups and downs, but Tuesday night it started at the top — the 13th floor penthouse of the Arlington Park Hilton where they were married.

"I don't like anything ordinary, anything just like everyone else," the new Mrs. Mydlach, 28, of Des Plaines said after the 7 p.m. ceremony in the same elevator where she met her husband last October.

"We know it's unusual, but we're both sentimental," she said. "I guess that's really why we decided to do it."

DURING THE 15-minute ceremony, the Mydlacks, their best man and matron of honor stood inside the 10-foot wide elevator with 50 guests lining the corridor straining to get a glimpse of them.

The Rev. Robert Jones of the Temple of Learning Church in Evanston performed the ceremony — the first marriage in his three-year ministry — and read a passage from Kahlil Gibran's "The Prophet."

"I'm a personal friend of Jim's and when he asked me to marry him in an elevator it was kind of unexpected," Jones said. "But I don't feel it's offensive at all. I think an elevator makes a nice chapel."

A white runner lined the corridor and elevator floor, and bouquets of pink and white daisies and baby's breath were placed atop columns outside the open elevator doors.

DURING THE RECEPTION at the Hilton, Mydlach, 27, of Santa Monica, Calif., said, "All I know is I have the greatest little girl in the world and I'm going to spoil her rotten."

The Mydlachs plan to live in Des Plaines with Wendy's mother, Frances Siegrist, until September, when they will honeymoon in Hawaii and move to Santa Monica, where Mydlach is a salesman for a novelty company.

The bride and groom's parents said they were "shocked but pleased" when they heard of the wedding plans last month.

"It came as quite a shock, but as long as they're both happy it was all right with us," Lorene Mydlach of Morton Grove, Jim's mother, said.

HER HUSBAND, Stan, agreed.

"It's fantastic. I was surprised when they first told us about it because it's different. But we didn't try to talk them out of it. They're both sentimental and we went along with whatever would make them happy."

The bride wore a long, white organdy dress with a matching hat and the groom wore white slacks, a coral et and pink shirt.

Their matching wedding bands formed an arrow of diamonds.

"Jim and I met on the way down the elevator after a party in the hotel," Mrs. Mydlach said before the prime rib and wedding cake dinner.

"But now," she said, gazing up affectionately at her husband, "we're both on the way up — together."

pies" had been in the store sometime that day. There was a letter from a doctor from another state who wrote of an incident similar to the Corbetts', in which his family was robbed at gunpoint but not murdered.

"I FEEL ALL these people were legitimately trying to help us," Swenson said.

But the police sergeant added that none of the tips led to the eventual arrest of the killers, members of a black gang called the De Mau Maus.

"We were really grateful for the help of the Cook County Sheriff's Dept. We could never have solved it if we had to do it alone," Swenson said. "I think everyone is confident that the murders have been solved and that the proper people were convicted of the crime."

The four victims had been found dead or dying in the pantry of the home, all having been shot at close range with a .30 caliber carbine and a .25 caliber pistol. Although some household items and about $100 in cash were taken, valuable paintings and jewelry were left. Police said there were no signs of forced entry to the home.

More than a year later, in mid-October of 1973, eight members of the De Mau Mau gang were arrested in Chicago and charged in nine murders, including the four in Barrington Hills.

THE DE MAU MAUS, four of whom were convicted for the Corbett murders, were a gang of dishonorably discharged Vietnam War veterans who had met while attending Malcom X College on Chicago's West Side. The nine murders were found to be racially motivated.

"People were uptight for a while after it happened. Of course everyone was scared. But not anymore. Those who were arrested for the murders weren't looking for anyone in particular," Swenson said.

The Corbett home now is owned by Tony Accardo, Jr., son of the Chicago mobster. They were not available for comment.

One neighbor said the Accardos would not discuss the murders even if they were home.

"They knew the history of the house when they bought it," she says. "But they would not appreciate questions about it. They have small children and they don't care for their children to be reminded of it. I don't think they want their children to know."

OTHERS WANT so vehemently to forget that they attempt to suppress discussion or media coverage of the murders. Some Bateman Circle residents even asked the village president to intercede for them — to keep the media from printing reminiscences of that Aug. 5 evening.

While some react violently to the topic, saying no good can come from recalling the murders, others say it could have happened anywhere. The police discuss it as a matter of record.

"People were pretty touchy for about the first year," Swenson said. "But everything's gone back to its normal state. After the first year all the excitement died down. It's amazing how people can block unpleasant things from their minds."

SWENSON, WHO discusses the case easily now, said he had nightmares the first week after the murders. Swenson was the first police officer to respond to the scene of the multiple murders.

"We were shorthanded that night. I think I was the only one on duty," Swenson recalls. "I got a call to respond to the home, but I was under the impression it was a suicide. Until I got there I didn't really know what it was.

"When you think about it, I've seen a lot worse. Any traffic fatality is usually more gruesome than that. There wasn't really all that much blood," Swenson said. "But it was the fact that one person had done this to one other person. That really got to me."

One Bateman Circle resident, who asked not to be named, said "Some people were frightened. They were afraid it would be like the Tate murders — if they did it once they'll do it again.

"People who didn't live here couldn't understand why we stayed. But I guess I'm a fatalist. I feel it could have happened in any neighborhood."

Makarios dead at 63

Archbishop Makarios

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Archbishop Makarios, president of the troubled island of Cyprus since it gained independence from Britain in 1960, died early Wednesday following his second heart attack in fourth months. He was 63.

A government spokesman said Makarios, who was to be 64 Aug. 13, died at 5:15 a.m. (10:15 p.m. CDT).

Makarios, who has been president of Cyprus since its independence in August 1960, was taken seriously ill late Tuesday. Officials said he suffered a miocardial infarction, or obstruction of blood flow to the heart, similar to his first heart attack April 3.

All cabinet ministers were called to the archbishop's palace within the walled city of Cyprus.

With the independence of Cyprus on Aug. 16, 1960, Makarios became president and with no opposition, he was declared re-elected to a five-year term in February 1973.

Makarios has been the major political figure on the island with a population of about 700,000, whose political evolution has been shaped by conflicts between its Greek ethnic majority and Turkish minority. Greek Cypriots have long advocated "enosis," or union with Greece, while Turkish Cypriots have favored partition of the island into Greek and Turkish enclaves.

GOV. GEORGE WALLACE

Wallace seeking divorce: officials

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — George C. Wallace, apparently upset by the travels of his young wife, has decided to seek a divorce after more than six years of marriage, sources close to the crippled governor said.

The sources said Wallace, who had talked privately of the possibility of divorce for more than a year, told his lawyer, Maury D. Smith, to prepare the court papers last month.

The divorce petition, leaked to several news agencies, claims there has been "an irretrievable breakdown of the marriage" between Wallace, 57, and his 38-year-old wife, Cornelia, who was once a professional water skier and who last year admitted tapping her husband's telephone.

IT WAS NOT CLEAR when the divorce papers will be filed, and some friends of the governor speculated he might change his mind, as he reportedly has done several times in the past.

Wallace refused to talk to reporters Tuesday, and his press aide, Elvin Stanton, said he could not comment on the reports. Mrs. Wallace, who was at the Governor's mansion, did not return telephone calls. Smith refused to say whether he had prepared the divorce papers.

Friends of the governor said he increasingly had bten angered by his wife's travels, but had hesitated to seek a divorce both for family and political reasons. Wallace plans to run for the U.S. Senate next year.

MRS. WALLACE has spent less than half her time at the mansion in recent months, friends said, while making trips to Florida, New Orleans and other places. She was photographed water skiing at Cyrpus Gardens, where she once worked.

"She liked to be with younger people," said a friend of Wallace. "The joy of being Alabama's first lady has paled for her."

Wallace has been confined to a wheelchair since he was crippled in an assassination attempt in 1972, less than 17 months after he and Cornelia Wallace were married.

The tapping of Wallace's bedroom telephone was later explained by Mrs. Wallace as an attempt to learn who was spreading "destructive rumors" about her. She said Gerald Wallace, the governor's brother, "spread rumors that I have slept with every state trooper around." Gerald Wallace denied the allegation.

Mob task force formed by county

A task force has been formed to investigate a wave of mob-style executions in the Chicago area during the last two years, Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey said Tuesday. "We anticipate that as we accumulate evidence, we will make use of the grand jury," Carey said. Mob experts have estimated there have been nearly 40 gangland slayings in the area during the past 3½ years. Six murders in the past 10 months have been linked to a mob war for control of the lucrative stolen auto racket. Carey said the investigation, to be headed by Thomas M. Burnham of Carey's office, will also look into the slaying of mob kingpin Sam Giancana, shot to death in his home slightly more than two years ago. The most recent crime syndicate figure to be killed was Sam Annerino, 34, gunned down last week outside a suburban Oak Lawn furniture store. Authorities speculated Annerino succeeded south suburban junk dealer Richard Ferraro, 36, as the mob's director of the stolen car racket. Ferraro dropped out of sight June 13.

A Cook County criminal court judge Tuesday continued to Aug. 23 court action against Leonard Valente, the reputed crime syndicate figure accused of the 1976 bombings of the Arlington Park Theater and LeGourmet restaurant. Valente, 42, appeared Tuesday before Judge William Cousins Jr. along with four other persons accused of running a burglary ring in the West and Northwest suburbs. The five were indicted June 13 by a Cook County grand jury after a lengthy investigation which led authorities to a trail of stolen goods found in Valente's electronic parts supply store in Dolton.

Authorities also found a cache of dynamite and plastic explosives hidden in Valente's store after Valente was implicated in the bombings by informant Louis Almeida, the man who testified against crime syndicate figure Harry Aleman in the trial in which Aleman was acquitted of murdering a Teamsters Union official. The bombings occurred March 9, 1976 at the restaurant, 500 N. Rand Rd., and April 8, 1976 at the theater. No one was injured in either incident but total damage was estimated at $100,000.

NU med students file lawsuit

More than 260 Northwestern University Medical School students filed suit Tuesday charging a recent tuition increase violates previous contractural agreements between the school and the students. The increase, announced in March, raises medical school tuition from $4,350 to $6,855 starting this fall. The lawsuit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, names Northwestern University President Robert Strotz and the board of trustees as defendants. Students contend the increase was unreasonably and unexpectedly imposed. They said other medical schools in Illinois are far less costly.

Maywood cops reach accord

A contract settlement between the village of Maywood and members of the Combined Counties Police Assn. was announced Tuesday, ending a dispute that led to a four-day epidemic of "blue flu" by 38 police officers. The across-the-board pay increase of $1,150 a year and the shortening of the number of years of experience needed to reach top pay will force Chicago's western suburb to increase property or business taxes, Maywood Trustee Harold Jackson said. Jackson said the raises are retroctive to May 1 and that the village board is expected to approve the agreement at a meeting in the next few days.

Man killed in motorcycle crash

A West Chicago man died late Monday from injuries he sustained when he apparently lost control of his motorcycle and struck a median strip on Golf Road in Des Plaines. Norman Noffsinger, 27, of 804 Church Rd., died from head injuries. He hit the median strip after turning west from Wolf Road onto Golf Road.

Big bucks boosted Bilandic bid

Mayor Michael A. Bilandic spent more than $600,000 in the elections for mayor this year, outspending his rivals by nearly 3 to 1, records filed Tuesday with the Cook County clerk's office show. Bilandic spent $629,560 and had a surplus of $194,231, the records show. Bilandic's main opponent in the April 19 Democratic primary, Alderman Roman Pucinski, spent $168,001 and still owed $21,116 as of June 30.

Alderman Dennis Block, the unsuccessful Republidan candidate in the June 7 election, spent $87,384 and reported a surplus of $3,572. A list of contributors to the Michael A. Bilandic for Mayor Committee included many union groups, contractors and prominent lawyers. The largest contribution — $20,000 — came from the Teamsters Volunteers in Politics.

150 treasurers miss filing date

More than 150 state campaign committee treasurers, including those for 15 Illinois House members, failed to meet the latest filing deadline, a State Board of Elections spokesman said Tuesday. Dick Andersen, chief of the board's public disclosure divison, said the numbeer is nearly half again last year's delinquency rate and he blames the increase on a widespead belief the board is out of business. The Illinois Supreme Court has ruled the way the original four-member State Board of Elections was picked is invalid and the legislature has been unable to come up with a new method. It tackles the problem again this fall. Andersen said 156 campaign committee treasurers failed to file annual reports by Monday, as required by law. The reports cover campaign getting and spending between July 1, 1976 and June 30, 1977. That period covers the general election last year. "I'm going to send certified letters immediately telling these treasurers to get their reports in," Andersen said. "Some probably were delayed in the mail. But those that are tardy will have to get them in by Aug. 15 when the board next meets or they will be named publicly."

Thompson certifies insanity law

Gov. James R. Thompsn Tuesday certified into law a bill (S1143) to keep under close scrutiny persons acquitted of crime by reason of insanity. Thompson, in June, told the legislature he would make S1143 law if it went along with his suggesttd changes. The General Assembly did and Thompson, unde a 1970 state constitutional clause, certified the action meets his approval. To protect the rights of defendants, Thompson said, pre-release exams should not be conducted by Department of Mental Health psychiatrists. The governor also said any change in court orders affecting mentally disturbed defendants must follow a hearing. S1143 originally did not contain these provisions. "This measure," Thompson said, "will provide a judicial check against the risk that an unstable person, inclined to commit crimes, will be released from mental treatment facilities."

CANCER DETECTION

A resting electrocardiogram is taken at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. to detect any heart abnormalities.

Of every six people who get cancer today, two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die, one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. (According to American Cancer Society publication '76 Cancer Facts and Figures.)

The health examination services available at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection include all cancer detection procedures recommended by the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division.

Heart Disease accounts for nearly half of all deaths each year. Unlike most Cancer, Heart Attack can be postponed through reducing one's risk factors such as diet, exercise, blood presure, smoking, etc. Dr. Morris Collen, a well-known specialist in preventive medicine, was quoted in the January, 1977 Issue of FORTUNE "if one has a checkup every year or two at age thirty-five and thereafter, directed at postponable diseases, the mortality rate from those diseases after seven years is approximately 50 percent of what it would have been without exams."

The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a preventive health screening examination designed for three purposes:

1. To establish a health profile for each individual to be used as a baseline for future care.
2. To analyze an individual's risk factors for heart disease and cancer and statistically forecast probable life expectancy and suggest ways it might actually be increased by reducing the risk factors found.
3. Screen for treatable disease. Early detection and prompt treatment increase the probability of a favorable outcome.

This meticulous 3 hour, low cost examination includes a computerized medical history, health risk analysis, physical examination, proctosigmoidoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, over 30 chemical determinations on blood and urine, vision, audiometry, spirometry, glaucoma test, body measurements. Women also receive a pap smear and instruction in breast self-examination. Exercise stress test, 24 hour holter monitor, and echocardiography are available as options.

Dist. 59 board wrapup

Special education staff to be hired

Additional special education personnel will be hired by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to reduce the wait for students needing special services.

A full-time speech clinician and nurse as well as a part-time social worker and psychologist will be hired at a cost to the district of between $19,000 and $22,500. The decision was made Monday by the Dist. 59 Board of Education.

The district's special education advisory council, which recommended the increased staffing, told the board that two junior high schools now receive little or no psychological service and one junior high and five elementary schools receive inadequate or no social work services.

Other council recommendations approved by the board include continuing the council for another year with a budget of $3,000; allocating special education personnel, time and money on the basis of need rather than number of students in a school; and having the district's special education director work to improve communication and progress evaluation for parents of children placed in schools outside Dist. 59.

After-school care to continue

After-school child-care programs at Clearmont School in Elk Grove Village and Jay School in Mount Prospect will be continued for the 1977-78 school year.

The Dist. 59 board approved the programs' continuation provided they be totally supported by parent contributions.

Fifty-one children last spring participated in the programs from 3:30 to 6 p.m. weekdays and offered remedial lessons, study groups, quiet game activities, arts and crafts projects, recreational activities and refreshments.

Supt. Roger Bardwell said the program meets the needs of families where both parents work outside the home and children have little supervision between the end of the school day and the dinner hour.

NSSEO budget voted down

The Dist. 59 board voted not to approve the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization's $4.3 million budget for the 1977-78 school year.

Board members and administrators objected to what they see as their exclusion from the budget development process and NSSEO's failure to look critically at the budget and economize where possible.

Expenditures by the special education cooperative, supported by 10 local school districts, will rise 32 per cent in 1977-78. The increase comes mainly from the addition to NSSEO's program of diagnostic services for children with unusual handicaps, the management of Nipper School in Des Plaines and the planned installation of air conditioning at Kirk Center for the handicapped in Palatine.

With five member districts already voting to approve NSSEO's budget and only one more yes vote needed for final passage, cooperative officials are confident the budget will be adopted next month despite Dist. 59's protest.

"The key in what we're doing is to motivate NSSEO to take a look at its own budget and find where some savings can be achieved," Merlyn Swanson, Dist. 59 administrator for educational services, said. "We don't want them to trim programs, but they should demonstrate some kind of economy."

Dist. 59 contributes $250,000 to NSSEO and has 100 students enrolled in the cooperative's programs, he said. The state reimburses the district for half its costs.

Village board wrapup

Hearings planned on household limit

Arlington Heights plan commissioners will hold hearings on whether to change zoning laws to prohibit more than two unrelated persons from living together.

The village's current ordinance allowing as many as three unrelated persons to live together has come under fire from the Virginia Terrace Homeowners Assn., which recently was formed because of disturbances in the vicinity of 1330 N. Chicago Ave. where three 19-year-old youths reportedly rent a house.

"We don't have anything personal against these boys but it is a clash of lifestyles in the heart of a single-family neighborhood," David Baxter, of 1326 N. Chicago Ave., said.

Baxter told the Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night that loud parties and music at the house often keep neighbors awake. "It's not just on weekends," he said.

Baxter called the current ordinance outdated and unresponsive to the needs of the area. A petition with the signatures of 53 residents who favor changing the ordinance was presented to village officials.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said that rulings in recent years by the U.S. and Illinois supreme courts indicate a law prohibiting more than two unrelated persons from living together is constitutional.

The board sent the matter to the plan commission for public hearings.

Taxi fare review postponed

The village board has postponed until Aug. 15 its consideration of a request for a 15 per cent increase in taxi fares.

The fare increase requested by Robert Birks, owner of the Arlington City Cab Co., asks permission to charge $1.50 for the first mile of a ride, 80 cents for each additional mile and $8 per hour for waiting time.

The board delayed making a decision because Trustee Alfred J. Barboro said the public health and safety committee is considering changing the village ordinances to allow unlimited competition among taxicab companies and deregulation of taxicab rates.

Birks and Chuck Kolls, owner of Arlington Best Cab Co., have opposed those proposals.

Pal-Grove denied expansion

Pal-Grove Shopping Center, Palatine Road and Windsor Drive in Arlington Heights, will not be allowed to expand because of continuing problems with debris and health code violations.

The village board Monday voted 5 to 3 to deny a request from the owners of the shopping center to construct an additional building at the center.

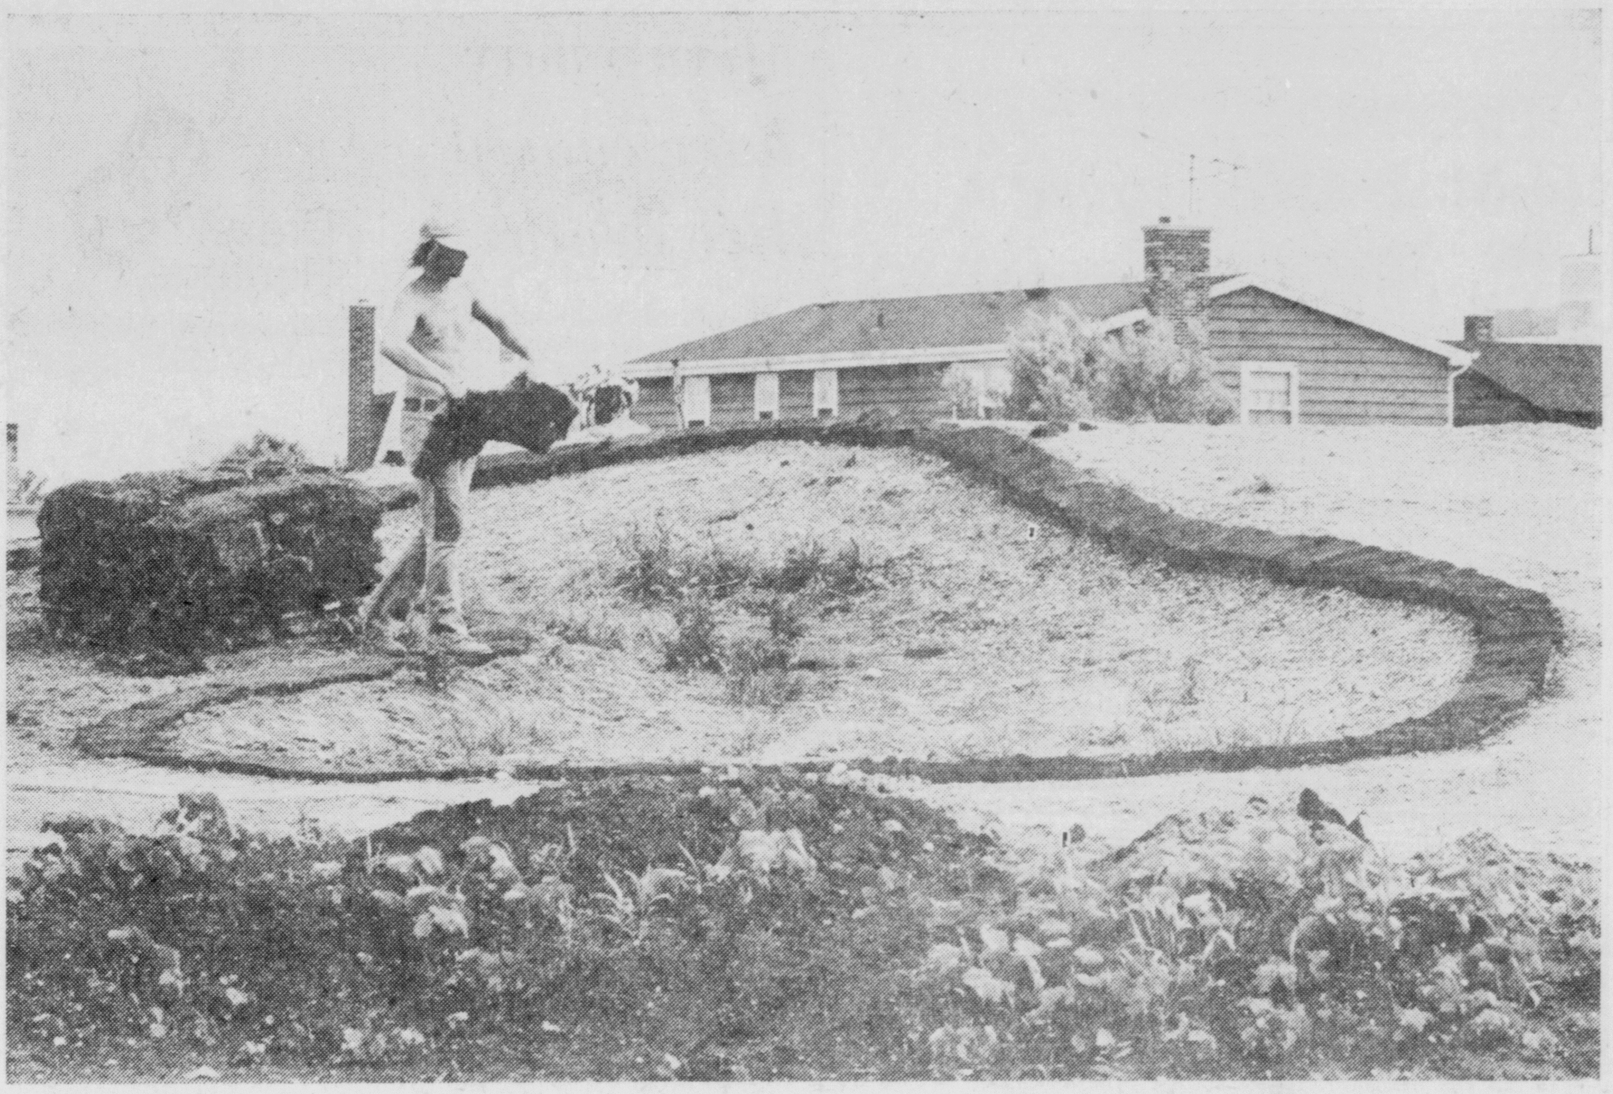
The owners said they have improved debris problems in the past two months but several trustees disagreed.

"It shows damn poor management," Trustee O.V. Anderson said.

"These are the same problems they had in 1971 when the public health and safety committee I was on was looking into the situation," Trustee Ralph Clarbour said.

Village Pres. Jamts T. Ryan argued in favor of the request.

"I think this is hitting someone over the head far harder than you have to," he said.



WORKERS CONTINUE TO LAY sod that next summer will be playable greens at Arlington Lakes Golf Course, the former Nike base at Wilke and Central roads, Arlington Heights. The 80-acre, $1.5 million course is expected to open next Juy.

Cummins must resign Dist. 59 job

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

Leah Cummins has been given until Nov. 1 to resign her position as coordinator of community relations for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 or be fired, board of education member Judith Zanca said Tuesday.

The decision was made late Monday during an hour-long closed session of the Dist. 59 Board. No public action was taken on the question because Dist. 59 attorney Frank Hines advised the board it would be easier for Mrs. Cummins to find another job if she were still employed.

Unsatisfactory job performance and the fact her job is no longer needed were the reasons one board member cited for giving Mrs. Cummins notice.

DIST. 59 IS THE only Northwest suburban elementary school district that has a full-time public relations director. Employed by the district since 1967, Mrs. Cummins publishes district newsletters, surveys residents on various issues and works with school district committees. Her salary is $17,525.

Mrs. Zanca Tuesday called Mrs. Cummins' dismissal "illogical" and "vindictive" and charged that the board was punishing her for the role she played in supporting the formation of an Elk Grove Township unit school district.

Mrs. Cummins was not available for comment Tuesday.

A member of the Committee of 10 Dist. 59 residents who filed a petition seeking formation of the unit district, Mrs. Cummins publicly debated and circulated written information in favor of the school reorganization move.

DEFEATED BY better than a 2-to-1 margin in a referendum last April, the unit district would have combined 21 Dist. 59 elementary and junior high schools with High School Dist. 214's Elk Grove High school in Elk Grove Village and Forest View High School in Arlintgon Heights. Mrs. Cummins formerly was a member of the Dist. 214 Board of Education, serving six years.

"Leah was doing her job by promoting the unit district and now they (the four unit district opponents elected to the board in April) are punishing her for it," Mrs. Zanca said. "I can't prove it, but I'm sure getting Leah out was one of their campaign promises."

She said Mrs. Cummins had a "very good track record" with the district and that especially now her community relations expertise is needed by Dist. 59.

Board Pres. Harold Harvey declined to comment on Mrs. Zanca's charges.

two women Saturday was Mike Raimondi, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center located in North School immediately south of Miss Rau's house.

"At first they were reluctant to talk to me. They felt their eviction was unjust," Raimondi said.

"THEY TOLD ME that they had legal counsel but no housing, so I went and called a social worker. When I went back they said they thought they had a place to go for the weekend," Raimondi said.

He has not heard from them since.

The two women took only two shopping bags filled mostly with clothes, Raimondi said.

They left behind a house filled with garbage: newspapers dating as far back as 1962, old clothes, empty cereal boxes, empty vegetable cans, and milk cartons filled with urine and human excrement.

Woman injured in auto collision

An Arlington Heights woman was hurt Tuesday night when the car in which she was riding collided with another auto at Rand Road and Kennicott Avenue.

Susan M. Fischer, 19, of 902 Alleghany Dr., Arlington Heights, was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, with cuts on her back, police said. A hospital spokesman late Tuesday said Mrs. Fischer was in fair condition.

The Fischer car was traveling north on Rand Road with her husband Edward when he attempted to turn left at Kennicott Avenue and was struck by a south bound auto driven by Carol S. Doland, of Long Grove, who escaped injury.

Marriott kidnap plot foiled; nab 2

The FBI Tuesday arrested a U.S. park policeman who was "tired of being a poor cop," and his brother, on charges they planned to kidnap motel tycoon J. Willard Marriott or Marriott's wife for $500,000 ransom. The FBI accused Paul D. Shepherd, described as a "personable" Park police private of 14 years' service, and his brother, Bill Shepherd, of unwittingly conspiring with an undercover FBI agent to kidnap Marriott or his wife from their Washington home Tuesday morning. Marriott is board chairman of the Marriott Corp., which operates a nationwide chain of motels and restaurants. Paul Shepherd was arrested in Superior Court in Washington when he reported for duty as a court guard. Bill Shepherd was arrested in the rural Maryland country where he works as a school maintenance man. They were charged with violating federal kidnaping statutes which carry maximum penalties of life in prison.

'Sam' has next move: N.Y. cops

With 300 officers working full-time on the hunt for the night stalking killer known as "Son of Sam," police conceded Tuesday the next move was up to the gunman who has already slain six persons and wounded seven others. "The ball is in his court," said Frank McLoughlin, deputy police commissioner for public information. "He decides what to do." McLoughlin said police had "nothing fresh" in their search for the gunman whose most recent attack Sunday left 20-year-old Stacy Moskowitz fatally wounded and her date, Robert Violante, nearly blind. At a news conference at Kings County Hospital, Violante's father, Pasquale, urged the killer to give himself up and rejected the notion of vigilante reprisals. "I wasn't brought up that way," he said.

House OKs abortion money ban

The House voted Tuesday night to continue for another year a ban on the use of federal money to perform abortions for women n welfare except to save the life of the mother. By a vote of 238 to 182 it offered that position to the Senate as a compromise, in an effort to break a stalemate between the House and Senate on the abortion issue. It is now up to the Senate whether or not to accept it. The Senate has already once rejected the same formula 33-65.

LBJ's personal papers to be probed

Lyndon B. Johnson's personal papers concerning his 1948 election to the U.S. Senate will be opened for public inspection for the first time Wednesday, the director of the LBJ Library said Tuesday. A South Texas election official has contended in a series of recent interviews that Johnson stole the 1948 Democratic nomination from former Gov. Coke Stevenson. Luis Salas of Jim Wells County said he certified 202 fictitious votes for Johnson at the instruction of George B. Parr. Johnson eventually won the race by 87 votes, and the race became a significant milestone in his rise to the presidency. Harry Middleton, director of the LBJ Library, said the news media will be permitted to inspect approximately 5,000 pages of Johnson's personal papers beginning at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Escape to Berlin fails–2 men killed

Two men trying to escape to West Germany in a truck died in a hail of Communist gunfire and six others failed in a daring attempt to leap from a train and scale a fence to freedom in West Berlin, officials said Tuesday. The Bavarian Ministry of Interior said Western observers at the Rudolphstein border crossing saw two men in a truck race past the East German police checkpoint Monday night and try to crash through the remaining barriers to West Germany. Communist soldiers raked the vehicle with submachine fire, officials said. The truck crashed into a concrete barrier with such force the cab sheared off and the motor burst from the chassis. Bavarian officials said both men apparently died in the crash. In Berlin, six men tried to escape from a train by pulling the emergency brake cord on the Schwerin-East Berlin express at a point where it parrellels a wire fence separating Communist territory from West Berlin. The train stopped, but other passengers pulled them back into the train.

S. Africa cops to match violence

South Africa's top police officials, warning they had run out of patience with black demonstrators, said Tuesday violence would be met with violence and mass arrests. Riot police carrying shotguns, automatic weapons and batons patrolled the tense township of Soweto, where three blacks have been shot to death since Friday. They used dogs and a round of birdshot Tuesday to break up stone-throwing crowds near the suburb of Dube. Maj. Gen. Dawid Kriel, who controls police antiriot operations nationwide, said police had issued repeated warnings to the population of Soweto and if calm did not return, his men would start making "mass arrests."

Mixup may have caused five deaths

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — The top official of the Suburban General Hospital said Tuesday five deaths could have been caused by a mixup of lines carrying oxygen and nitrous oxide into a new emergency room.

It was disclosed Monday that emergency room patients at the hospital in nearby Norriton Township accidentally received the nitrous oxide, commonly known as "laughing gas," instead of oxygen during a seven-month period from the time the new emergency room opened last December until the mixup in lines was discovered July 6.

Hospital officials said that 300 of the 9,000 persons brought into the new emergency room since it opened last Dec. 15 had been scheduled to receive oxygen during that period.

THERE WERE 35 emergency room deaths during that seven month span.

William Walkup, president of the board of directors of the hospital, said that no more than five persons could have died from the mixup, which he blamed on a construction error.

"I don't imagine the figure going any higher than five," Walkup said. "I'm not expecting any surprises."

The mixup was discovered by Dr. Leonard Becker, chief anesthesiologist, when he noticed a patient who was supposed to be receiving oxygen, turning blue. Becker put the mask to his face and discovered the gas was nitrous oxide.

THE HOSPITAL immediately shut off the gases coming from pipes and tubes extending from two tanks outside the building and switched to portable units.

The mixup was disclosed by an official of the state's Catastrophic Loss Fund, an insurance pool that covers medical facilities.

A team of state Health Department officials immediately began an investigation.

Asked about the delay in making the discovery public, Nathan Wolf, a vice president of the board, said, "We were trying to get all the available information and notify the families. Don't forget, we had 9,000 names to go through."

DR. GEORGE WOLF, another anesthesiologist at the hospital who was asked why it took seven months to discover the error, said, "The majority brought into the emergency room don't require a high concentration of nitrous oxide or oxygen.

"If a patient is administered nitrous oxide when he needs oxygen, it will have no effect other than the fact he won't be getting any more oxygen."

Walkup said the new hospital wing that included the emergency room was buit under the general contractorship of Nason and Cullen Inc. of nearby Rosemont, Pa., a firm he described as "very, very reliable."

"We're not trying to point the finger at anybody nor is anyone trying to point the finger at us," he said.

'Garbage pile a symptom of illness'

An organic brain dysfunction, or maybe severe schizophrenia?

There is no simple clinical explanation for the kind of behavior that would let 16 years of garbage pile up inside a house, Dr. Truman Esau, medical director of Old Orchard Psychiatric Hospital, Skokie, said Tuesday.

"Several things could come into play," Dr. Esau said when asked for a possible explanation of what might have caused Shirley Bright, 50, and her mother, Phoebe Mollenkamp, 75, to let the garbage stack up three feet inside their rented house at 502 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. "There might be a severe brain problem that would prevent normal functions. It is also possible that in a case of chronic, severe schizophrenia an individual would be so preoccupied as to not be aware of the problem," he said.

There are cases of people who have a "collection fettish" and who cannot bring themselves to throw anything away, said Dr. Esau.

Psychiatric files also contain cases of persons who will collect lint, or pieces of thread in a room.

But such behavior most often tends to be a symptom of mental illness rather than the disorder itself, Dr. Esau said.

"You may see this kind of symptom but it doesn't always end up in this kind of extreme example," he said.

Dr. Esau was unable to discern any connection between the garbage pile discovered in Arlington Heights Monday and a similar mess uncovered at a Des Plaines apartment in 1974.

CIA admits to sex control tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA Tuesday released top secret documents showing its mind and behavior control experiments included attempts at "alteration of sex patterns" and drug tests on college students.

Responding to Freedom of Information Act requests, the agency made available 415 heavily censored pages from a pile of documents on the experiments it conducted on willing and unwitting Americans in the 1950s and '60s.

CIA Director Stansfield Turner said the documents on the controversial projects, already investigated by Senate committees on the basis of partial evidence, were discovered recently in "retired archives filed under financial accounts."

TURNER AND a panel of former CIA experts in the behavior projects were to testify today at Senate hearings on the subject.

General outlines of the discontinued mind and behavior control projects — run under the codenames MKULTRA, MKDELTA, Artichoke and Bluebird — came to light in earlier investigations.

But the material released Tuesday gave the first indication of the scope and cost of the operation. It showed costs might have run into the tens of millions of dollars, with sums of up to $100,000 paid to subcontracting institutions, hospitals, doctors, psychiatrists, hypnotists and other experts assigned to carry out the mind bending experiments.

The program, begun in the early Cold War years as an effort to counteract alleged Soviet and Chinese brainwashing techniques, tapered off through the 1960s and was terminated in 1973.

NAMES OF THE institutions and individuals were blacked out in copies supplied to reporters. They were reported to include some prominent experts and prestigious hospitals, some of them perhaps unaware they were working in projects funded by CIA-controlled "front" organizations.

One uncensored name, however, was that of Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, former chief of the agency's chemical and scientific division, who ran MKULTRA and similar projects for many years. He was last reported in retirement abroad.

One "Memorandum for the Record," written by Gottlieb and dated June 9, 1953, said "Dr. (censored) at his two facilities" was working on LSD "and related materials."

It said emphasis would be placed on translating basic data "into operationally pertinent material" covering such areas as "alteration of sex patterns," "disturbance of memory" and "discrediting by aberrant behavior."

GOTTLIEB SAID the cost of the project "will not exceed $86,853 for the period from July 5, 1953, to July 4, 1954."

The documents did not say what came of these experiments or what was meant by "alteration of sex patterns," but Gottlieb did say results would be put into "an operational field manual."

The earlier congressional investigations showed that drug and mind control experiments were carried out both on volunteers and on unwitting subjects, including servicemen, prisoners, drug addicts.

Powers crashed helicopter to avoid killing boys: cops

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Francis Gary Powers may have deliberately nosed his floundering helicopter into a dive to avoid swooping into a baseball diamond where a dozen boys were playing, a police report disclosed Tuesday.

The former U2 spy plane pilot and television cameraman George Spears, a former WGN employe in Chicago, were killed Monday when the Bell Ranger "telecopter" smashed into an empty field 50 yards short of the playground.

Police Sgt. Dennis Ruegsegger said the boys told investigators the craft was coming in toward Van Nuys airport on a line leading directly at the baseball diamond when it suddenly nosed down and plunged into the ground.

National Safety Transportation Board experts removed the pieces of wreckage to a hangar at Van Nuys airport in an attempt to discover the original mechanical trouble which, according to some witnesses, shook the $500,000 craft so violently the tail rotor fell off.

Powers, who would have been 43 this month, and Spears, 43, were returning from covering the latest brush fire in the Santa Barbara area. Powers flew the craft as a traffic reporter for TV station KNBC and also flew aerial pictorial assignments.

BURIAL VAULT workers returned to their jobs Tuesday at American Wilbert Vault Corp. in Des Plaines, after ending a 7½-week strike. Two workers load completed vaults onto delivery trucks which then set out to ease the backlog of burials which occurred during the strike.

'Vault workers' strike hard on all'

by DIANE GRANAT

"To me this is just a job. I don't think about death."

That was how Frank Fritch viewed his return to work Tuesday at the American Wilbert Vault Co. in Des Plaines after a 7½-week burial vault workers strike ended the night before.

For Fritch, the grief of many families whose relatives were not buried because of the vault shortage did not seem much worse than the hardship his own family endured while he was on strike.

"I KNOW IT'S hard on some people, especially when it's their kin," said Fritch, who operates a cement truck at the vault works. "But this is my bread and butter, this job here."

A co-worker, Bill Mertz, agreed he felt bad about the delay of nearly 2,000 burials in the Chicago area. "But I can't help that, because I had to fight for what I needed," Mertz said.

About 120 workers in Teamsters Local 786 resumed their jobs Tuesday at four area firms after ratifying a new contract Monday that gives them a 7 per cent raise from the old hourly wages of $7.66 for vault workers and $7.76 for truck drivers.

At American Wilbert, truck drivers immediately began delivering the vaults sitting in storage during the strike. The company had a stock of about 375 vaults, sealed boxes which enclose caskets, waiting to be distributed, said Robert Pelinski, plant manager.

WHILE FUNERAL home and cemetery officials said they expect to finish burying all the stored bodies within two weeks, Pelinski estimated it might take closer to three weeks to relieve the backlog.

"We can't just go and dump a whole load (of vaults) and say, 'Here they are,'" Pelinski said. "The funeral directors would be scratching their heads and the cemetery directors would be tearing their hair out."

Pelinski said the vault deliveries must be coordinated with the schedules of the cemeteries and funeral homes, as well as the plans of families expecting to hold graveside services.

At some cemeteries, such as Randhill in Palatine, employes said there is not a huge rush to complete the postponed burials.

Herschel Auerbach, executive vice president of Randhill, said about 95 per cent of the families using the cemetery during the vault shortage chose to use cement grave liners, which are less resistent to decomposition than the sealed vaults.

The delayed burials will be scheduled according to the order in which the deaths occurred, cemetery officials said.

An improvement in school buses

School bus accidents are dangerous, traumatic events for children, police, parents and school bus companies.

With an eye toward cutting down on the most common types of injuries which result from such accidents — the banged up noses and teeth caused when children hit the metal backs of the seat in front of them — the Illinois legislature several years ago passed a law requiring padding on seats on new school buses.

The law affected all buses built after 1974. Many school children are riding in pre-1974 buses with unprotected seat backs.

Ritzenthaler Bus Lines has taken an important step toward increasing safety in the vehicles it uses in Lake County. The company and the school districts it serves in the Cook County portion of the Northwest suburbs should copy the Lake County example.

In addition, other area bus companies and the school districts which run their own buses who have not upgraded older buses ought to consider copying Ritzenthaler's action.

Of the 70 buses Ritzenthaler uses to serve 12 Lake County School districts, including Buffalo Grove-Long Grove Dist. 96 and High School Dist. 125, one-third are pre-1974. All 23 such buses will have padding installed on their seatbacks this fall, with school districts sharing the cost of materials and Ritzenthaler paying for the installation.

The decision to upgrade the older buses came after 32 children from a Libertyville school returning from a field trip were injured in a bus-car accident. Most of the injuries to the children were the result of their being flung forward onto the hard seat-backs.

Ritzenthaler officials have said they will wait until local schools express an interest before undertaking a similar project in the buses that serve Cook County.

Local school officials should heed that statement and work with their bus companies to provide maximum safety for the children who ride school buses.

Losing a status symbol

Those Rolling Meadows garbage trucks have been a symbol through the years.

They were the best, or at least many considered them the best. They were made by Mercedes Benz, and everybody knows that if you own a Mercedes you've got to be doing all right.

And in fact Rolling Meadows was doing just fine. The city was in the enviable financial position of being able to pay cash for many of its purchases. Sales tax revenue from new businesses, the Western Electric headquarters and other office complexes sent revenues flowing into city hall. For almost five years, revenues exceeded expectations and the surplus grew.

City officials bought a new city hall, offered garbage service free of charge, abated one tax after another. The residents of Rolling Meadows were on easy street for awhile.

But the situation changed. The cost of running government began to climb and the revenues didn't keep up.

At the same time, the trucks began to wear out. Last week, city officials admitted it — the trucks will have to go and with them possibly the free garbage service.

Time finally caught up with Rolling Meadows. It always does sooner or later.

Jim Bishop

Big kids like big toys. Frankie Yale (nee Francisco Uale) wanted an armored car. He owned a nice place — Brooklyn. His boys were all over the borough, like cockroaches. Money came in on waves, like Coney Island.

I don't know where Frankie had his car built. Nick Glad used to make them in the Bronx. When the fenders, sides and top had been steel plated, Nick used to hit it with bursts from a machine gun to locate leaks.

Yale knew that people were trying to kill him. It kept him close to his big white brick house. The car, though — that made a difference. It freed Mr. Yale so that he could move among the peasants who had made him rich.

THE HEAP WEIGHED five tons and got two miles to the gallon. It had no air conditioning. He rolled the window down. The bullets whistled in so fast they slammed Frankie across the front seat.

His mob gave him the greatest funeral ever. Mr. Yale, fat and puffy, was inside a solid silver casket. In one hand was a gold rosary with which to con the keepers at the pearly gates. The other clasped gray suede gloves. It was July, but Frankie thought gloves were sporty.

He had two widows in the funeral parlor. They sobbed and glared at each other. Maria was the mother of his two daughters. Luceida was 25 years younger. Pure dynamite. She also cried louder.

The casket cost $15,000. Flowers came to $37,000. Little Augie Pisano, a business associate, said it was bigger than Lincoln's funeral. All the boys wore dinner jackets and black ties. Ten of them carried the casket to the hearse and four sustained hernias.

THE CORTEGE RAMBLED through the Brooklyn streets five miles long. The first 25 cars were filled with flowers. One piece was smaller than a bungalow and showed a clock with the hands set in violets at 4:10. That was the exact moment Mr. Yale decided he needed a little air, not a little aerating.

A 10-foot floral fishing pole had a loose ribbon. It said: "We'll see Them, Kid." A 20-foot cross of lilies was too big and stood in the sun on the roof of the funeral parlor. All of which were signs of affection sent by saloon keepers after solicitation by Frankie's mob.

A lieutenant told the funeral director that he would not be allowed to hide a solid silver casket inside a hearse. He called the carpenters union on the back of a convertible. Maria and the little ones rode in the first car. "On account of respect," one mug told the press.

Luceida rode two cars back. Little Augie, who counted himself as Frankie's heir, rode with her. The others rode according to rank. It was a hot day, but nobody rolled a window down.

THE MASS WAS at St. Rosalia's. Some of the boys five miles back were in new patent leather shoes and had to take cabs to get to the front of the line. Frankie's soul was handed over to God, where, presumably, he could enumerate all the noble things he had done.

Slowly, the cortege moved three miles to Holy Cross. The boys blocked the gates, and allowed exactly 112 persons inside. These were permitted to call themselves mourners. Some wept bitterly as that solid silver coffin was consigned to a damp hole.

"Charity." That's what the funeral director told everybody Frankie Yale had. It's a good word. He never ordered anybody killed unless he disagreed with Frankie. Or crossed him. Or became ambitious. Or tried to hold out a little. Or forgot to laugh at Frankie's jokes.

He even sent one of his best kids, Alphonse Capone, to Chicago to irritate Johnny Torrio. On another occasion he sent a ton of coal and a Christmas basket to the widow of one of his hit men who got hit. "Charity." Yale took it from everybody.

THERE WAS A time of silence in the streets of Brooklyn after Frankie started the big sleep. Then Maria asked for an accounting of her husband's estate. Everybody knew that Mr. Yale didn't believe in banks any more than he believed in closed windows.

There were millions of dollars — but where? The loyal ones almost tore the brick house down looking for the money. It was not found. Frankie left a $3,000 diamond ring, a diamond belt buckle worth $2,500 and $2,000 in cash found in the glove compartment of the car.

Maria got it. Luceida got lotsa luck. Maria found a job in a clothing factory to support the girls. One of the reporters wrote that the funeral reeked of good taste.

OSHA reform cuts good and bad

Martha Angle and Robert Walters
In Washington

Any time the so-called efficiency experts are turned loose, in government or in private industry, there is a risk they will cut into vital organs as well as bureaucratic fat.

The dangers of over-enthusiasm are vividly illustrated by proposals of several top White House officials for "reforming" the troubled Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

OSHA, a part of the Labor Department, is a sitting duck for the boys with the long knives. Since its creation in 1970, it has become the most hated agency in the federal government, a horrible case study in superfluous paperwork, nit-picking regulations and mindless harassment of the private business community.

CREATED BY Congress to insure a safe and healthful work place for America's employes, OSHA became the scourge of small businessmen. All but ignoring major environmental health problems, the agency focused its energies on drafting and enforcing an enormous array of detailed, picayune safety regulations that drove businessmen to distraction.

President Carter correctly decided, shortly after his inauguration, that OSHA was a prime target for regulatory reform. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and the new agency director, Dr. Eula Bingham, wholeheartedly agreed and set out to clear away the red tape.

But as Marshall and Bingham started shifting OSHA's focus away from petty safety standards and towards major hazards, some of Carter's efficiency experts decided to go farther.

In a May 27 memo to the president, Budget Director Bert Lance, chief economics adviser Charles Schultze and domestic affairs adviser Stuart Eizenstat urged Carter to consider "totally eliminating most safety regulations."

INSTEAD OF attempting to define what constitutes a safe working environment, these officials said, OSHA and the rest of the government should make it more costly for business to operate unsafely — 'for example, an improved worker's compensation program or economic penalties tied to the injury rate."

The Lance-Schultze-Eizenstat memo took Marshall and Bingham completely by surprise. Labor Department officials say that both the secretary and the OSHA director vehemently disagree with the suggestion that all work safety regulations be abandoned.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the Senate Human Resources Committee and principal author of the original OSHA legislation, has fired off a blistering letter to Carter protesting the thrust of the "reform" proposal.

"I am outraged," he said, "at the suggestion that we let the compensation of injured workers be the only means of encouraging workplace safety. The suggestion that we do nothing to protect workers, and only compensate them and their families after they have been killed or maimtd in our factories and shops, is a totally unacceptable policy for a nation which prides itself on its commitment to human rights."

WILLIAMS SAID he is all in favor of increasing worker's compensation benefits and adopting other economic incentives to encourage safer working conditions. Both he and Marshall vow to resist any move to eliminate preventive safety regulations.

They may have a tough fight on their hands. Although an aide to Marshall expressed confidence that Carter will side with his Labor Secretary, the president — in his Yazoo City, Miss. town meeting — appeared to adopt the opposite view.

Since an inter-agency task force will not complete its review of OSHA until March 1978, the argument is unlikely to be settled anytime soon. But it will be a revealing test of the administration's approach to regulatory reform.

Many issues with Cuba

We have recently read of the Midwest businessmen and their wives who were wined and dined by the Castro Regime. As a result of their visit, we hear many rumors about lifting of the trade embargo against Cuba. It appears as though government officials have sanctioned the dissemination of this rumor to the press as well as officialdom in Washington. Several members of the State Department indicate that the embargo can be lifted by the President without the consent of Congress.

There were no far-reaching preconditions for normalizing U.S.-Cuba relations other than reuniting divided Cuban-American families who want to visit relatives, and progress to resolve U.S. property claims. I would hope that our government would include far-reaching preconditions such as the demand that Castro end the repression of human rights. It is estimated that he has incarcerated thousands of political prisoners. Another demand should be the end to the export of revolution in the Western Hemisphere and Africa.

Cuba has in excess of 30,000 troops in Africa. This is extremely costly to a regime that caused its country to become bankrupt. The money used to support troops in foreign lands could be used to provide food and medicine to the Cuban people. They are deprived of the basic necessities of life in order to support the revolutionary aims of Castro.

I'm convinced the Soviets and Castro would like to see the embargo lifted and massive dollar credits from the U.S. and the World Bank provided Cuba. It takes the financial pressure off the Soviet Union and the Soviet bloc nations. Does this mean tax dollars to subsidize Castro's regime.?

In the months ahead, it will be interesting to observe the direction and attitude of our government toward Cuba. Our government's attitude will be greatly influenced by those companies sending representatives to Cuba since they will put pressure on Congress and the media to encourage lifting the embargo. Let's hope that the profit motive isn't placed before the principles of human rights. In the eyes of many who are denied basic human freedoms, we remain the beacon of liberty and hope.

Express your opinion to your representative and to the president concerning this topic. There are many economic, political and ethical issues involved in our relationship to Castro's bankrupt, oppressive regime.

He hits abortion

Some thoughts for those of you who consider abortion as strictly one sided — namely the woman's right and not the rights of the unborn child:

On March 2, 1977 at 10:15 p.m. in Westminster Community Hospital in Orange City, California, a 2½ pound baby girl just over 15" in height and at an age between 7 and 8 months was aborted through a salt saline abortion by a "Doctor Waddill" Herr Doctor Waddill when informed that the planned for dead fetus had survived his efforts and been born alive made great speed to the "hospital" and proceeded to leave nothing further to chance. He ordered all personnel to leave the nursery and then was observed by a staff pediatrician cooing the baby who died, as Doctor Waddill and the potential "mother" had prior decreed, at 11:15 p.m.

Dr. Waddill had so beautifully "upheld" his proftssion's motto to protect and uphold life twice — first through the act of ending an unborn life in abortion and then through the use of infanticide. Don't complain about quality of life when we allow an abortion mentality like this to flourish around us. We must speak out — this type of atrocity is getting closer and closer to home for all of us. In Nazi Germany nobody spoke loud and clear enough and we all know the horrible results that a lack of respect for life had in that country. You can't have your cake and eat it too. You either believe in and support the sanctity and worth of every human life whether it is 7 months within the mother or 95 years after birth; whether it is convenient or inconvenient; a welfare child or the child of a well to do family; or you don't. If you don't, then expect the consequences to touch you also as it already is in a society showing a growing disregard for all human rights, because of the growing lack of respect of the most vital of all human rights — life.

Steve Brown

From our Springfield bureau

One of Gov. James R. Thompson's young aides was leaning against the fowl exhibit fence at a county fair the other night when a passer-by walked up and said, "ducks."

The normally unflappable aide dropped to the ground, nervously hugging Mother Earth like a new found security blanket.

"I didn't say 'duck,' I said 'ducks.' There behind you, the duck pen," the passer-by said, slightly embarrassed by the commotion.

"SO MUCH HAS BEEN happening lately. I do that automatically now. We are thinking of replacing the cardinal with this creature and making it the official state bird," the somewhat chagrined aide said, picking the sawdust from his ears and knocking the hay off his britches.

Indeed, the last few weeks have been a little rocky for Thompson and his merry band. Skeletons have been hopping out of the closets of new appointees before their names dry on the payroll ledger.

The mood is understandable but not forgiveable. There have been hints of improper campaign contributions, patronage workers put in jobs where they clearly did not belong and other appointees with mistakes in their background. All of the developments have not impressed Thompson or his deputies.

"There have been problems with the "system." one aide said. He didn't mean the "system" that runs the government, that has been humming along at its bureaucratic best. The "system" in this case is that process whereby skeletons and other miscellaneous faux pax are eliminated before doing damage, a 20th century "get the dirt out from under the carpet before the cleaning lady makes the round" technique.

THE AIDE WITH the eloquent gift for understatement was right on the mark. But the problem, which usually bothers all administration, has less place in a Thompson operation.

The reason seems simple, but maybe the governor and his top aides need a reminder. Thompson and his chief aides need only to remember from whence they came and they should be able to solve most of the current dilemmas.

Thompson already has sprinkled his administration with a liberal dose of his competent cronies from the corruption-fighting U.S. attorney's office in Chicago.

BACK THEN THEY were used to investigating the bejesus out of everyone at the bat of an eye. Seldom did a witness or suspect get through the mill without Big Jim knowing all. Legend and the conviction rate bears testimony to that.

Maybe the "heady power" of state government and the glittering bright lights of this capital city have made them forget this trait.

There are fresh signs that they have gotten the stars out of their eyes and shaken off the stage fright. Thompson, still reeling from the first major round of negative reviews, has ordered his old comrade Tyrone Fahner over from the Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement to begin making background checks on everyone who steps through the door looking to put a hand in the administration's pocket.

FAHNER'S INVESTIGATORS, some plucked from various federal crime fighting agencies in the north, will be expected to scour public and private records so even the hint of a black mark on an appointee's record will be known.

The governor has labeled the situation a "sad state of affairs," but government at the state level is no sadder than government at the federal level. Thompson has no excuse for not knowing this.

The new background checks should help eliminate the string of embarrassments. More important, it should represent another step toward bringing better people into state government.

The governor is right when he says he cannot know all of the 60,000 persons under his command, but a little peeking into the closets should help him know a lot more than he does now.

Teng's return to power to ease Carter-China role

by JOSEPH C. HARSCH

The return of Teng Hsiao-ping to high place in the councils of government in Peking should ease at least one of President Jimmy Carter's foreign policy problems in Washington.

Carter has been under pressure to break diplomatic relations with the refugee Chinese government on Taiwan in order to open diplomatic relations with the mainland Chinese government in Peking.

But to take this step would cost Carter political capital at home.

TAIWAN HAS BECOME a prosperous and integral member of the Western economic community. Taiwan has been loyal to the American attachment. It would be ungracious, ungrateful, and in many American eyes downright indecent for the United States to cut Taiwan adrift at this stage in history.

Besides, Carter has in hand other foreign policy projects with high political price tags on them. He wants a new Panama Canal treaty. This will be unpopular in the Southwest. He is moving toward normalization of relations with Cuba. This offends the Cuban exiles in Florida. And, above all, he wants a Middle East settlement that can only be had by such pressure on Israel as will bring distress and resentment in the American Jewish community.

Carter is ahead of the game in political credit right now but he cannot afford to offend the conservatives of the Southwest, the Cubans in Florida, the friends of Taiwan and a majority of the Jewish community — all at the same time. No prudent politician would take on that much disapproval at once. So what can most easily wait for a while?

A MAJOR ARGUMENT by those favoring full diplomatic relations with Peking is that in the absence of such action China might grow impatient with Washington and renew friendly relations with Moscow.

Well, is this a really serious possibility? I think not. The conflicts of national interests between Moscow and and Peking are enormous. China claims large stretches of land now occupied by the Soviet Union. And the Soviet Union is pursuing a policy of power encirclement of China. It is even more unlikely with the consolidation of the "antiradical" faction in Peking.

The return of Teng to high place has to mean the final success of the "antiradical" faction in the post-Mao struggle over the succession. The radicals have disappeared. Teng was the protege of Chou En-lai, the great pragmatist in Chinese affairs. Teng was famous during his earlier period in power for his interest in the efficient development of Chinese industry.

There was another important difference of opinion between Teng and the radicals. He wanted to modernize the Chinese Army. They wanted emphasis on its ideological purity. Teng was the one who said he didn't care what color the cat so long as it caught mice.

SO THE RETURN of Teng must mean that the struggle over the succession has been settled in favor of the practical men, rather than in favor of the ideologues. It presumably means the introduction of incentives to the Chinese economic system, which in turn probably will mean the resumption of economic growth. It means a policy of reequipping the Chinese Army with modern weapons. And for industrial growth and modern weapons China will need outside help of the kind best found in Japan, the United States and Western Europe.

Carter can help the Chinese substantially in the ways most important to Teng without spending a penny of American money, or offending the friends of Taiwan. All he really has to do is stand aside and enter no objections when the Chinese go to Japan for modern industrial techniques and to the British, French, and Germans for modern weapons.

The precedent for this was set last December when Gerald Ford was still President of the United States. Washington entered no objection when the Chinese signed a contract with British Rolls-Royce for the purchase of Spey engines, the type used in British Phantom fighters. Earlier the Chinese had ordered helicopters from West Germany and computers from Japan and the United States.

There is no need for haste about closer or more formal relations between Washington and Peking. The present formula gives China what the new leadership cares about most — access to Western technology and modern weapons.

Taxis not buses seen as public transit in suburbs

Northwest suburban residents may be riding taxicabs instead of buses when public transportation is expanded in the suburbs.

D. Daniel Baldino, Regional Transportation Authority board member, said Tuesday a subsidy from the RTA to local cab companies would result in lower fares for suburban riders.

But the cost of a cab ride and the amount of subsidy are under study by the RTA staff, he said.

SUBSIDIZED TAXI service is being planned in north suburban Vernon Hills. Arlington Heights now runs subsidized taxi programs for senior citizens in which the village pays $1 and the rider pays 50 cents per ride, Baldino said.

Speaking at an RTA "listening post" at the Elk Grove Township Hall, Baldino said the taxi service might be better suited to the suburbs, which don't have established high-demand traffic patterns.

The taxi concept was one of several ideas outlined by Baldino in the two-hour session, designed to improve the RTA's image in the suburbs and encourage better communication.

Most of the 30 residents who turned out for the meeting were senior citizens who wanted transportation to and from Chicago as well as a way to get around town. The majority were from Elk Grove Village, which currently has no RTA bus lines.

BALDINO SAID residents can expect a dramatic increase in suburban transit service in the next two years as a result of this year's budget.

For example, he said two bus lines are scheduled to start in Elk Grove Village in the next two months. A bus service from southeast Elk Grove to the Milwaukee Road's train station in Bensenville is scheduled to start Aug. 15. A bus route between Jefferson Park in Chicago and the Elk Grove industrial area is slated to start in September.

Both those routes are designed to bring people to work in Elk Grove, but Baldino said the Jefferson Park route might be extended along Biesterfield Road to Arlington Heights Road, providing needed service for senior citizens and others.

Baldino said he will push for the establishment of local service routes in the suburbs before trying to begin routes that tie the various suburbs together.

"THE MAJOR routes are fine, but if you don't have a way to get to them, they won't do you any good," Baldino said.

Several people, including state Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, took Baldino to task for voting in favor of the controversial 5 per cent RTA gas tax. She said that although there is a need for transit services in the suburbs, the RTA is not giving the suburbs enough for their money.

"I applaud you for the services you have initiated, but I assure you they will not be enough in the very near future," she said.

Baldino said he plans to visit each of the 30 townships in suburban Cook County to talk with people about their transportation problems. He said their suggestions will be included in his proposal for expanding suburban service.

Ultimate Electronic Game

by Ed Landwehr

I guess everyone has seen the various games played through the TV tube — tennis, hockey, ping-pong, etc. Now comes probably the greatest. That is, if you're a chess player, and you better be a good one!

This new electronic computer chess game has moves computed into its memory system so that it really plays aggressively, controlling the center of the board. It will go for stalemate, too, if it gets into trouble. It accepts and performs castling and automatically turns pawns to queens when they reach the last rank. Tests have shown that average players win only 25% of the time.

We have serviced some of the simpler TV games at Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. But with this new one, we're wondering about it. I think we just will stick to servicing TV sets and other simpler electronics. Phone 255-0700 and try us.

FOREST CITY

AMERICA'S AWARD WINNING...DO IT YOURSELF HOME IMPROVEMENT CENTERS

"THE REDCOATS ARE COMING!"

Forest City's "Fellow in Yellow" has checked out!

A part of the scene for almost 20 years, Forest City's helpful "fellow-in-yellow" says goodbye today and we introduce you to our new red-clad...just as helpful...sales persons.

Why?

It's more than just a new look! We want you to be able to spot our sales people more easily and quickly and the yellow was blending into the background— red won't!

Just Look for the Red Shirts in any Forest City Store.

They'll be easier to spot— THE RED COATS ARE COMING— and if you want the manager, he'll be sporting a brand new red blazer instead of a business suit, so you'll be able to find him more easily too!

Watch For Red Aisle Specials

You know our regular low price policy? And our advertised specials? Now— if you check our main aisles (the red ones, naturally) you'll find unadvertised specials— even lower prices than you're accustomed to at Forest City.

And the Red Carpet Treatment!

You always get that at Forest City anyway, but we thought we'd put it in this ad to remind you.

3 Things Haven't Changed!

Service, Selection, and Value!

Even though we've garbed everything and everybody in an aura of red, we haven't tampered with the foundation of the business. The best, most knowledgeable sales persons. The widest selection of quality products for the do-it-yourselfer. And true, unquestionable value on every item you buy.

Keep on Truckin'

There's more too. Our lovely, fashionable purple trucks are being replaced by magnificent, exciting "fire engine red" vehicles. We're told they'll be safer on the road, easier to keep clean and more noticeable. Unfortunately, we're not allowed to equip them with red lights and siren.

Yesterday's radicals: years dim their hopes

WHILE THE 1960s were years of protest, life has calmed down in the 1970s. Some activists have embraced new causes; others, who have grown tired of protesting, lead quiet lives.

by VALERIE BERG

It was hot back in August 1968, and the thousands of persons milling in Grant Park weren't making the night any cooler. The heat, the tension, the resistance to the war had been building a long time. And while the Democrats were choosing a presidential nominee a few miles away, the tension snapped.

Nine years later, 28-year-old George Seyk speaks calmly about that night. His apartment in a Schaumburg singles' complex is far removed from the violent scene, but the memory is clear.

"Going to the convention, I'll never forget it. Here you are, U.S. citizens going to protest the war and here are other U.S.citizens armed."

HE CONTINUED in an even voice. "It was like you almost knew something was going to happen before it happened. The issue that kicked it off was that some jerk climbed a flagpole and started to pull down the American flag. As the police moved in, they beat the hell out of him and all hell broke loose."

For George, who often used to march for peace, life has calmed down. He sells industrial electrical components for a living and spends much of his spare time on the complex tennis courts.

Life has calmed down for many other former activists, too. Rennie Davis, one of the Chicago Seven defendants, is training to sell insurance. Protest singer Joan Baez admits to shopping at Saks Fifth Avenue. National Moratorium Movement leader Sam Brown, now director of the federal volunteer service agency ACTION, often can be found inside the White House rather than in the streets outside.

WHERE — TO PARAPHRASE the protest song — have all the radicals gone? Some turn to other causes. Some join the very "establishment" they once tried to change. Some have turned bitter about their experiences.

George Seyk doesn't consider himself a radical, but as an undergraduate psychology major at DePaul University, he was moved by his humanistic outlook plus the threat of induction to march for peace. And though the war is over, the same outlook remains.

"It all relates to how you do your job and how you look at things," he explained. "No matter what you do, it all carries off into your life.

"The rules you set for yourself and the ways you do your business depend on your own ethics," he continued. "I try to do my job in as ethical a way as possible.

LOOKING BACK on the heyday of activism, George has mixed feelings about the results.

"The war itself brought on more communication between groups and a lot of issues mixed. In some cases it was good and in some cases bad," he said. "It was a failure in the sense that it didn't accomplish things as fast as it could have."

But for better or for worse, some of his activist spirit remains. "I don't believe in war, I don't believe in killing," he said. "If there was another war like Vietnam and they were going out protesting, I sure as hell would."

Protesting was never Barry Warren's favorite activity. As a physics student at DePaul, he preferred to devote his time to draft counseling, lobbying and working for student rights on campus.

BUT BARRY, NOW 30, became more radicalized in his thinking after attending a 1967 peace demonstration as a photographer. He still shudders as he speaks of demonstrators being clubbed by Chicago police and run over by their motorcycles.

Today he lives in the city and works as a planner in the Mayor's Office of Manpower — an ironic circumstance, he admits. But he believes that the agency is oriented toward human service.

"Your job options are few," he explained. "What I've tried to do is to remember all I've seen and what was wrong, and to be a spokesman for those issues."

Even though he belongs to the bureaucracy, he remains one of its critics. "Unfortunately, with the end of the war, the pressure was off and so a lot of things weren't completed. I feel the government still hasn't learned to be fair to its people.

"THERE'S BEEN a serious erosion of freedom — bureaucrats aren't elected officials and yet they run the country from adminstration to adminstration."

These days Barry's cause is the Incol Foundation, a corporation involved in promoting science for the public interest. The foundation, which grew out of a campus group, hopes to sponsor research in new areas of scientific research, including parapsychology.

But aside from Incol, Barry's view of the future is uncertain. "I'm afraid we're headed for serious trouble down the road. I'd like to see it (the United States) survive with a Constitution, a Bill of Rights and a Declaration of Independence intact.

"I tend to be a little less hopeful about change, but I haven't given up yet," he declared.

TWENTY-EIGHT-YEAR-OLD Debi Beckley, a Schaumburg resident, is even less hopeful about change. In the late '60s she was a black militant at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, where she demonstrated for a black studies center and marched for open housing in the city.

Today, as an employment and housing counselor at the Minority Information Referral Center in Des Plaines, Debi still is disturbed by many things. Racial trouble in the city. Nazis attempting to march in the suburbs. But she doesn't protest any more.

"I'm no longer idealistic. I'm very practical and even pessimistic. I'm seeing what I think is a lot of backlash," she said.

"I don't argue with people any more. I either say yes, I agree, or no, I don't agree. It's futile — you get an ulcer that way."

"I GUESS YOU can't say it (the civil rights movement) failed, it added a lot to make people aware of the plight of black people, but I think 'Roots' did more of that in eight days," she continued. "I think what it did for me was I realized that people weren't going to change. It has to be an educational process from day one when you're a child."

Glen Ellyn resident Jim Shimer, 29, also is disappointed about the state of civil rights today. Although his interest has always been civil rights, he also was active in the peace and student power movements at Ohio Wesleyan University.

His disappointment is that "after the draft ended, most of the people in the peace movement dropped out. Students more or less came to the realization that they have no influence." But, he added, "if you're really committed to creating social change, you'll find a way to do it."

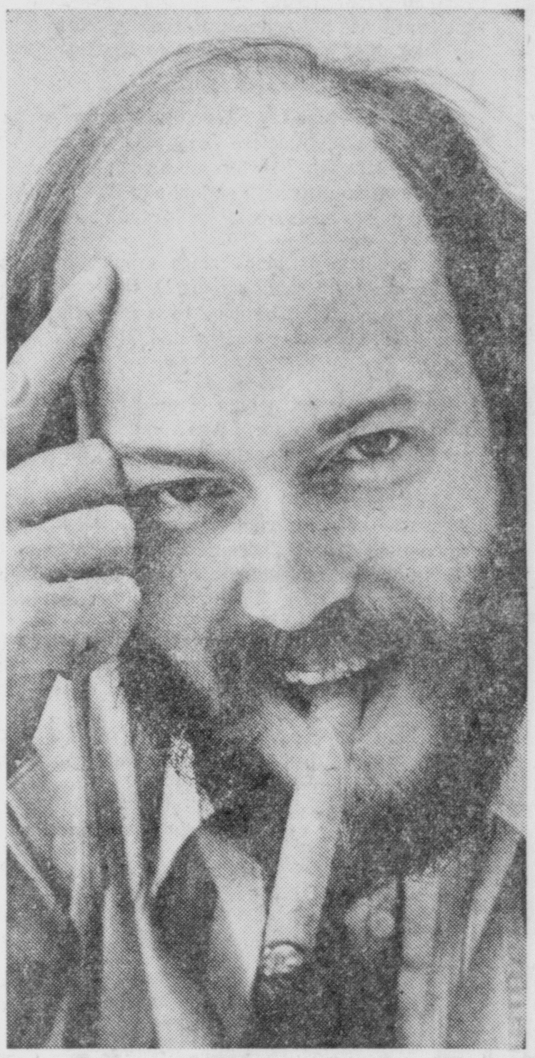
FOR JIM, CREATING social change means working as an administrative assistant to the director of the Minority Information Referral Center and helping with the center's special projects. He also is working to make changes in the Chicago office of Housing and Urban Development.

"One of the things I'm still very uncomfortable about is the representation of minority people in key places in government," he explained. "If you had people in positions who really wanted to make programs work, they wouldn't keep throwing up roadblocks."

And although the civil rights movement won some gains, he cites the incidence of counter-discrimination suits, poor administration of social service programs and the unwillingness of the public to fund those programs as proof that the gains are being lost.

"WHAT CONCERNS ME is there're so few people who might be motivated beyond their own self-interest, from my perspective," he said.

And even though the '70s are calm in comparison with the '60s, the times may be a'changing. "It's going to be necessary for more confrontation in society," Jim predicted. "I think you're going to see more of it. Expectations are starting to rise again."



JIM SHIMER, son of an activist minister and a conscientious objector to the Vietnam war, is bothered by apathy and by the lack of minorities in decision-making government positions.

GEORGE SEYK believes awareness can be taken from the streets into the conference room. The social change of the 1960s, he says, has caused changes in the business world, too.

Working wife doesn't need another 'baby'

Julie Martoccio

Women and children first

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

We've been married nine years. I've worked nine years and have no children, as yet. My husband keeps telling me he isn't ready to have a family while I can't wait much longer. (He's 34, I'm 30.)

My gynecologist and neurologist both advise me to have a baby now, before I get too much older, risking giving birth to a mongoloid child, etc.

Last summer when I had a car accident, I began to see how unconcerned he was about my health when he fussed about helping me with household chores while I was recuperating.

My husband does not want to get involved with either side of our families. (We eloped, so there would not be a fuss!)

MY DOCTORS SAID I could either tell my husband I will no longer take the pill nor allow any other type of birth control, or file for a legal separation. Unfortunately, I can do neither. I would go to a marriage counselor or lawyer, but I don't think I would get anywhere alone. My husband refuses to go to either as he also will not go to church and does not allow me to go either.

What can I do to make my life happier, with a child and the happiness of being able to stay at home and just be a good wife and mother? — No Names Please.

Dear No Names Please,

With all the hue and cry about how "free" women are these days, I'm surprised — no, shocked — by the number of letters I receive complaining about how much "control" a husband has over his wife! Especially a working one like you.

YOUR DOCTORS are right, of course. But your answer is, you cannot do as they advise. Remember, a person can do anything she wants providing she is willing to face the consequences. Either you love your husband too much to risk losing him, or you are afraid to go it alone.

Frankly, I can't understand why you would want a baby while you already have one at home unless your husband grows up or you stiffen your spine and "unspoil" him. I can suggest only one other possible solution.

You are in a bind, but awakening, so I suggest you take the first step to break it either by attending a self-assertiveness class or reading some books on the subject that will explain a sensible step-by-step technique for getting what you want while respecting the rights of others.

Dear Ms. Martoccio,

I want to get married, but my boy friend says he wants to "try it" be-

The doctor says

Reducing first step to cut cholesterol

I have high cholesterol, 336, and was given no medication. I have since heard that lecithin is sometimes prescribed for this condition. Is this a harmless medication? Would you recommend it for this condition?

It is both harmless and useless. Your digestive system will digest the lecithin before it ever gets through the intestinal wall into your blood stream.

If you were choline deficient, the resulting choline could be used by your liver to manufacture the lecithin that is in your blood stream. The chances are that if you are eating anything like a normal diet, you will already be getting plenty of choline.

If your cholesterol is persistently that high, you do need to make some changes. Your doctor may not have wanted to do anything about it because you are a woman and women are less prone to heart attacks and fatty-cholesterol deposits than men — until a few years after the menopause. But I think it would be a good idea not to let you run that risk.

Your first step would be to reduce, if you have any tendency to be overweight, and go on a low-fat low-cholesterol diet. I am sending you two issues of The Health Letter that can help you, number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis, and number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Others who want either can send 50 cents for each plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. If these measures are not successful, then your doctor may want to consider medicine, but it is proper to try to adjust your living habits first.

You should also try to increase your physical activity if you are not already fairly active. That will also help you with your weight control diet. While I am in favor of the low-fat low-cholesterol diets for this purpose, I should add that no diet is successful in this regard unless excess body fat is eliminated.

My problem is black rings around my eyes. Could it be indicative of something wrong? I always thought it made me look bad. Can anything be done to remove these black rings? I am 30 years old, otherwise healthy and with good eyesight. I was born in India.

No they are not a sign of poor health. One often sees them in people who are thinner. Why? Because the person who is thin may not have a normal thickness of the natural fat pad around the eye.

The veins around the eye can be seen in the absence of fat and increase the appearance of dark circles around the eyes. Also, some people have increased pigmentation in that area and it is just a natural characteristic, the same as having black, blonde or red hair.

You don't need to concern yourself about your health because of these. If you were a woman and didn't like the appearance, you could use eye makeup to cover most of the area.

(Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.)

Noodle pudding will please pasta lovers

A favorite dish in this household is noodle pudding, made with cheese and sour cream. Another good one is made with chicken fat, but I don't have the recipe and I'll try to get it. Henrietta Weiss makes one well worth passing along. She boils an eight-ounce package of wide noodles to the al dente state, then mixes it with one-quarter pound of fat (part butter and part margarine) and puts it to one side. Then she blends one-quarter pound of cream cheese with one-half pint of sour cream, and this mixture is then folded into the noodles. Then she beats three egg yolks with one-quarter cup of sugar and folds that into the noodles. Next come the beaten whites. The mixture is put into an eight-inch-square casserole (two and one-half inches high) and set in the refrigerator overnight. Next day this is covered with crushed cornflakes and baked for 45 minutes at 350 degrees. It ought to serve six and should go big with all pasta lovers.

Dear Roberta: Reading about how many readers are disturbed by a cloudy film on their crystal, I'd like to recommend my method. I sprinkle a generous amount of baking soda inside the glass container, then rub vigorously with a damp, soapy cloth. This is especially effective on that nasty ring left by water that has been standing in a vase — and on coffee or tea stains. —Carol Karr

Dear Roberta: Some decals were left on the glass doors of an enclosed hutch in my kitchen. How can I get them off? —Mrs. J. M.

As a rule, the only way to get decals off is to get the decal remover in a shop that sells decals. However, with glass you might be able to soak them off with what people use to get off adhesive-backed posters: salad oil, paint remover (use caution) or a nonflammable cleaning solvent.

(Mrs. Mathews welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Roberta Mathews in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

by LUCIA MOUAT
(Third in a series)

"Have you come for a job? What do you do?"

"I don't do anything now," replies the tanned blond in her forties, "and I'm weak on office skills."

"Well, can you write?"

"I guess I don't write badly."

A ripple of laughter spreads through the group of women job hunters at this Wider Opportunities for Women (WOW) workshop as leader Phoebe Taylor, simulating an employer during an interview, protests: "Don't tell me the bad news so soon."

Everyone present knows she might have answered the same way, and all have been told that such modesty is unbecoming for a job hunter. Instead, it is time for accenting one's strengths.

YET, EMPLOYMENT experts agree, the most common problem plaguing women who want to reenter the job market is lack of confidence that they have any experience to offer which counts in the world of salaries. Indeed, according to this circle of women, it takes courage to make even the smallest move, such as phoning for an interview!

Practice interviews are a device strongly recommended by employment counselors both as a confidence-builder and a data-gatherer. Instead of zeroing in on a job opening, you go to talk with an executive in a firm to find out more about what the company does and what other opportunities there are in that field. In addition to fresh information, you gain experience and new contacts without pressure.

Whom to see? Often reading the business section of the local newspaper can keep you in touch with changes in top management and who may be moving to town — all potential interview sources. Counselors stress that the better prepared you are in advance (you may want to send for an annual report), the more you will be told.

"If you're really job-ready at that point, then you should leave your resume at the informational interview or send it later as a follow-up," says Roberta Kaplan, director of WOW's work center.

• Tell everybody you know and everybody you meet of your interest in finding a job.

• "Talk to anyone who's willing to talk to you — you can't afford to overlook any source," says Mrs. Anita Lands of Catalyst, a New York based organization aimed at helping women choose, launch, and advance their careers.

• A recent survey by the National Center for Job Market Studies of jobs filled in one year found 85 per cent were filled through informal contacts. Some 6 per cent were filled through school placement services, 5 per cent through want ads, and only 4 per cent through employment agencies.

Indeed, Mary Janney, co-director of WOW, which is an employment advisory and advocacy center, suggests steering as clear as possible of employment agencies: "They're no friends of women . . . they often discount or undervalue the average homemaker's experience and they have a tendency to slow women in dead-end, low-paying jobs."

• Prepare well for the job interview. Learn as much as you can in advance about the position and the company.

• Decide your criteria (hours you want to work, salary, etc.) and think through which criteria you can be flexible on.

• Rehearse with a friend. Often she can offer helpful advice on strengthening your interview techniques.

• Review past accomplishments, abilities, interests. Some counselors suggest jotting down key selling points on a card and referring to it during the interview if necessary.

• Be prepared to fill in an application on arrival. It's fairly standard practice and you can always place your resume on top.

• Keep the interview focused on how your experience relates to the employer's needs.

• Ask questions.

• Listen carefully to the job description and how you will be evaluated.

• Think about whether or not you will be comfortable in that work environment. (One reentry says this was valuable advice; it kept her from being preoccupied with what the prospective employer might be thinking of her.)

• Discuss pay. One woman made a point of finding out the top salary the employer would pay for the job in question and told him that, given her skills and the responsibilities, she could accept no less. She got the job.

• Be enthusiastic. Employers often report that applicants appeared uninterested and thus weren't offered the job.

You may want to talk with the employer about job variations:

1. Some women, for instance, have started in jobs as unpaid volunteers, setting a time limit by which they must be paid or will leave. Although employment counselors stress it takes a certain "finesse" to broach the idea, many employers find it hard to refuse, and it has worked successfully for many women returning to work. Says one: "It's amazing how you can make yourself indispensable within a month or two."

2. Job-pairing or job-sharing is another alternative. If a full-time job is more than you want to take on, you might propose sharing a job with another person — or even with your husband, if that is also his field. Though many employers have yet to be persuaded of the advantages, it has been tried successfully in teaching, social work, secretarial, and research jobs. Job-sharing case workers in a Massachusetts Department of Public Welfare project for Catalyst were found to use their time more efficiently and experienced less turnover than their full-time counterparts.

"WHAT SEEMS TO work best," says Catalyst's Anita Lands, "is if two women work it all out between themselves first and approach the company as a team to offer their services . . . You've got to show an employer that it's worth it to him. But you'll probably have to go to a lot of companies before you really sell the idea."

One tip if you do succeed: Counselors suggest that splitting the week rather than each day works better in terms of commuting time and balancing home duties.

If you're told you're not the one for the job, don't take it personally.

"Not letting it get to you is important," says Catalyst's Anita Lands. "Remember that it doesn't matter how many rejections you get if you wind up with what you really want to do."

Don't automatically rule out a low-paying job. With the right firm, it can serve as a foot in the door, but be sure to check out the prospects for upward mobility.

A SURPRISINGLY high number of reentry women have moved from volunteer into paying jobs with the same organization. Peggy Fleming, for instance, who followed up her strong interest in plants and gardening by taking U.S. Department of Agriculture courses in wildlife management and botany, went to work as a volunteer for the National Park Service in Rock Creek Park, in Washington. Her ideas — to let certain sections of the park grow wild and record bird and wildlife counts — have since evolved into a project for which she is getting paid as a park technician.

Whatever the job offer, it is worth careful thought — if only for the fact that you leave a record, good or bad, wherever you choose to work.

Certainly going back to work is not for everyone. Most women do it for economic reasons. A recent AFL-CIO study says that 84 per cent of all women in the labor force last year supported themselves or were married to men whose incomes were below $15,000.

"It would take extreme necessity or a super offer to jog me back into the employed world," says Mrs. Olga Buenz of Chicago, who taught school when her two youngsters were small and has looked long and hard at this issue of returning to work. "Other women don't seem to get the kick I do out of sewing, cooking, and the luxury of reading whenever . . . I find I need to have close touch with home and family. I missed that when I was teaching. 'Liberated' to me means the freedom to make choices."

Next: Balancing home and job.

Dear Tina,

No one gets trading stamps before buying and supermarkets would soon be out of business if they gave away valuable merchandise as samples. Suggest a counteroffer. Tell him a down payment on a marriage license is good business and that if he buys one, you'll not only give him the groceries as a wedding gift but throw in the bed and trading stamps, too.

Hard to find good summer TV fare

The networks obviously believe there's nothing like first-run, one-shot junk to brighten up a traditionally dull summer television schedule.

So, the viewer has been treated to a stream of trial run comedies for the past three months, most of which are worthless take-offs of what already exists in prime time.

After watching a few dozen pilots, I am convinced most people would rather watch good, solid reruns instead.

TRIAL RUN programs, reruns, some specials and showcases for new talent in limited series have been filling up the summer television schedule and offering a smorgasbord that is new to the business.

No matter what the method, the goal, as far as the networks are concerned, is the same: get through the summer months, fill up air time and make some money while regenerating for the fall.

Whereas diversity in summer programming may be welcome, it is unfortunate that much of what the networks have provided viewers the past three months has been much less than respectable.

Most of the offerings have been pilots for series that were rejected.

IF YOU WERE curious as to what garbage collecting in outer space would be like in the year 2222 A.D., "Quark," NBC's science fiction comedy flop

gave you an idea.

NBC, in an obvious attempt to copy ABC's successful "Happy Days" and "Welcome Back, Kotter" formula aired several different pilots including "Hollywood High" and "Off the Wall."

The brilliant writing team of Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses, creators of "The Tony Randall Show" and "The Bob Newhart Show" was at an all-time low in the "The Chopped Liver Brothers," a pilot about two former white-collar workers trying to make it as a comedy team.

Blue-collar was in with one CBS pilot, "Eddie and Herbert," detailing the friendship of two factory workers and their wives.

Couples also were a hot number in summer pilots. NBC's "Natural Look" showed the trials and tribulations of a "today" marriage where the wife is a headstrong executive with a cosmetic firm and the husband is a pediatrician.

A CONTRASTING view of marriage was offered in "Husbands and Wives," a disgusting portrayal of suburban life written by comedienne Joan Rivers.

Other variations on an old theme were a musical hodge-podge in pilots like ABC's "Constantinople" and NBC's "Bay City Amusement Company," and derelict looks at the life of a reporter in CBS's "Stop the Presses" and NBC's "Susan and Sam" (part of which you may have missed because it aired the night of the recent New York blackout).

A comedy pilot that offered decent acting, a unique approach to an old story line and maybe even some food for thought has been rare the past few months.

Some that rated well in my book included ABC's "The Four of Us," about the struggles of a widow and her three children, and "Daughters," the NBC pilot about a widower and his three daughters. Maybe it has just been a good season for single parents.

WHAT HAS saved viewers from total entertainment disaster this summer has been the specials, mostly presented by NBC, and limited series that showcase new talent.

One of the best limited series was "Shields and Yarnell," the husband-wife pantomime team which CBS will undoubtedly rely on as mid-season replacements in the winter.

"Marilyn McCoo and Billy Davis" were also a musical breath of fresh air.

CBS begins another knee-slapping series Friday, the long awaited Norman Lear series, "A Year At the Top" (which will be reviewed in Friday's "Today on TV)" that will be followed by "The Keane Brothers," a multi-talented duo who appear to be graduates of the Donny and Marie school.

CBS has aired the greatest number of pilots this summer and even has resurrected old series like "The Family Holvak" and "The Jack Benny Show" to supplement its schedule.

ABC, ON THE other hand, has relied mostly on the reruns of its very successful regular season comedies and news specials, including several of Barbara Walter' interviews.

But NBC deserves a pat on the back for providing a steady stream of first-run specials that have made summer television worthwhile.

"Highlights from the Russian Dance Festival" and "'Tut: The Boy King," both narrated by Orson Wells, as well as a remake of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" were a few of the specials the network has aired this summer.

But today, even NBC begins a limited series, "The Kallikaks," about a poor family bent on getting rich quick. The show was originally scheduled as part of the network's fall lineup, but, unsure of the show's ability to pull ratings, its getting a trial run this month.

The new show looks to be of little improvement over "Suzyszynk," a CBS limited series begun earlier in the week that also dealt with the school of hard-knocks.

When a show is as bad as "Szyszynk," it can't afford to have a title you can't pronounce.

Although it is wishful thinking, let's hope the networks have learned a lesson from this summer's exercise in programming techniques.

It would be nice next summer to see the same program diversity with a greater accent on quality.

TV NOTE:

David L. Nelson has been appointed by the CBS network to work as vice president and station manager of WBBM-TV under Neil Derrough, the station's general manager. Nelson, who begins work Monday, will work as a manager in training in all areas other than news and programming. He most recently served as vice president of division services for CBS' five owned and operated television stations. Derrough said Tuesday the appointment does not necessarily mean he will be leaving the Chicago station in the future.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- Richard Harris stars in "The Deadly Trackers" at 8 p.m. on Channel 2, about a sheriff seeking vengeance on two outlaws who killed his family.
- NBC premieres its ridiculous comedy "The Kallikaks" at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 5 about a poor family looking for better things.

BIG BUSINESS

"If you're going to suffer from migraine headaches, make sure you do on your own time."

High interest rate fears drop Dow to 18-month low

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average dropped to an 18-month low Tuesday as stocks fell along a broad front in reaction to fears of higher interest rates. Trading was the slowest in a month.

The Dow average, which squeezed out a 1.74-point advance Monday, lost 4.42 points to 887.39, the lowest level since it closed at 877.83 on Jan. 5, 1976. The Dow has lost 36.03 points since July 22.

General Motors, a Dow average component, lost 7/8 to 68½ on the New York Stock Exchange after tht antion's No. 1 auto maker disappointed investors by not raising its dividend from 85 cents a share. On a composite basis, the stock fell 1¼ to 68 and was the second most active issue.

A 0.6 per cent drop in June's government economic indicators, indicating an economic slowdown, has triggered selling that produced the market's worst loss in 19 months last week.

The Federal Reserve Board has sparked further selling this week by tightening credit the past two days following a $5 billion surge in the nation's money supply. Short-term interest rates have risen as a result of Fed action.

INVESTORS FAILED to respond to a government report that factory orders rose 0.4 per cent in June. A strong 1.7 per cent rise in nondurable good orders more than offset a 0.7 per enct decline in orders for durables.

Many Wall Streeters retreated to the sidelines as Congress began deliberations on President Carter's energy program. The House passed a bill to combine most energy functions under one new department.

Amid the uncertainty, the New York Stock Exchange common stock index skidded 0.34 to 53.93 and the average price of a share dipped 20 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, shed 0.62 to 98.50.

Declines routed advances, 1,000 to 461, among the 1,890 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big Board volume totaled 17,910,000 shares, down from the 17,970,000 traded Monday and the slowest turnover since 16,854,040 changed hands July 5.

Composite volume of NYSE issues traded on all U.S. exchanges and over-the-counter totaled 21,075,460 shares, compared with 20,484,680 Monday.

Buyers will bubble over Yule gifts

LEA TONKIN

Buyers stumped with a lack of ideas for holiday gift-giving might consider 'Body Paint for Lovers,' or washable fabric flowers, two of the newest items likely to appear this winter on gift and department store shelves.

Store buyers this week are crowding the Chicago Gift Show search for the new gift that will match the phenomenal success of pet rocks and scented candles. The buyers are swarming throughout the Show's two locations, McCormick Place and the Expocenter located near the Loop.

Although the gift show, which closes Friday, is open only to trade representatives, nearly all Americans will be either the receivers or senders of one of the new gifts on display.

EVERYTHING from fabric wall hangings to koala bear hand puppets and Scandinavian jewelry is featured . As buyers make their rounds from one booth to the next, enthusiastic manufacturers' representatives launch into their spiels about sure-fire holiday season sales.

"I'd just like one of these little yellow canaries," a gift shop owner told an importers salesman as he trailed along with an order pad. The shop owner moved quickly from one display to the next, ordering a dozen candy dishes, then several figurines.

"Body Paint for Lovers" is among the lineup of new products shown by the Village Bath Products, Inc., of Minnetonka, Minn. It's a great gift for your lover or a good friend, sales representative Fran Weir said.

Three colors can be mixed in several shades, and then the fun begins, Ms. Weir said. The paints wash off, and they turn into bubble bath. "Lather up, rinse off, towel dry together. Know love," reads the enclosed brochure with the kit, which will retail for $6.75.

"The hottest thing for consumers is going to be washable fabric artificial flowers," said Marty O'Malley, a Barrington sales representative for Deldan and A Christmas Place lines, Division of Sigma Marketing Systems, Inc. Showing off his wares— artificial lilies, tulips, irises and other floral arrangements in rainbow colors — O'Malley said consumers are ready to trade in their plastic flowers for the more appealing fabric varieties called "Wonderfleur."

Desk accessories, Christmas tree ornaments, Peruvian baskets and earthenware pots competed for attention at the gift show. Then there were the traditional rings, bangles and baubles, watches and china. Wind chimes and wicker furniture, pressed wildflower momentos, toys and stationery lined the display shelves.

"Possum Trot is owlish on America," one exhibitor said. The McKee, Ky. firm makes owl hand puppets and bean bag toys.

For the gift-giver with a sense of humor, there's "Legal Pot" for sale at the gift show. The two-ounce, stainless steel pot, made by Pot Luck Promotions, Inc., New York, will sell at retail for $4. And there's underwear made by British Bulldog, featuring slogans such as "Superman" and "Home of the Whopper."

Chicago-LA fare $99 on United?

United Airlines, Elk Grove Township, Tuesday asked government approval of a $99 one-way fare between Chicago and Los Angeles, with a further $10 discount for passengers who eat no in-flight meal. United said the service, if the Civil Aeronautics Board approves, would begin Sept. 8 and cover two round trips daily. No advance booking or minimum stay would be required. The $99 fare would be applicable to coach seats only on DC10s and 747s, with first class fare remaining the same. Unitel said it will ask the CAB this week to approve a "super economy" meal-less fare for the same flights.

Steelworkers see long strike

Many of the 19,000 steelworkers striking in seven states over "local issues" were in a holiday mood Tuesday, but some predicted a long strike that might run through the fall or beyond. Most strikers are employed by 12 companies operating mines and plants in Minnesota and Upper Michigan. Linus Wampler, District 33 director of the United Steelworkers, estimated 14,500 workers were on strike in Minnesota, 4,500 in Upper Michigan. Smaller numbers were out in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Ohio, New York and Massachusetts.

New product orders up .4%

New orders for manufacturer products, a sign of future business demand, rose .4 per cent in June for the strongest gain since March, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday. The department also said shipments increased 1.4 per cent during June after two months of declines and the June inventory buildup slowed to less than half the rate of increase in May. Commerce economists had predicted last month that a potential sales "explosion" could be in the making because of sharp buildups in inventories and orders combined with declines in shipments. The latest figures released Tuesday showed that new orders rose $400 million to $112.1 billion on a seasonablly adjusted basis. New orders had increased .1 per cent in May and declined 0.2 per cent in April.

FTC seeks cigaret data

The Federal Trade Commission Tuesday asked a federal court to force six major cigaret makers, two trade associations and 20 advertising agencies to surrender information needed by the agency for its investigation into alleged deception in tobacco advertising. The FTC subpoenaed the parties more than one year ago but they refused to surrender the data. The cigarette companies are American Brands Inc., Brown and Williamson Tobacco Corp., Liggett Group Inc., Lorillard, a division of Lowe's Theaters Inc., Phillip Morris Inc., and R. J. Reynolds Industries Inc. The trade associations are the Tobacco Institute Inc., and the Council for Tobacco Research — USA, Inc.

Real estate network formed

Gallery of Homes, Inc., an international franchising organization, has announced a new subsidiary to make mortgage money available through a network of 600 independent brokers. President Henry F. Carter said the new company's purpose is not so much to cut the cost of mortgages as to make them available to home buyers through real estate brokers on a "one stop" packaging basis. "For example," he said, "Home buyers will be able to sell a home in one area, buy a house and get a mortgage in a new community, all through one of our 1,100 offices." The firm has Northwest suburban outlets.

Injunction against Falstaff

A federal judge Tuesday issued a preliminary injunction against the Falstaff Brewing Corp., the nation's 11th largest beer producer, for allegedly violating federal securities laws, including the issuance of "false and misleading" proxy statements. Falstaff, now headquartered in San Francisco, is being investigated by the Securities and Exchange Commission for violating anti-fraud, disclosure and proxy sections of U.S. securities laws between 1974 and the present. The SEC contends that former Falstaff officials withheld from stockholders full details of the sale of the former St. Louis company in 1975 to Paul Kalmanovitz, the present board chairman of Falstaff.

Defective smoke detectors sought

The Consumer Product Safety Commission still is seeking up to 90,000 smoke detectors which might catch fire. The commission and the detectors' manufacturer, BRK Electronics Inc. of Aurora, issued an unusual second recall notice this week, warning the public of the danger and asking consumers to check the units to see if they have the ones involved. The company voluntarily began the recall after it found resistors in some units could fail, making them inoperable and under certain circumstances causing a fire inside the devices. The detectors were marketed by BRK, American Machine and Foundry, I-T-E Imperial Corp., and Sears. The Sears units may be taken to the nearest Sears store for inspection and replacement. In the case of other units, consumers should contact BRK by calling collect at 312-898-9040, department 749, or by writing to BRK at 780 McClure Ave., Aurora, Ill. 60507.

Personal records far from secret

Jane Bryant Quinn
Staying ahead

NEW YORK — Have you ever stopped to think how easy it would be for someone else to get information about your personal finances — information that he or she might be able to use against you?

Look in the Yellow Pages of the phone book under "Investigators, Private," and see how many services are advertised. The big business is matrimonials, but detectives will undertake practically any kind of investigative job. Often, they involve spying on another person's money — how much he makes, what he owns, what he owes.

"The sources of information are absolutely enormous," says Irwin Blye, a New York State licensed private investigator. "You have no idea how much information is in the public domain. The only trick is knowing where to look." Investigators in every state can reel off a long list of documents, relating to you, that your state will allow others to inspect.

JUST BY sending in request forms to various bureaus of public information, and chatting with people on the telephone, Blye can learn such things as what loans you have outstanding and which institution you borrowed from; the condition of your bank account; what assets you're likely to have and their approximate value; business information; whether you've ever been paroled; and basic medical information. A trip to the courthouse will tell him if you've ever been involved in a lawsuit.

To show how simple this process can be, consider basic medical information: A person who lives in New York State has to answer medical questions on his application for a driver's license. Anyone can get a copy of that application, just by sending $3.50 to the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Many financial transactions with your town or county may be public documents, from your water bill right up to whether you pay taxes on time. Blye sometimes finds leads to hidden assets in town documents.

A lot of facts are improperly leaked by the various institutions with which you do business. In theory, a bank employe should probably request a letter from anyone asking questions about an account, and clear the answers with the account holder. In practice, many of these people readily answer questions over the phone.

It's not as expensive to get personal information as you might think. Blye's prices are $175, $350 and $750, depending on the thoroughness of the report.

What's so striking about this is that no one has to loot your safe deposit box in the dead of night to fathom your financial standing. The information is usually there for the taking, in public documents that you probably filled out without turning a hair.

SUPERVISOR — BILLING AND EDITING

By virtue of company growth, we have opened a new and important service position.

The person in this assignment will be responsible for the supervision and operational efficency of our billing activity. Ours is a business in excess of 600 million in annual sales. In addition there will be analysis assignments and liaison work both inside and outside the company.

For this position we seek a person with a minimum of two or more years of supervisory experience. College education is desirable with some preparation in accounting and management.

Your work experience should reflect an ability to work with complex systems and indicate a progression of responsibility. You have exhibited leadership qualities and an ability to guide and develop people.

For further information send a resume or letter describing your background to:

Dole to talk Sept. 4 at Friendship Day

Ethnic dancing, a gymnastic exhibition and an address by U.S. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., will highlight the annual Baltic Friendship Day celebration Sept. 4.

The observance will be at the Estonian House on Milwaukee Avenue, Prairie View. It will be a chance for Midwestern Estonians, Latvians and Lithuanians to renew friendships and "to support the demand of the people in their homelands for restoration of freedom," said Olaf Pikat, vice president of Estonian House.

Entertainment will include Latvian singers, Lithuanian folk dancers and modern rhythmic gymnastics by Estonian dancers from Toronto, Canada. After dinner on the grounds of the house, the Stelmokas Lithuanian band will play continental and contemporary dance music. Admission is $3 for adults, $1 for students and free for those under 16.

Besides the celebration, Pikat said the Friendship Day is intended to focus attention on the human rights issue in the Baltic states.

Cubs' win is a big relief

CINCINNATI — The Cubs found unexpected bullpen strength during their 5-2 come-from-behind victory over the Reds, but Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson found nothing but grief every way he turned Tuesday night.

While the Cubs increased their lead over NL East rival Philadelphia to two games, the World Champion Reds fell back to the .500 level again and Anderson had no one to blame but himself.

The Cubs, still reeling from the news that Bruce Sutter may be out of action for an indefinite period, got good sandbagging efforts from Willie Hernandez, Pete Broberg and Dave Roberts who combined with starter Bill Bonham for a five-hitter against the slugging Reds.

But Anderson, beleaguered by the umpires, the critics and by his own hometown fans, went longer with rookie righthander Mario Soto than good sense or unwritten baseball law allows.

SOTO WAS COASTING along, leading 1-0, with a six-hit shutout until two were out in the eighth when he began to tire. After the 21-year-old Soto retired Ivan DeJesus and Larry Biittner on ground balls, the roof caves in on him as Anderson sat back in the dugout apparently willing to do nothing about it.

Bill Buckner walked and Jerry Morales followed with a line single to center. Most managers would have seen enough, especially since Soto had been in several scrapes earlier in the game. But in Sparky's case, a trip to the mound seemed particularly imminent since the Reds' boss had removed his ace, Tom Seaver, in the seventh only the night before. For that action, Sparky was roundly booed.

But Anderson made no move as Soto walked Bobby Murcer to load the bases, then failed to get the ball over the plate to either Steve Ontiveros or pinch-hitter Jose Cardenal, forcing in the tying and go-ahead runs.

Only then did reliever Dale Murray enter the game, but he was greeted with an RBI single by Manny Trillo and a two-run single by George Mitterwald, neither of whom had started the contest for the Cubs.

BY THIS TIME, Cub manager Herman Franks was beginning to look around for somebody to "mop up," not necessarily an easy job against the punishing Reds' hitters. Franks had already used Hernandez, who was lifted for Cardenal and eventually received credit for the win.

Sutter is closer to the disabled list than ever with his knotted back muscle and Paul Reuschel is in the doghouse after his recent poor performance. So Franks, who was given a one-year extension on his Cub contract Tuesday, gave the call to Pete Broberg. He pitched a nervous eighth before surrendering George Foster's 35th homer to lead off the ninth.

Franks' next bold move was to bring in lefthander Roberts, who had pitched three innings Monday night in his Cub debut. Roberts, who had been 4-10 with Detroit, retired Dan Driessen, Johnny Bench and Ed Armbrister to get the save.

Bonham hurled his third straight strong effort for the Cubs, but for the second time in a row Bonham's teammates did no hitting for him. The darkhaired righthander left the game for a pinch-batter in the seventh, trailing 1-0. Bonham had pitched six innings and allowed just three hits, two of them singles by Bench and Cesar Geronimo after a walk to Foster in the second.

Soto had beaten the Cubs last Wednesday in his first big league start and he looked just as sharp Tuesday night. He gave up doubles to Ontiveros and Morales in the second and fourth but pitched out of both jams. He bailed out of major trouble in the sixth after a double by DeJesus and a single by Biittner put Cubs at first and third with no out.

With the game, like his team's pennant chances, practically out of grasp, Anderson was thrown out in the eighth after Joe Morgan was retired on a close play at first.

Sox blow lead, game to Rangers

by BOB GALLAS

White Sox President Bill Veeck looked out from his press box vantage point Tuesday night as a downpour hit Comiskey Park in the second inning, and recalled the 1959 season, when the Sox last won a pennant.

"As I recall, we didn't have one rainout at home that entire season," said Veeck, whose club had to sit out a one hour, 45-minute rain delay before play was resumed. The Sox have had only one rainout all season.

They could have used an official rainout this time. In their most agonizing loss of the season, a game that could haunt them down the stretch, the Sox blew a 7-0 lead and dropped a 9-8 decision to the surging Texas Rangers.

Texas scored six runs in the eighth and a single marker in the ninth off relief pitchers Lerrin La Grow and Bart Johnson to cut the Sox division lead to 3½ games over Minnesota.

The delay didn't hurt the Sox bats, which rapped out two runs in the second, third and fifth innings following the delay to take a 6-0 lead.

PLAY WAS halted with one strike on Richie Zisk, who was leading off the second inning against Texas starter Doyle Alexander. When play resumed, Zisk singled, Oscar Gamble doubled and Jim Spencer singled to produce the first run. A fielder's choice by Chet Lemon brought in the second run.

The Sox added more in the third when Rangers' shortstop Bert Campaneris threw an inning-ending double play ball into right field, opening the door to two more runs as Alexander was replaced by lefthander Roger Moret.

The delay didn't hurt Sox starter Ken Kravec, who was seeking to run his record to 8-2 with a win Tuesday. The 26-year-old lefthander came up with two perfect innings following the delay, giving up only two hits in the first four innings following the delay.

The Sox made it 6-0 in the bottom of the fifth when Zisk slammed a two-run homer that hit the foul pole in the left field upper deck. It was his 22nd round-tripper, a career high.

BOTH RALPH GARR and Jorge Orta continued their hot hitting and now have hit safely in 32 of their last 34 games.

Kravec worked his way out of a jam in the sixth when he gave up a leadoff double to Mike Hargrove. Kravec struck out Campaneris, got Keith Smith to fly out, then struck out Willie Horton to retire the side.

The Sox added another run in the sixth on a leadoff doubled by Chet Lemon, who went to third on an infield out and scored an Alan Bannister's single, as the Sox took a 7-0 lead.

The Rangers foiled Kravec's shutout in the seventh after Bannister's throwing error on what would have been the third out led to two unearned runs. After Bump Wills had gotten to second on Bannister's error, Jim Sundberg walked and Claudel Washington doubled in both runs.

Despite the rain, Tuesday's attendance was a respectable 19,014 paid.

THE CLICK family of Vancouver, Wash. (from left, John, Carl and Bill) await the start of the Reds-Cubs game at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium. This was the Click's seventh major league baseball park in a month-long trip to all 26 major league facilities in the United States.

Around the leagues in 31 days . . .

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A father and his two teenaged sons are making the baseball trip of a lifetime — watching games in all 26 major league parks in one month.

Bill Click, 44, a school teacher from Vancouver, Wash., and sons Carl, 17, and John, 15, figure to put more than 13,000 miles on their station wagon by the time they complete their whirlwind coast-to-coast trip at Oakland Stadium Aug. 23.

"It's been great so far," Click said Monday night at the Cincinnati Reds-Cubs game, stop No. 7 on the tour.

"We've driven nearly 5,000 miles in the past week, but we're not tired yet."

EARLY TUESDAY the ambitious trio headed to Milwaukee, stop No. 8, to take in the doubleheader between the Brewers and Indians.

Stop No. 9 comes Wednesday night at Minnesota to see the Twins battle the Tigers, stop No. 10 is Thursday night at Chicago to see the White Sox entertain the Rangers, and on and on it goes.

Every place they go they are asked the same question — Why?

"A year ago we were watching a Monday night game on TV from Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh and someone said it sure would be neat to actually be in that ballpark," said Carl. "And then one of us — we forget who — said it would be great to be in all the parks.

"SO, WE DECIDED to try it. We've been working on the trip for almost a full year — we didn't get everything lined out until just before we left for our first game (July 24, California at Seattle)."

The trip has been meticulously planned.

At Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium Monday night, the trio studied plastic-covered itinerary sheets — complete with routes marked out on a map of the United States — that they have compiled for the journey.

"We've been corresponding the past year with baseball officials all over the country," said Carl, "making sure we can get tickets and working out our travel plans. Everything is on schedule so far."

BETWEEN SEATTLE and Cincinnati in the past week, the three have seen games in San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Houston and Atlanta.

What's been the best ballpark so far?

"Dodger Stadium," offered Carl. "The natural turf there is in perfect condition and it's just a beautiful ballpark."

The best game?

"The Expos versus the Padres at San Diego last Wednesday," quickly snapped John, pulling out the big scorebook in which he keeps score of every game. The scorebook figures to be one of the most unusual ever when the trip is through.

CARL, WHO WANTS to be a journalist, is writing stories about his experiences and calling them in to his hometown newspaper.

Bill, whose wife Peggy is back home with their two daughters, is the official trip photographer.

"I've never taken so many pictures in my life," he said. "We got down on the field once before a game and I bet I took 100 pictures of my boys with the players."

Bill is sharing the driving with Carl (and John, with a learner's permit, even helps out a little). A mattress in the back of the station wagon serves as bed two nights out of three. Every third night they try to stay at a motel.

"THE TRIP IS costing us about $2,000," said Bill. "About $500 to fix up the car before the trip and we figure about $800 for gasoline.

"It's a long trip, but it's fun and I'm getting to know my boys even better than ever," added Bill.

Sting still looking for home in Chicago

Byline report

Art Mugalian

People flock to Soldier Field for the strangest reasons. They go to see Peter Frampton play the guitar or the Bears play against themselves.

What they apparently won't go to see at Soldier Field is world caliber soccer featuring the Chicago Sting of the North American Soccer League. The Sting just concluded their third home season in Chicago, averaging less than 5,500 fans per game at beautiful Soldier Field. The team's quixotic, month-long quest for a playoff berth failed to perk fan enthusiasm.

Owner Lee Stern and general manager Jim Walker have to feel that the location and present condition of the ancient lakefront stadium is the major obstacle in the path of the Sting's continued good growth and prosperity.

AFTER ALL, soccer in America has become a fabulous overnight success, a cover topic for national magazines and a sport whose time has come.

Except in Chicago, where the game of soccer takes a back seat to the Super Bowl of Rock.

"The Eastern press has finally recognized soccer growth," said Walker, who once worked for the Chicago Fire. "And it hurts that the writers throw us in with the poor franchises of the league — Rochester, Connecticut . . . and Chicago. That really hurts.

"What they don't know is that we have a strong franchise," Walker added. "We have a strong owner and a strong organization."

The Sting is a big mystery to the preponderance of Chicago sports fans, most of whom confuse a midfielder with a centerfielder and think a striker is looking for a better contract.

WALKER PUTS most of the blame squarely on Soldier Field, although he admits that a losing Sting team in 1977 hasn't helped.

"People say to us that it takes them as long to get through the Loop as it does to get to the Loop," said Walker.

"We would like to play someplace north or northwest or west," he said. "We feel that's where our playing and spectator public is.

"Around the league there are some really nice 20,000-seat stadiums like in San Jose or Toronto or Dallas," Walker said. "Boy, we look at those and we think wouldn't it be great to put that stadium in Arlington Heights or Palatine."

Walker's preliminary investigation into the possibility of playing pro soccer in a place like Palatine produced nothing but a dead-end. "We'd have to spend an awful lot of money just to raise the capacity of a high school stadium to 10,000 or 15,000," Walker pointed out.

SO IT SEEMS almost certain that the Sting will play its 1978 season games at Comiskey Park, where a couple of games were played two years ago. Stern, a part-owner of the White Sox, has vowed that his soccer team will play no more at Soldier Field.

"Nothing's really been decided yet," said Walker. "But we finally just agreed that we're a major league team and we want to play in a major league facility.

"At Comiskey Park there are so many more things you can do," Walker continued. "There's the intimacy, you're closer to the field. There's better parking, better access. You can sell beer. There's more promotional things you can do."

Theere's still an outside shot that the team can play its home games at Dyche Stadium in Evanston, provided any and all legal roadblocks are removed. "Dyche Stadium would be nice for us, though not ideal," said Walker.

WALKER POINTED to crowds in excess of 40,000 in places like Minnesota, Tampa, and Seattle — evidence, he said, of surging soccer popularity. "They had 46,000 in New York the other night against Connecticut, the worst team in the league," he said.

"Interest is growing," Walker said. "In places like New York they're starting to come out to see things other than Pele. It's encouraging for the league and it renews our confidence, but we get a little envious to see everybody else doing so well."

The 1977 Sting were coming off a playoff appearance the previous season and interest in the team seemed to be at a peak. Then they lost their first six games and interest quickly dropped off.

"Our feeling is that we salvaged about as much of our season as we could," said Walker. "That is, after the bad start and the bad middle of the season. But our goals were pretty modest, almost to the point where I was pleased with what we did.

"OUR CLUB WILL be improved next year, bigger and better," he promised.

"You know, there was a lot of yelling at our last game," said Walker, who was among 5,201 closing-night fans. "Even though we lost, they saw a good game."

Kingman blast stops Phils

From Herald Wire Services

Dave Kingman hit a two-run homer and Rollie Fingers picked up his 23rd save Tuesday night to lead the San Diego Padres to a 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

In other National League play Tuesday night, St. Louis defeated Atlanta 6-4, Montreal routed San Francisco 10-2, Los Angles downed New York 7-2 and Pittsburgh topped Atlanta 6-3.

Kingman's homer, his 15th of the year, came after a Bill Almon doubled in the third inning and tagged Jim Kaat with his seventh loss in 11 decisions.

Bob Owchinko picked up his fourth win against seven losses with Fingers hurling the last two innings. The Phillies knocked out Owchinko in the eighth when Terry Harmon walked and Jerry Martin doubled.

Fingers came on to get Larry Bowa on a popup, Mike Schmidt on a sacrifice fly that scored Harmon, and struck out Greg Luzinski to end the threat.

AL baseball

PINCH-HITTER DAVE Rader's two-run single capped a three-run ninth inning that enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to defeat the Atlanta Braves, 6-4.

With the score tied 3-3, Ted Simmons walked off Phil Niekro, 10-13, and the Cardinals then got a break when shortstop Darrel Chaney dropped a throw at second base on Keith Hernandez' sacrifice bunt attempt.

Andre Dawson delivered a two-run triple and Larry Parrish added a two-run homer during an eight-run seventh inning that carried the Montreal Expos to a 10-2 rout of the San Francisco Giants behind the four-hit pitching of Steve Rogers.

Ellis Valentine drove in three runs for the Expos, including two during the seventh inning uprising, as the Expos snapped a four-game losing streak and tagged rookie Bob Knepper with his sixth loss in 10 decisions.

Rogers, who leads the National League with 14 complete games, walked only one and struck out eight in gaining his 12th victory against nine losses. The only runs off him came on Randy Elliot"s pinch-hit homer in the eighth inning.

SOUTHPAW TOMMY John spaced eight hits to win his 12th game and Steve Yeager climaxed a three-run seventh inning with a bases-loaded single to key a 7-2 victory by the Los Angeles Dodgers over the New York Mets.

With the score 2-2, he Dodgers filled the bases against loser Jerry Koosman in the seventh on a single by Reggie Smith, Ron Cey's double and an intentional walk to Steve Garvey.

Koosman then walked Dusty Baker to force home the go-ahead run before Yeager followed one out later with a line two-run single which Mets' center fielder Joel Youngblood nearly snared with a diving catch attempt.

Bill Robinson stroked a three-run homer in the 10th inning to lift the Pittsburgh Pirates to a come-from-behind 6-3 triumph over the Houston Astros.

The Pirates, taking advantage of a throwing error by third baseman Enos Cabell, scored two runs in the ninth inning to tie the score at 3-3.

Twins smash Royals again, 9-4

Butch Wynegar hit a three-run homer and Dan Ford added a solo blast Tuesday night to pace the Minnesota Twins to a 9-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals and help Dave Goltz to his 13th triumph.

In other American League action Tuesday night, Cleveland crunched Milwaukee 9-2 in the first game of a doubleheader, while New York was at California and Boston was at Seattle.

WYNEGAR CRACKED his seventh homer of the year to drive in the Twins' final three runs in the fifth and Ford led off the Twins' four-run fourth inning with his 10th homer off starter and loser Andy Hassler, 6-4. Ford also singled in Minnesota's first run, driving in Rod Carew who doubled with two outs in the first.

Bob Gorinski singled in one of the Twins' four runs in the fourth and two others scored when shortstop Bob Heise mishandled a throw from second baseman Frank White on an apparent double play ball.

Al Cowens knocked in three Kansas City runs with singles in the first, third and ninth innings while White slapped a fourth inning single to score Amos Otis with the Royals' other run.

NL baseball

Goltz, recovering from the flu, struggled through 8-2/3 innings, allowing 11 hits while walking four in raising his record to 13-6.

BUDDY BELL singled four times and knocked in two runs and Dennis Eckersley pitched a seven-hitter in leading the Cleveland Indians to a 9-2 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday night in the opener of a doubleheader.

Rain halted play 51 minutes in the second inning with the Brewers leading 1-0 on a double by Steve Brye and a run-scoring single by Lenn Sakata. The Indians took a 2-1 lead in the third on a single by Bruce Bochte, a fielder's choice by Ray Fosse and three straight singles by Duane Kuiper, Bell and Rico Carty.

The Indians chased starter and loser Mike Caldwell, 2-4, in the fourth on a single by Charlie Spikes, an error by shortstop Robin Young, Bochte's sacrifice, an intentional walk to Fosse and a two-run single by Frank Duffy. Fosse then scored on Bell's single.

To Market attracts eight

Three speedsters, Rueful, Glassy Dip and Bold Sunrise, assure that there will be a lively pace in today's $12,000 featured To Market Purse for four-year-olds and up at one mile over Arlington's main turf course. Eight were named to partake in what promises to be a highly competitive event.

Rueful equalled the track mark of 1:41-4 for a mile and one-sixteenth on the grass here June 24. The five-year-old's next start came in the July 16 Washington Park Handicap where his sixth-place finish indicated he was simply outclassed. He looks to be back with his own kind today and will be after his third win in six 1977 starts. When the Bobby Voelkner trainee tied the track record, he did so in front-running fashion.

Glassy Dip is strictly an early speed horse who is enjoying a good season. In 17 starts, the Diplomat Way colt has triumphed four times, placed three times and showed five times for earnings of nearly $65,000 for trainer John Meaux. Glassy Dip set a track standard for seven furlongs on the sod May 30 at Hawthorne when he rambled seven panels in 1:22-3.

Bold Sunrise has won three of seven starts this season and two of his last three, both at one mile on the grass with a little lesser than these. The four-year-old Bold Reason colt likes to stick close to or set the pace. Trainer Jere Smith has not yet named a rider.

Should the early speed falter, Landscaper, Archie Beamish, Ilefetchit and the entry of King Jerry and Enrique VIII will provide a cavalcade of stretch runners.

Landscaper banked more than $80,000 in 1976 with three victories in eleven starts. Thus far this campaign, the Frank Brothers' charge has bagged a pair of wins in eight tries, including one at Arlington Park. His last try also came in the Washington Park 'Cap where he failed to distinguish himself.

Archie Beamish was victorious July 4 by a length in a mile and one-sixteenth allowance grass test. The four-year-old son of Mr. Leader has done more than earn his keep but would need his best to report home on top in this spot. The entry, just in from California, is from the dangerous Winick barn. Ilefetchit may need this one.

River Forest tennis features top juniors

On Aug. 8-13 River Forest will once again hold its Invitational Tennis Tournament for top ranking junior players. This is the 40th year for this event, which is the only junior national tourney in the area sanctioned by the United States Tennis Association.

This year there will be players from across the country, Puerto Rico and Mexico, as well as many well-known local juniors.

Local players Bruce Brescia, Oak Park; Paul Wei, Arlington Heights; Eric Korita, Glenview, and Ian McLaughlan, Rock Island are also expected.

Ernie Fernandez, the top ranking 18 year-old in Puerto Rico, as well as the four other ranking Puerto Rican players will be participating. Susan Mascarin, Grosse Pt., Michigan, will be another favorite, being ranked No. 1 nationally in the 12-year-old age group.

This tournament is one of few junior tournaments played primarily on a clay-like surface. Players look forward to the opportunity to play at River Forest to gain experience playing on a clay-like surface as that surface is becoming more predominant on professional circuits.

Spectator admission to the River Forest Junior Invitational Tournament is free. Lunch may be purchased on the grounds or a person may bring his own picnic.

Finals will be played on Aug. 13, at the River Forest Club, Lathrop Ave., two blocks north of Lake Street.

Pre-time play will be held on various River Forest area courts.

Classy Carlton

Percentage man is pitching gem

Jim Murray

If you think you know baseball, what was the greatest pitching feat in the game this decade? Nolan Ryan's four no-hitters? Vida Blue's Cy Young rookie year? Mike Marshall's 106 games in 1974? Tom Seaver's heroics in New York?

No, I would have to classify Steve Carlton's winning 27 games for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1972.

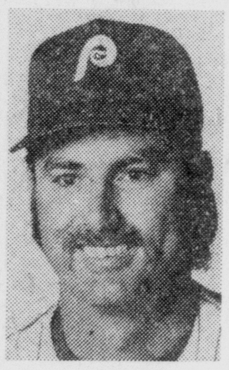
This only tied Sandy Koufax for the most games ever won in a season by a left-hander in the league, but it came to exactly 45.8 per cent of all games the Phillies won that year!

THIS HAS to be the most extraordinary feat by a pitcher ever.

To give you an idea, Cleveland won 111 games in 1954. To gain 45.8 per cent of those victories, a pitcher would have had to win 51.

The year Koufax won 27, his team won 95. Sandy's percentage of that team's success was 28.

Nobody ever carried a franchise the way Steve Carlton did that year — not



Steve Carlton

O. J. Simpson, Red Grange, Babe Ruth, Bill Russell or even Jesse Owens at the '36 Olympics.

CONSIDER THAT the rest of the staff only had 32 wins to go with Carlton's 27. Ken Reynolds won two — and lost 15. Billy Champion won four — and lost 14, 13 of them in a row. Woody Fryman was 4-10 for the Phils and went to 10-3 when traded to Detroit in midseason. Dick Selma was 2-9. It was not a team, it was a sieve. It was like parachuting into Stalingrad.

Yet, Steve Carlton won 15 games in a row for that team. He lost his bid for the 16th, 2-1. In 11 innings.

People are used to pointing to Walter Johnson as the original hard-luck pitcher, throwing out of a hole all his career with the hapless Washington Senators. But in 1912, when Walter won 32 games, Washington won 92. In 1913, when Johnson won 36, Washington won 90. In 1910, Johnson won 24 and the team only won 66, but in 1909, Washington won only 42 games — and Johnson was 13-25. It's a rule of thumb, if the team is bad it can't beat the other pitcher, but it'll find a way to beat its own.

Steve Carlton is no longer called upon to win 45.8 per cent of the Phillies' games — 35 per cent would set off dancing in the streets. He had 13 of the team's 56 wins when he took the mound against the Dodgers here.

FOR A MOMENT, it was like old times again. Steve had good stuff and was sailing along with a two-hitter, the score tied, going into the seventh when he had the kind of inning pitchers' mothers warn them about. There was a walk, a balk, a wild pitch, a passed ball, three more walks, two stolen bases in a row, a fielder's choice that should have been a double play but was no play and a fly ball that turned into a double because the outfield was drawn in to cut off a possible run.

The Dodgers had three runs on really no hits, and Carlton was on his way out of the game with a three-hitter going. He sevened-out again. A plastic chair in the runway bore the brunt of the disappointment. Viewed later, it looked as if it had been run over by a truck, or thrown out of a 10-story window. It was still ringing two innings later.

I asked Steve Carlton between games of the doubleheader if he could recall the 45.8 per cent season vividly. "Well," he said, "the slider was unbelievable, the curveball unreal and the control, ungodly. The fastball was decent. And somehow the team seemed to turn into the Ruthian Yankees when I pitched. I mean, we were a young team they were going with, but they didn't make as many mistakes behind me." Perhaps he inspired confidence? "Well, the next year I (ital) lost (unital) 20," he laughed. "But I had walking pneumnoia and I never did get my strength back."

CARLTON HAD his third 20-game season last year. The Phillies of 1972 are no longer fooled by changeups, don't play the hitters wrong, don't miss the cutoff man or get jamed by canny old-timers on 3-and-2 counts. They are now a veteran team, divisional champions, and probably only a big inning or so away from the World Series. It is a team on which not even Cy Young could win 45 per cent of its games.

"What per cent of this team's wins would you like to have this year?" I asked Carlton. He cocked an eye down the veteran dugout, full of home run hitters. "Would you believe — 20?" he asked.

Four area grid stars prep for Shrine game

NORMAL-BLOOMINGTON — The West is hoping the third time is the charm as it will be seeking its first win in three tries at the Illinois All-Star Football Game next week.

The game will be played at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 6, at Hancock Stadium on the Illinois State University campus, and is jointly sponsored by the Illinois Coaches Association and Mohammed Shrine Temple of Peoria.

Proceeds go to the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children.

Herald area players on the West team are St. Viator products Dave Nicolau and John Gillen, Ben Orcutt of Buffalo Grove and Bryan Amis of Barrington.

COMING PRIMARILY from schools that are west of the Interstate 55 corridor, the team has seven players that were in the state finals last year.

They include Stan Walker of 1A champion Hampshire, Jay Wessler of 1975 1A champion and 1976 runner up Triopia, Scott Zahnle of 2A champion Fulton, James Cummings of runner up Gillespie, Vic Friederich of 1975 3A champion and 1976 runner up Metamora, and teammates Wayne Strader and Dennis Brooks of 3A champion Geneseo.

Several of the West players are known for the big play.

Walker led Hampshire to the 1A state title in 1975 and despite being hampered due to a broken collarbone this year, ran for 116 yards and a championship by scoring four touchdowns and throwing for another, including two scores which came on 78 and 79 yard punt returns.

WESSLER TOOK Triopia to the touchdown in the state finals against Hampshire.

Combining the talents of the West will be up to Coach Bob Reade who led 3A champion Geneseo to a 13-0 record including a 20-12 win over Metamora in the state finals last year which halted the Redbirds winning streak at 30.

Reade is familiar with two game breakers of his own in Strader and Brooks.

Both Strader and Brooks were the mainstays of undefeated Geneseo.

STRADER PICKED up 188 yards in 33 carries in the championship contest along with scoring three touchdowns.

Strader and Brooks also combined for 14 tackles in the 3A championship contest.

Reade feels he'll "be working with the very best people in the state and expects a wide open game due to past scores in the all-star contests." Limitations both offensive and defensively allow the games to be offensive oriented," Reade said. The East won 20-12 in 1975 and 28-18 last year.

ACCORDING TO Reade, "it's a great experience for me as a coach to be with the all-star players themselves and the other coaches."

Saints' Manning back for Bears

VERO BEACH, Fla. — Archie Manning will return to the New Orleans Saints' starting lineup for Saturday's opening preseason game against the Chicago Bears.

Coach Hank Stram named Manning the starting quarterback Tuesday. It will be Manning's first appearance on the field since the 1976 preseason when he played briefly in one game.

The former Ole Miss quarterback missed the full 1976 regular season because of shoulder surgery. However, he said he has recovered from the operation and feels no pain in his throwing arm.

Defensive tackle Derland Moore suffered a knee sprain in Tuesday morning's workout and quarterback Bobby Douglass missed the drill because of a cyst on his knee. Both will be sidelined for the Chicago game.

Moore suffered the injury during contact drills and will be out of action three to four days.

Gullett and grass were strangers

LYNN, Ky. — State police said Tuesday they have cleared New York Yankee pitcher Don Gullett of any involvement in the discovery of more than $112,000 worth of marijuana on a farm he owns in northeastern Kentucky.

State police at Ashland confirmed that about 2,800 pounds of marijuana was discovered Monday on Gullett's farm in Lynn but that neither he nor any members of his family was apparently involved in the growing of the weed.

"We are certain he has nothing to do with it," said the spokesman. "But our investigation is centering on who might have planted that large a crop there."

Police said they had several suspects in the case but had made no arrests.

NASL players vote to form union

WASHINGTON — North American Soccer League players have overwhelmingly approved the concept of setting up a players' union similar to those in other professional sports, it was revealed Tuesday.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Assn., said 265 of the NASL's 335 players have signed cards authorizing the NFLPA to act as their collective bargaining agent.

"The response was overwhelming," said Garvey from Denver, where he is attending to NFLPA business. "I thought the cards would come in slowly and there would be a lot of questions, but apparently there is a real need for the organization. "We still haven't received cards from a couple of teams, and I think eventual participation will be almost 100 per cent. I hope the end result is that management will recognize the players' association."

Buffalo Braves to name new coach

BUFFALO, N.Y. — If Buffalo Braves president Norm Sonju has his way, Lowell "Cotton" Fitzsimmons will be named the Braves' new head coach today.

"It will be over this week," Sonju said Tuesday of Fitzsimmons' appointment. "I've been shooting for Wednesday all along."

Sonju had said Fitzsimmons' attorney, Jerry Davis, had talked money and terms of a contract for the former coach of the NBA's Phoenix Suns and Atlanta Hawks.

"All numbers were agreed on," Sonju said. "We gave him (Davis) a couple of models. One is a three-year contract and the other is four-years' two-years guaranteed and two-years not guaranteed."

It appears that once a few minor details were worked out, all Fitzsimmons, 45, will have to do is sign the dotted line.

Gold medalist fighters awarded

NEW YORK — Howard Davis and Sugar Ray Leonard are young men who share a common past and a common goal. In 1976, each achieved worldwide fame by capturing Olympic gold medals in boxing, Davis at 132 pounds, Leonard at 139.

Now they have both shed their amateur status for professional careers which they hope will lead them not only to more championships but to financial security as well.

Davis and Leonard were honored at a luncheon in New York Tuesday, as co-winners of the Tanqueray Achievement Award for excellence in amateur athletics. Each man received a silver trophy before an overflow crowd which included some literal heavyweights — Jack Dempsey, Jersey Joe Walcott and Gene Tunney.

Arlington girls sweep in softball tournament

Clutch hitting and fine pitching proved to be the right ingredients for the Arlington Heights 12-13 year old girls All-Star team as they completed a four-game sweep of the Downers Grove All-Star Tournament.

Arlington won its first game at the expense of St. Charles, 7-4, behind the five-hit pitching of Amy Rassmussen. Leading hitters in the game were Linda Stowell, Jane Vaughn and Cathy Curran.

The second tournament game proved to be the toughest for Arlington as they slipped by a fine Woodridge team 4-3. Again it was Amy Rassmussen on the mound as she gave up only six hits while striking out three.

The semi-final game saw Rasmussen lending way to Laura Carter on the mound as the Stars beat Glen Ellyn, 9-2. The bulk of Arlington's hitting came from Jane Vaughn, Nancy Erickson, Linda Stowall, Donna Campana and Sheila More.

Arlington's finest hour game during the championship game as the Stars blasted home team Downers Grove 13-0, behind the four-hit pitching of Rassmussen. Leading the way at the plate for Arlington were Paula Coleantonio, Cheryl Drews, Stacey Samples and Carol Kelly.

The Stars next travel to Round Lake for a double-elimination tournament Aug. 15-19.

Schaumburg entry shows unbeaten invite record

A team of competitive 12-year olds from the Schaumburg Athletic Assoc. marked their first appearance in tournament play in rather flashing syle, completing sweep of area teams.

Schaumburg was the only undefeated team in the double-elimination Northlake Invitational Tournament.

Pitcher Matt Callahan was the big winner for Schaumburg as the youngster hurled his Bronco team to two victories. Callahan sandwiched his two wins of the team's four game sweep against Melrose Park, 13-4, and River Forest, 13-1.

Schaumburg's other victories included a win over Northlake, 13-6, and Melrost Park, 7-6.

Schaumburg's batsmen rapped out a tournament high of 14 extra base hits. Don Mueller led the way with a home run and triple. Other home runs were hit by Tom Reader and Dan Murphy.

Reader and Mueller hurled the remaining two victories for Schaumburg during the tournament.

Notrump nut won't listen

One of the worst complexes a bridge player can acquire is the notrump complex. Everyone likes to play notrump, but no matter how well you play that contract you can't bring it home if you have some real weakness and the opponents are unkind enough to attack you there.

South has a book two notrump response to his partner's opening spade bid. Thirteen high-card points, a balanced hand and all suits stopped.

Many players would throw the book away and respond two diamonds rather than bid this two notrump, but we aren't going to criticize that first bid by South. It was his second bid that showed a complete lack of partnership understanding.

North had opened the bidding with one spade and rebid three spades over South's two-notrump response. This three-spade rebid should have warned South that North didn't like notrump. Hence, South should have raised to four spades instead of repeating his previous notrump call.

North might have insisted on spades, but North had bid the suit twice so North passed to three notrump. West opened a club and North was down two. Five spades would have made easily.

Ask Andy

Gopher plays role in nature's underground

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Lori Isaacson, 12, of Princeton, Ill., for her question:

DOES A GOPHER HAVE ANY VALUE?

Gopher is the common name of the pocket gopher, Geomyidae. He's a rodent and belongs to the same order of animals as the beaver, mouse and squirrel.

You'll find the gopher in all parts of North America except very far north and east. They live in the interior of British Columbia in Canada and as far south as Costa Rica. They can be found west of the Mississippi as well as in Florida, Georgia and southern Alabama.

The gopher is about 10 inches long and has a blunt head, small eyes and ears and short legs. His coat is silky soft fur and brown in color. His forefeet are armed with strong and curved claws that are used for digging. Also pressed into service when it is time to dig are long upper front teeth.

When digging, gophers move slowly through long and complex underground tunnels. They spend much time patrolling their tunnels which often extend for as long as 800 feet. Only during breeding time does a gopher let another gopher into his tunnel.

Since they spend most of their time underground, gophers have very poor eyesight. Aiding in their sense of touch, however, is a short, hairless tail that is tactile — that is, it acts as an organ of touch.

In the balance of nature, every creature has his own important place. While the gopher is a most destructive animal who eats vegetables, trees and farm crops and damages banks of canals and irrigation ditches, he also plays his own part in the scheme of nature. Some of the vegetation he eats isn't the farmer's — and thus he helps to control growing plants as nature intended. And he himself is sought after by other creatures and consumed by them as their part of the total balance of nature.

Pocket gophers have external cheek pouches or pockets. When they pick up buds, farm vegetables, roots, nuts, grasses and other food items, they place it in their cheek pouches before eventually eating it.

There's a constant war going on between the farmer and the gopher. The man of the soil usually says he sees no redeeming graces in the gopher.

WHAT IS VULCANIZED RUBBER?

Vulcanization gives strength, hardness and elasticity to rubber by treating it with heat and vulcanizing agents such as sulfur. Heat causes the sulfur to combine with the rubber and cure it. This makes the rubber stronger and more durable.

A compound containing one-third sulfur and two-thirds rubber vulcanizes to form hard rubber. Benzoyl peroxide is used instead of sulfur to vulcanize silicone rubber.

Vulcanization can take from just a few minutes to as long as several hours. Small products, such as toys, require about five minutes but larger items, such as tires, may take up to an hour. Vulcanization and shaping of molded products can be done at the same time by heating the molds under pressure.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
